This introduction includes the necessary background information to teach the Treasure Island unit. This unit contains 19 daily lessons, plus four Pausing Point days that may be used for differentiated instruction. Each entire lesson will require a total of 90 minutes. Lesson 15 is devoted to a unit assessment. It is recommended that you spend no more than 23 days total on this unit.

After completing the unit, you will administer the End-of-Year Assessment. You should spend no more than three days total on the End-of-Year Assessment.

Lessons and activities in this unit address various aspects of a comprehensive language arts curriculum aligned to the Common Core State Standards-English Language Arts (CCSS-ELA): reading, writing, spelling, grammar, and morphology. A chart indicating which lessons in the Treasure Island unit address content from the CCSS is located on the Unit 8 primary web page: https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-unit-8-treasure-island/.

Why the Treasure Island Unit Is Important

This unit examines the fiction genre through a classic novel, Treasure Island. Students will focus on character development, setting, and plot, as well as literary devices, while reading an abridged version of Robert Louis Stevenson’s popular adventure story. It is important for students in the upper elementary grades to read longer works of fiction and trace the development of plot, characters, and literary elements over the course of a novel; this unit will provide students that opportunity. In addition, this text presents an opportunity for students to learn about the adventure story as a unique subgenre of fiction. Students will also be exposed to other relevant aspects of the text, such as geography, pirates, and sailing.

Core Content Objectives Addressed in Core Knowledge Language Arts During Previous Grades and Units

Students who have received Core Knowledge Language Arts (CKLA) instruction in Grades K–3 and up to this point in Grade 4 will already have pertinent background knowledge for this unit. These students may have gained relevant background knowledge during the following domains and units:

Kings and Queens (Grade K)

Columbus and the Pilgrims (Grade K)

- Identify the continents of Europe, Africa, Asia, North America, and South America
Stories (Grade K)
- Explain that stories that are made-up and come from a writer’s imagination are called fiction
- Identify the beginning, middle, and end of a given story
- Identify the sequence of events in a given story
- Identify the characters of a given story
- Identify the plot of a given story
- Identify the setting of a given story
- Identify the characteristics of subgenres of fiction

Fables and Stories (Grade 1)
- Identify character, plot, and setting as basic story elements
- Describe the characters, plot, and setting of a specific fable or story

The War of 1812 (Grade 2)

European Exploration of North America (Grade 3)
- Identify motivating factors that led to the exploration of the Americas in different expeditions
- Explain why kings and queens in Europe were interested in exploring the Atlantic and the area to the west of Europe

Colonial America (Grade 3)

The Viking Age (Grade 3)

Classic Tales: The Wind in the Willows (Grade 3)
- Identify from which character’s perspective the story is being experienced
- Identify common themes as demonstrated through the characters
- Demonstrate understanding of literary terms, such as author, characters, setting, plot, dialogue, personification, point of view, perspective, biography, autobiography, theme, narrator, and narration

Brown Girl Dreaming (Grade 4)

American Revolution (Grade 4)
Overview

The following is an overview of the unit schedule. The Teacher Guide uses the following color-coding: purple for reading lessons; red for grammar, morphology, and spelling lessons; and green for writing lessons.

Core Connections

During the Core Connections lesson in Lesson 1, students will review information about geography and history as it pertains to the rise of European exploration for the purpose of claiming land and riches, and increasing trade. Students will be introduced to essential background information that will help them understand Treasure Island, including information about pirates, the rise and fall of piracy, nautical terms, and parts of a ship.
Reading

Reader

The Reader for this unit, Treasure Island, includes complex text and prepares students in Grade 4 for the increased vocabulary and syntax demands aligned texts will present in later grades. This is an abridged version of the original novel written by Robert Louis Stevenson and published in 1883. Treasure Island chronicles the adventures of the young narrator, Jim Hawkins, who discovers a treasure map when an old pirate stays at his family's inn. After joining forces with a doctor and a squire, Jim travels in search of treasure on a distant island. The novel vividly portrays a host of challenges, including encounters with dangerous pirates and a mutiny on the ship. Jim uses his wits to outsmart the pirates in this tale of greed, adventure, duplicity, and bravery.

The Reader also includes two selections that may be used for enrichment. Although the Teacher Guide does not include lessons for these enrichment selections, the Activity Book includes activity pages students may complete independently. Please use these selections at your discretion, considering students' needs and the time available in your school day. You may wish to have students read “The Voyage” after they have read Chapters 3 and/or 4 in the Reader, as the selection includes text from the original Treasure Island that corresponds to the events covered in these chapters. You may wish to have students read “Blackbeard” after they have read Chapter 2 in the Reader, as the selection is about the infamous pirate Blackbeard, who is referenced in that chapter.

Pronunciation Guide

For your reference, the Teacher Resources section includes a pronunciation guide for unique content-related words found in Treasure Island. You will also find pronunciations listed by chapter in the reading lessons and on activity pages.

Writing

In the writing lessons, students will engage in an extended writing project, while continuing to practice the various stages of the writing process. They will begin by drafting a character sketch and then will write, publish, and share an original adventure story. While working on the adventure story, students will focus on character development, dialogue, verb choice, and revision methods.
Grammar

In this unit, students will review to be verbs and modal auxiliary verbs. They will learn to identify relative pronouns and use them correctly in sentences. In addition, students will learn about commonly used conjunctions and will practice using them correctly.

Morphology

In this unit, students will learn about the Greek root bio. Students will also review the common prefixes im– and in–, the Latin root port, and the common suffixes –ful and –less. Oral and written activities present opportunities to apply morphology skills.

Spelling

During this unit’s spelling lessons, students will be introduced to both words related to Reader content and affixed words (suffixes –y, –ly, and prefixes im–, in–). Each set of spelling words will consist of 10 or 12 words. Although each set of words does not follow just one single spelling pattern, you may detect certain gaps or misunderstandings in students’ knowledge of the code through careful analysis of their spelling errors.

Fluency

Helping students achieve automaticity and fluency to improve reading comprehension is an important goal in CKLA Grade 4. The optional Fluency Supplement, consisting of poetry, folklore, fables, and other selections, is provided online at https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-ancillary-materials-fourth-grade/. These selections provide additional opportunities for students to practice reading with fluency and expression (prosody). You may choose and use the selections at your discretion in any order. For more information about using the Fluency Supplement, see the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction.

Assessment

Each unit includes a variety of assessment tools, including formal and informal assessments, formative and summative assessments, and progress-monitoring assessments targeting specific skills. Each unit concludes with a multipart unit assessment that assesses content knowledge (informational units only), reading comprehension, grammar, morphology, and fluency. While fluency assessment in previous units has been designated as optional, we strongly recommend that this unit’s fluency assessment be used with all students to obtain an end-of-year indication of each student’s fluency. The grammar and morphology portions of the assessment address grammar and morphology skills taught throughout the unit. Specifically, the grammar portion of the unit assessment for Treasure Island addresses to be verbs and modal auxiliary verbs, relative pronouns, and conjunctions. The morphology portion addresses the prefixes im– and in–, the roots port and bio, and the suffixes –ful and –less.
End-of-Year Assessment

In this unit, an End-of-Year (EOY) Assessment is provided and should be administered at the end of the unit. You should spend no more than three days total on the End-of-Year Assessment. There are three main group components of the assessment: a written assessment of silent reading comprehension, a written assessment of grammar, and a written assessment of morphology. Two other components, the oral reading of words in isolation and the fluency assessments, are administered one-on-one with students.

The written assessment of silent reading comprehension is meant to be completed in one 90-minute block of time and will be administered on End-of-Year Assessment Day 1. This should approximate the extended end-of-year assessments that Grade 4 students may take. The grammar and morphology assessments are meant to be completed during two 45-minute blocks of time on End-of-Year Assessment Day 2 and Day 3, respectively.

In addition, you will pull students aside, one at a time, and administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment (to students who scored 10 or fewer on the Reading Comprehension Assessment, or between 11–13, as time allows). Administer the Fluency Assessment to all students.

After administering the End-of-Year Assessment, you will complete an analysis summary of individual student performance using the Grade 4 End-of-Year Assessment Summary Sheet, found in each individual student’s Activity Book. This summary should be passed on, along with the completed assessments, to students’ teachers for the following school year.

Teacher Resources

At the back of this Teacher Guide, you will find a section titled “Teacher Resources.” This section contains materials needed for instruction of this unit. Additional teacher resources for the entire year can be found in the Yearlong Teacher Resources section of the Fourth Grade Ancillary Materials: https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-ancillary-materials-fourth-grade/.

Digital Components

In the Advance Preparation section of each lesson, you will be instructed to create various posters, charts, or graphic organizers for use during the lesson. Many of these items, along with other images such as maps or diagrams, are also available in the Individual Resource, Digital Components, on the Unit 8 primary web page: https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-unit-8-treasure-island/.

Recommended Resources

You should consider various times throughout the day when you might infuse the curriculum with authentic domain-related literature. If you are able to do so, you may recommend students select books from the Recommended Resources list. In addition, if you recommend that families read aloud with their child each night, you may wish to suggest that they choose titles from this list to reinforce the concepts covered in this unit.
You might also consider creating a classroom lending library, allowing students to borrow domain-related books to read at home with their families. The Recommended Resources list, which also includes online resources, can be found online in the Individual Resource, Digital Components, on the Unit 8 primary webpage: https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-unit-8-treasure-island/.
Unit 8: Treasure Island

Primary Focus of Lessons

Core Connections: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify relevant geographical points and historical events, describe characteristics and behaviors of pirates during the 1700s and 1800s, and identify key ship terms to prepare for reading the adventure story Treasure Island.

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify the narrator and setting of the story. Students will also be able to describe important characters introduced in the first chapter.

Academic Vocabulary

Academic vocabulary words support reading comprehension and may appear across a variety of materials, in language arts and in content areas. Understanding academic vocabulary may contribute to improved performance on assignments and assessments, as these words appear often in directions. Where applicable, general academic words are used throughout the unit, as they refer to all subjects—reading, writing, grammar, morphology, and spelling. They may appear in directions, assessments, spelling lists, activity pages, and discussion questions, among other places.

These words are underlined in lessons wherever they are included. You may wish to define these words and use them intentionally throughout the unit so students hear them used in multiple ways; it is not necessary to teach the words ahead of time.

Following the word list is a chart of applicable Spanish cognates. Providing Spanish cognates may support Spanish-speaking students in comprehending the words in English.
1. analogy, n. a comparison of two things that are alike in some way
2. excerpt, n. a passage or part of a larger text
3. figurative language, n. words or groups of words that mean something different from the normal meanings of the words (e.g., metaphors, similes, personification)
4. inference, n. a conclusion or opinion formed based on evidence
5. portray, v. to describe, show, or play the part of something or someone

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.
Read to learn how this adventure story begins and to gather information about the narrator, setting, and characters.

- Prepare and display a Character Chart on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit. This chart will be on display throughout the unit. Students will use Activity Page 1.3, which matches this chart, for the duration of this unit.

Fluency (optional)

- Choose and make sufficient copies of a text selection from the online Fluency Supplement to distribute and review with students for additional fluency practice. If you choose to do a fluency assessment, you will assess students in Lesson 5. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.

CORE CONNECTIONS

Introduce Essential Background Information

Review Relevant Geography and History

- Tell students they will begin a literary unit called Treasure Island; the Reader for this unit is also called Treasure Island. Explain that before reading the first chapter of the Reader, you will discuss some things they may already know, as well as some important new information, that will help them understand what they will learn in this unit.

Materials

- world map
- Core Connections Timeline
- Core Connections Schooner Diagram
- Treasure Island
- Activity Pages 1.1, SR.1, SR.2
• Explain that Treasure Island is a literary text in the subgenre of adventure story. It is a specific type of adventure story—a romance. This kind of romance is not about love, but the brave feats, or acts, of heroes, such as knights or explorers, who strive for noble goals. Romance also refers to a kind of writing that focuses on mysterious characters, faraway places, exaggerated heroes, and adventure.

• Tell students that Treasure Island was written by Robert Louis Stevenson. Robert Louis Stevenson was born in Edinburgh, Scotland. Refer to the world map you prepared in advance and point out the location of Scotland on the map.

• Explain that Robert Louis Stevenson was sick for much of his life. He traveled frequently as an adult, looking for a place with a climate that was good for his health. At different times in his life, he lived in England, Scotland, and the Samoan Islands in the South Pacific. He also visited France, Germany, Switzerland, and the United States. Stevenson’s traveling experience is reflected in the imaginative settings of Treasure Island.

• Explain that the beginning of Treasure Island is set near Bristol, England. Point out the location of England on the map.

• Tell students that Treasure Island also mentions the Spanish Main, which refers to the Spanish-claimed lands along the northern coast of South America and in the Caribbean. Locate this area of South America and the Caribbean on the map.

• Tell students that Treasure Island was published in 1883. Although the novel was written in 1883, the action of Treasure Island takes place in the 1700s. In other words, Stevenson imagined the story happening over 100 years earlier.

• Refer to the Core Connections Timeline you prepared in advance. Record two new items on the Core Connections Timeline: 1883: Robert Louis Stevenson publishes Treasure Island; 1700s: setting of Treasure Island.

• Explain that in the 1700s, England was one of the most powerful countries in the world.

• Based on the information on the Core Connections Timeline, have students tell what other events they have learned about that occurred during the 1700s. (the French and Indian War; the American Revolution)

• Tell students during the late 1400s and throughout the 1500s and 1600s, rulers of European countries sent explorers to new lands, or the New World, to claim land and riches for their homelands. People were also sent to various parts of the world for trade purposes. Students who have previously received CKLA instruction may remember this from learning about kings and queens, Christopher Columbus and other explorers, and colonial America.

• Point out the following related historical events on the Core Connections Timeline: The Age of Exploration in which European countries engaged in exploration, colonization, and trade; Christopher Columbus arrives in the New World; Jamestown settled; Pilgrims land at Plymouth.
Introduce Pirates and Piracy

25 minutes

- Explain that Treasure Island features pirates. Pirates are people who use violence to attack and rob ships while the ships are at sea.

- Remind students that the Vikings, whom they learned about in Grade 3, were pirates that ruled the seas over 1,000 years ago.

- Point to the information about Vikings on the Core Connections Timeline. Explain that while the Viking Age ended around 1100 CE, the seas have always been a place of adventure, exploration, and danger.

- Explain that piracy became especially problematic in the 1500s, 1600s, and 1700s. Remind students that the 1700s is the time period during which Treasure Island takes place.

- Tell students that during that time, there were many ships at sea because of a rise in trade and exploration. Pirates would attack merchant ships in search of gold, goods, and supplies.

- Explain that pirates would attack ships as they sailed in the Atlantic Ocean. Areas where piracy was common included the east coast of the American colonies and states, and the Caribbean. As needed, point out these areas on the map.

- Tell students piracy was a significant problem because European goods were stolen and sailors were killed. Pirates, like Blackbeard, were fierce, dangerous criminals who threatened the wealth and lives of people all over Europe, particularly British sailors. Piracy became so prevalent that the British Parliament passed laws to try to resolve the problem.

- Explain that as European navies grew in size and power in the 1700s and 1800s, Europeans were able to gain the upper hand, and piracy declined dramatically after the 1830s. Record one new item on the Core Connections Timeline: 1830s: Piracy largely disappears.

- Explain that literature often reflects trends in history and culture. Treasure Island was written after piracy had largely declined, but it takes place during the “Golden Age of Piracy” (1650–1720) and reflects a fascination with a disappearing part of history. Record one new item on the Core Connections Timeline: 1650–1720: Golden Age of Piracy.

- Tell students that there have been many different books and movies that portray pirates who lived during the Golden Age of Piracy. Students may be familiar, for example, with the Pirates of the Caribbean films. Ask students to describe pirates based on what they may have already read in books or seen in films. (Answers may vary.)

- Point out that modern-day pirates still exist and are active in some parts of the world today, for example attacking large ships off the coast of Africa. Students may be familiar with the story of Richard Phillips, captain of the ship Maersk Alabama when it was seized by Somali pirates off the coast of Africa in 2009.
• Explain that books and movies often give a very graphic depiction of pirates, but there are not enough eyewitness accounts of interactions with pirates to be absolutely sure what they would have really looked like. Some pirates may have worn eye patches, for example, to keep one eye prepared for darkness at all times, so if he needed to duck below deck, he could switch the patch to his other eye and see in the dark instantly.

• Tell students that pirates are often described in books and movies as having exotic, or very unusual, pets, such as monkeys or parrots. Explain that we don’t know for sure whether pirates actually kept these animals, but if they did, it is unlikely that they were pets. Instead, they were exotic souvenirs or loot from their travels to be sold upon return home.

• Explain that a common image of a pirate includes a hook or peg leg. Piracy was a dangerous job. Injuries were frequent and could have included the loss of a limb. In those cases a hook or peg leg might have been used to replace the lost limb and could have helped a wounded pirate.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 1.1. Working in small groups, have students draw what they think a pirate may have looked like during the 1700s based on the information you have given them.

• Once students have had time to draw, bring the whole group back together to discuss the drawings. Have students explain why they included certain characteristics and relate their drawing back to the information they’ve learned about pirates.

Introduce Nautical Terms

10 minutes

• Tell students that Treasure Island focuses on a sailing adventure. Many of the book’s characters have experience and knowledge dealing with ships. There are various references to nautical terms and areas of ships throughout the story. To prepare for reading the book, tell students you will define and explain some key terms.

• Explain that pirates traveled by ship. Ships were obtained in various ways, including through theft. A common vessel, or ship, used by pirates of the 1700s was a schooner.

• Refer to the displayed Core Connections Schooner Diagram and explain that this diagram shows a 1700s-era schooner that commonly was sailed by merchants and pirates of the time on the high seas, or ocean.

• Tell students that you will explain some of the important aspects of the ship.

• First, tell students that specific directional terms describe the different areas of a ship. Explain the following directional terms and point out the related areas on the Core Connections Schooner Diagram:
  – Fore: toward the bow, or front, of the ship
  – Aft: toward the stern, or back, of the ship
- Starboard: toward the right-hand side of the ship when facing the front of the ship
- Port: toward the left-hand side of the ship when facing the front of the ship

- Next, tell students that there are different levels of a ship.

- Tell students that the top level of a ship includes the masts and sails. Explain that the masts are tall poles that hold the sails. Point out the two masts on the diagram. Explain that sails are pieces of fabric used to catch wind as a way to move a ship through the water. Point out the sails on the diagram.

- Tell students that the main level includes the main deck. This is the open-air area of a ship that is the surface, or floor, of the ship. This open-air area might have different levels. It’s where the people on the ship usually work. Point out the main deck on the diagram.

- Tell students that the lower level often includes a storage area called a hold, a kitchen, called a galley, and living quarters for the people working on the ship. Point out the section that is below deck on the diagram.

- Note that, while students cannot see the different areas below deck on the diagram, they can get an idea of what they looked like by turning to pages 108 and 109 of Treasure Island.

- Have students turn to Activity Page SR.1. Point out that students can refer to this activity page throughout the unit as they read Treasure Island. Students can also find the same diagram in the back of the Reader.

- Have students turn to Activity Page SR.2 and explain that it includes the terms and definitions discussed in this lesson, as well as additional terms and definitions that students may encounter as they read Treasure Island. Tell students they can also refer to this chart throughout the unit.

Reading

Read-Aloud: Chapter 1 “The Old Seadog and the Black Spot”

40 minutes

Introduce the Reader

5 minutes

- Ensure each student has a copy of the Reader, Treasure Island.
- Read the title of the Reader with students and explain that this Reader is a literary adventure story. Students will learn more about what makes something an adventure story later in this unit.
- Remind students Treasure Island is a work of fiction by Robert Louis Stevenson. The word fiction describes a story about events that are not real but instead come from the author’s imagination.
- Tell students that the story was first published as a book in 1883. The author decided to write the story after creating a map of an imaginary island with his 12-year-old stepson.
- Explain that the version of the story students will read is abridged, meaning it has been shortened and edited while keeping the theme, style, and plot of the original novel in place.
- Have students turn to the table of contents. Either read several chapter titles from the table of contents aloud or have students read them. Ask students to describe the information they gather by reading the chapter titles in this table of contents.
- Give students a few moments to flip through the Reader and comment on the images they see.
- Ask students to share any comments they have about the Reader.

Introduce the Chapter

5 minutes

- Tell students you will read aloud Chapter 1, “The Old Seadog and the Black Spot.” They should follow along in their Reader as you read.
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is squire.
- Have them find the word on page 2 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate squire, and then have a student read the definition.
• Explain the following:
  – The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows:
  – Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition.
    They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

• Have students reference Activity Page 1.2 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. squire, n. an English gentleman who owns a large estate or piece of land (2)
2. bearings, n. the location or position of something based on information from a compass (2)
3. sabre, n. a heavy sword with a sharp, curved edge (2)
4. cove, n. a small area along a coast sheltered by hills or mountains (2)
5. company, n. 1. visitors or guests; 2. companionship; 3. a ship’s crew and officers (2)
6. spyglass, n. a small telescope used to see things in the distance (3)
7. seafaring, adj. working, traveling, or living on the sea (3)
8. stroke, n. a sudden loss of feeling or consciousness brought on by a lack of oxygen in the brain caused by a broken or blocked blood vessel (6)
9. magistrate, n. a local government official who has some of the powers of a judge (magistrates) (7)
10. loot, n. things that have been stolen (7)
11. mutiny, n. a rebellion or uprising against those in charge on a ship (7)

- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn how this adventure story begins and to gather information about the narrator, setting, and characters.
Read “The Old Seadog and the Black Spot”

Read the chapter aloud, as students follow along in their Readers. As you read, stop to read and discuss the corresponding guided reading supports. Guided reading supports in brackets are directional and not intended to be read aloud. All other phrases and sentences are intended to be read aloud verbatim. Whenever asking a guided reading support question, explicitly encourage students to refer to the text and reread prior to offering an answer.

Throughout this lesson, and other lessons in this Teacher Guide, you will see certain questions or activities labeled either Support or Challenge. These questions and activities are not intended to be used in all situations. The items labeled Support provide additional scaffolding and should be used with classes that would benefit from additional support. The items labeled Challenge should be used with classes that would benefit from additional enrichment opportunities.
Squire Trelawney, Dr. Livesey, and the other gentlemen have asked me to record the story of Treasure Island, keeping nothing back but the bearings because there is still treasure there. Therefore, I take up my pen and go back to the time when my family ran the Admiral Benbow Inn, and the old seaman with the sabre cut on his cheek came to stay with us.

I remember the old seaman plodding to the inn door, dragging an enormous sea chest behind him. He was a tall, nut-brown man with gnarled hands and black, broken nails. He rapped on the wooden door and called for a drink. He drank it slowly, savoring the taste as he looked out at the rugged clifftop.

“This is a handy cove,” he said. “Much company?”

“Not much,” I said.

“Well, then,” he said, “this is the perfect place for me. I’ll stay here for a while. I’m a plain and simple man,” he continued. “Bacon and eggs are all I need. You can call me Captain.” Then, as if by magic, he threw down four gold pieces. “Tell me when I’ve worked through that,” he said, looking fierce.

During the daytime, in sunshine or in driving rain, the old captain hung ‘round the cove, keeping watch with a brass spyglass. In the evenings, he sat beside a roaring fire. We soon learned to let him be, lost as he was in his own private thoughts.

Every day he would ask if any seafaring men had gone by on the road. At first we thought he wanted company of his own kind, but we eventually realized he wanted to avoid them. It wasn’t long before I understood the reason for this odd behavior. He took me aside one day and promised me a penny on the first of every month if I would keep my eyes peeled for a seafaring man with one leg.

“Let me know the moment he appears!” he growled.

How the man with one leg haunted my dreams! On nights when the wind shook the house and the surf roared in the cove, I would see him in a thousand forms. Sometimes his leg would be cut off at the knee. Sometimes it would be cut off at the thigh. In my nightmares, the man with one leg chased me, calling out my name and hopping along on his good leg. He was always just a matter of inches behind me. I paid pretty dear for my monthly penny in the shape of those terrible dreams.

Often, in the evenings, the old captain would sing a wild sea song and force the inn guests to sing the chorus. On these occasions, it seemed as if the house was quaking as the words echoed within its walls. The old seaman’s stories about bloodthirsty pirates, ferocious storms at sea, and wild deeds on the Spanish Main terrified our guests. He must have lived among some of the most wicked men ever to sail the seas.

C Inferential Make an inference about why the captain says “this is the perfect place for me” and justify your inference with evidence from the text.

» Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text. The captain might think the inn is perfect because he is looking for a quiet place to stay. It is possible he doesn’t want to be bothered by other people or he might be hiding from someone. One could draw these inferences because the captain declares the inn as the perfect place for him after the narrator replies they don’t have much company there.

Support [Explain that the captain gives the narrator money as payment up front in exchange for food and lodging at the inn. When the captain says, “Tell me when I’ve worked through that,” he is saying that he wants the narrator to tell him once he has spent all of his money.]

D [Read the rest of page 3 aloud.]

E Support Remind students that Spanish Main is the name for the Spanish-claimed lands along the coast of South America and in the Caribbean. Refer to the world map on display from the Core Connections lesson as needed.

F Literal What details can you gather about the narrator so far?

» Answers may vary, but should include that the story is told in first person by someone whose family ran the Admiral Benbow Inn; the story is being told by this person at the request of Squire Trelawney, Dr. Livesey, and other gentlemen, who have not been introduced yet; the narrator is interacting with a captain who has come to stay at the inn.

G Literal What details can you gather about the setting so far?

» Answers may vary, but should include that the story is set sometime in the past; the story begins at the Admiral Benbow Inn.
A [Read pages 4 and 5 aloud.]

B Support [Ask students to provide a meaning of the word ominously based on how it is used in the text. If students cannot reach the correct definition, explain that ominously is an adverb meaning giving a sign something bad will happen. Then explain that this could be determined using evidence from the text, such as “the captain would raise his voice and stare,” “until he retreated,” “the terror in which my father lived greatly hastened his death.”]

He stayed for several months and never offered us any further payment. Whenever my father mentioned his bill, the captain would raise his voice and stare ominously at him until he retreated. I am sure the terror in which my father lived greatly hastened his death.

One morning, while the captain was out walking and taking in the salty sea air, another seafaring man arrived. I was setting the breakfast table when the door opened and the man stepped in. He was a pale, rascally looking creature, and I noticed he was missing two fingers.

"Is this here table for my mate Bill?" he asked, pointing to a table that had indeed been set for our secretive guest. It was not a straightforward question, and he uttered those words with more than a hint of sarcasm.

I told him the table was for a man who called himself the captain.

"Has he got a nasty scar on one cheek?" he inquired.

"Yes," I replied.

"Well, that would be my mate Bill. Is he here?" he continued.

"He's out taking a stroll," I explained.

The stranger announced that he would wait for his mate to return. Then he stood inside the door, peering out like a hungry cat waiting for a mouse. After a while, the captain strode in.

"Bill!" shouted the stranger.

The captain spun around. He had the look of a man who had seen a ghost.

"Black Dog!" he gasped.
“And who else?” returned the other. “Black Dog’s come to see his old shipmate Billy Bones.”

“Now look here,” hissed the captain. “You’ve managed to run me down. What’s your business?”

“I’ll have a drink,” said Black Dog. “Then we’ll sit down and talk square, like old mates.”

They sat down, and for a long time I could hear nothing but low mumbling. Gradually their voices grew louder until the interaction became a cacophony of unpleasant exchanges. This was followed by an explosion of crashing sounds—the chair and table went over, a clash of steel followed, and then a cry of pain. The next instant I saw Black Dog in full flight, and the captain in hot pursuit, both men with sabres drawn. Blood streamed from Black Dog’s left shoulder. At the door, the captain aimed one last tremendous blow, which would certainly have struck Black Dog had it not been intercepted by the inn’s signboard.

Black Dog, in spite of his wound, disappeared over the hill in half a minute. The captain stood staring like a bewildered man. At last he turned, staggered, gasped for breath, and grabbed the door with one hand.

“Jim!” he croaked. “Water!”

I ran to fetch him water, but as I fumbled with the jug, I heard a loud crash. Running back, I saw the captain lying on the floor. Immediately I heard my mother’s footsteps on the stairs. Moments later she was standing beside me. Together, we gently raised the captain’s head. It was clear that he needed a doctor, so we sent for Dr. Livesey. Then, as carefully as we could, we moved the captain into the parlor.

Inferential  Who is Billy Bones?

Support  The seafaring man comes looking for a man named Bill with a nasty scar on one cheek. The seafaring man also calls the man Billy Bones. The narrator notes that the man who came to stay at the inn had a sabre cut on his cheek and asks to be called Captain.

Support [Ask students to provide a meaning of the word cacophony based on how it is used in the text. If students cannot reach the correct definition, explain that cacophony is a noun meaning a mixture of harsh, unpleasant sounds. This could be determined using evidence from the text, such as “gradually their voices grew louder,” “unpleasant exchanges,” and the fact that the two men begin to fight.]

Evaluate  What kind of relationship do you think the captain and Black Dog have? How do you know?

Answers may vary, but may include that they do not have a good relationship, even though they are old shipmates. The captain looks like he has seen a ghost when he hears Black Dog call out his name, likely because the captain is not expecting to hear Black Dog’s voice. Black Dog may have been who the captain was on the lookout for and trying to avoid during his stay at the inn. The captain hisses at Black Dog when asking why he has come to find him (run him down). The fact that the two men sit down and talk for a long time, with their voices gradually getting louder, and then eventually fight with each other indicates they do not have a good relationship.

Inferential  Who is narrating the story and how do you know?

Jim is narrating the story. We know because the captain says, “Jim! Water!” and then the narrator says, “I ran to fetch him water.”
Shortly after Dr. Livesey arrived, the captain opened his eyes and looked about.

“Where’s Black Dog?” he mumbled.

“There’s no Black Dog here,” the doctor said. “You’ve had a stroke. Now lie back and rest.”

Dr. Livesey drew some blood, and the old sailor fell asleep.

“He needs to rest for at least a week,” said the doctor emphatically. “Another stroke will surely kill him.”

Later, when the captain woke up, his first words were, “Black Dog!”

“Jim,” he moaned, “you know I’ve been good to you. I’m pretty low and deserted by all. You’ll help me, won’t you?”

“But the doctor—” I began.

“Doctors! What do they know?” he growled. “What does that doctor know about seafaring men like me?”

Somewhat reluctantly, I agreed to help him. When I offered him water, he greedily gulped it down.

“Aye,” said he, “that’s better. Now, then, did that doctor say how long I’m supposed to lie here wasting time?”

“A week, at least,” I said.

“Thunder!” he cried. “Out of the question! They’d have the black spot on me by then.”

He attempted to sit up but fell back, weak and helpless on the bed. Then, after further contemplation, he spoke to me again.
"Jim," he said, "you saw Black Dog? He's a bad 'un, but there's worse than him after me. I hope I may get away from them yet. If I can't, and if they put the black spot on me, it's my old sea chest they're after. You go and see that doctor and tell him to send all hands—magistrates and such—to the Admiral Benbow. Tell him Captain Flint's men are here—or all that's left of the old crew. I was Flint's first mate, and I'm the only one who knows the place where he hid his loot. But don't tell the doctor unless they get me with the black spot, or you see Black Dog again—"

At that moment, he paused before continuing, "Or a seafaring man with one leg. Keep an eye out for him above all!" he concluded.

"But what is the black spot, Captain?" I asked.

"That's a summons, mate. Mutiny! Keep your wits about you, Jim, and I'll share with you equals, upon my honor," he continued.

His voice grew weaker as he said this, and soon he fell into a heavy sleep. I should have told the story to the doctor, but my poor father died quite suddenly that evening, which naturally put all other matters aside.

The day after my father's funeral, I was standing at the door full of sad thoughts when I saw a blind man slowly walking up the road. He wore a green mask over his eyes, and he tapped the ground with a stick. He was hunched, as if from age, and wore a hooded sea cloak.

As he drew near, he called out, "Will anyone inform a poor blind man who has lost his sight in the defense of England—God bless King George—where he may now be?"

"You are at the Admiral Benbow Inn," I explained.

"I hear a young voice," said he. "Will you lend me your hand and lead me in?"
A [Read page 8 aloud.]

Support A vise is a tool with flat parts that open and close to hold something very firmly. Here, the blind man grips the narrator’s hand very firmly.

B Support Who is Bill?
» the captain, or Billy Bones

C Inferential What do you think the blind man gives to the captain?
» Answers may vary, but students may deduce that it is the “black spot” (i.e., the note or piece of paper indicating a mutiny), which the captain had dreaded.

I held out my hand, and the blind man gripped it like a vise. I struggled to escape, but he pulled me close.

“Now, boy,” the blind man said through gritted teeth, “take me to the captain.”

“But—” I protested.

“Take me in NOW!” he commanded. He gave my arm a twist that made me cry out in agony.

I’ve never heard a voice so utterly cruel and cold as that man’s. I obeyed him without further hesitation. We walked together toward the room where the captain was resting.

“When I’m in view, cry out, ‘Here’s a friend for you, Bill!’” he instructed me. As I opened the door, I repeated his words in a trembling voice.

The captain attempted to rise, but he was too weak. Then I saw the blind man slip something into the captain’s palm.
“Now that's done,” said the blind man. With incredible nimbleness, he scurried out of the inn and back along the road. I could hear his stick tapping as he hurried away.

The captain gazed at the piece of paper the blind man had given him.

“Ten o'clock!” he cried. “That's six hours from now. We'll do them yet!” With that, he lurched forward and managed to get to his feet. Then, quite suddenly, he reeled about and put one hand to his throat. For a moment or two, I watched him as he swayed from side to side before crashing to the floor. I hurried to assist him, but it was too late.

My mother descended the stairs and saw the old seaman lying on the floor. I explained to her as best I could what had just happened. After much discussion, we decided we should open the captain's sea chest and take the money he owed us. First, we had to retrieve the key from the captain.

The captain lay on his back with his eyes open and one arm outstretched. By his hand was the slip of paper, marked with the anticipated black spot. Scrawled on it was the message, “You have till ten tonight.”

I searched the dead man's pockets, but could not discover the key to the chest.

“Perhaps it's 'round his neck,” suggested my mother anxiously. I opened up his shirt, and there it was, hanging from a piece of string.

I cut the string with the old captain's knife, and then my mother and I raced upstairs intent upon opening the captain's sea chest.

Inferential What is this note and what does it mean?

- The note is the black spot and it means that the seafaring men are declaring a mutiny against the captain. Based on what Bill told the narrator about the black spot, the note is ordering Bill to appear somewhere or do something before ten that night. If he doesn’t, the rest of the crew plan to declare a mutiny against him. They want his sea chest and to find out where Flint's treasure is.

Support Mutiny means a rebellion or uprising against those in charge on a ship.

Evaluative Why are Jim and his mother in such a hurry to open the captain's sea chest?

- The captain told Jim that the other seafaring men are after his sea chest. Jim also knows that the men will be returning at ten that night. Jim and his mother likely want to get to the captain's sea chest before the men return.

Support Jim and his mother want to open the sea chest to retrieve the money that he owes them.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

- Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the Character Chart you prepared in advance.

- Explain that the names of important characters from Treasure Island are listed on the chart.

- Tell students that, after reading each chapter in Treasure Island, they will record key details or information revealed in that chapter about significant characters in the far right column of the chart.

- Tell students they will record the chapter number(s) in the far left column of the chart to indicate which chapter(s) the information relates to.

- Explain that students will first record information about Billy Bones, Black Dog, and Jim Hawkins, characters introduced in Chapter 1.

- Use the information in the following chart to engage students in a discussion about each of the characters introduced in the chapter. Tell students to draw on specific details in their responses, such as descriptions of appearance, words, or actions from the text. You may wish to elaborate on points in the chart with the following information when discussing Jim Hawkins:

  - Jim Hawkins is the narrator of Treasure Island. He seems to be a young boy, as he is described as having a young voice by the blind man. He lives with his parents and helps them run the Admiral Benbow Inn. His father dies during the first chapter. Jim seems somewhat naïve, meaning he lacks experience or realistic judgment. He leads two seafaring men to the captain, even though he knows the captain is trying to hide out from other seafaring men.

- Then, record the information on the Character Chart. At the same time, have students record the information in the chart on Activity Page 1.3. If necessary, tell students to leave space for additional entries in future lessons.

Word Work: Driving

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “During the daytime, in sunshine or in driving rain, the old captain hung ‘round the cove, keeping watch with a brass spyglass.”

2. Say the word driving with me.

3. Driving means violent or with great force or speed.

4. The strong winds and heavy rain of a driving storm made us retreat inside to the basement.

5. What else could be described as driving? Be sure to use the word driving in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “ _____ could be described as driving because . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word driving?
   » adjective

[Use a Multiple-Meaning Word activity for follow-up. Tell students the word driving can have multiple meanings. Share the following with students.]

Meaning #1: driving (adjective)—violent or with great force or speed

Meaning #2: driving (verb)—operating a vehicle

Meaning #3: driving (verb)—causing a particular reaction or emotional response

I am going to read several sentences. Listen to the context, or the text surrounding driving in the sentence, for clues as to which meaning is being used. When you think a sentence is an example of Meaning #1, hold up one finger. When you think a sentence is an example of Meaning #2, hold up two fingers. When you think a sentence is an example of Meaning #3, hold up three fingers.

1. My little brother was driving me crazy while I was trying to read.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of the lesson, students will be able to identify the significant events of a chapter and describe them in their own words.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will have reviewed the correct use of to be verbs and modal auxiliary verbs.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify the meaning of words with the root bio and use these words correctly in sentences.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify the features of an adventure story.
ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to understand what happens when the pirates search the inn and how Jim joins forces with the doctor and the squire to plan a treasure-hunting voyage.

Grammar

- Prepare and display the following Subject-to-be Verb Agreement and Modal Auxiliary Verbs Posters. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of each in the digital components for this unit.

Subject-to be Verb Agreement

To be verbs are linking verbs that link, or connect, the subject to the predicate without showing action.

Modal Auxiliary Verbs

A modal auxiliary verb:
- is a helping verb and cannot stand alone
- never changes form—you do not need to add -s for the third-person singular subject
- is followed by a verb, which also does not change in form
  - She can speak French.
  - It will rain tomorrow.

Imagine a character gets lost in a remote, isolated area like the jungle, desert, mountains, forest, tundra, or on an island. You may also choose a specific place for the setting of your story. Write a one- to two-page story in which you show how the character survives.

Use the following questions to guide your thinking and writing:

- What is the setting like?
- What challenges must the character overcome? What kinds of problems must the character solve?
- What traits and values, or characteristics, does the character display? What thoughts and feelings does the character have?
- What elements of danger are present?
- What people or animals does the character meet?
- Does the character return home?
- How does the story end?
Whole Group: Chapter 2 “The Sea Chest and the Blind Man” 40 minutes

Review 5 minutes

• Using the Answer Key at the back of this Teacher Guide, review student responses to Activity Page 1.4 that was assigned for homework in the previous lesson.

Introduce the Chapter 5 minutes

• Tell students they will read Chapter 2, “The Sea Chest and the Blind Man.”
• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
• Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
• Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is farthing.
• Have them find the word on page 10 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
• Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate farthing, and then have a student read the definition.
• Explain the following:
  – The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun–n.; verb–v.; adjective–adj.; adverb–adv.
  – Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.
• Have students reference Activity Page 2.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. farthing, n. a coin worth less than a penny formerly used in Great Britain (10)
2. gargoyle, n. a stone carving of a strange figure used as decoration on a building, usually a cathedral or Gothic structure (13)
3. ensue, v. to follow right after another event (ensued) (13)
4. impending, adj. about to occur (14)
5. scarper, v. to flee or run away (14)
6. stun, v. to shock or amaze (stunned) (16)
7. buccaneer, n. a pirate (16)
8. bulk, n. most; the larger part of something (18)
9. cache, n. a hiding place for supplies or treasures (18)
10. hummock, n. a rounded hill or mound (18)
11. fathom, n. a length of about 6 feet used to measure water depth (fathoms) (18)
12. cabin boy, n. someone hired to wait on the passengers and crew of a ship (18)
13. ransack, v. to search thoroughly, causing damage or disorder (ransacked) (20)
14. schooner, n. a sailing ship with two or more masts (21)

[Have students read page 10 silently.]

B  Literal Summarize the action on the first page.

   - Jim and his mother have opened the sea chest and are trying to recover the money they are owed.

   Support Who owes Jim’s mother money and for what?

   - Captain Bill owes Jim’s mother money for staying at the inn.

C  Evaluative What do we learn about Jim’s mother’s morals, or beliefs about what is right and wrong?

   - She is honest because she says she will only take the money she is owed rather than all the contents of the sea chest.

Chapter 2

The Sea Chest and the Blind Man

A

A strong, pungent smell of tobacco and tar rose from the interior of the old sea chest as we opened it. On the top was an elegant suit of clothes, never worn. Under that was a tin, a quadrant, tobacco, a bar of silver, West Indian shells, a Spanish watch, several compasses, and two pistols. At the bottom of the chest lay a bundle wrapped in oilcloth and a canvas bag that gave forth the jingle of coins.

“I pride myself on being an honest woman,” my mother said. “I’ll take what I’m owed and not a farthing more or less.”

She began to count the money into a bag. As she counted, we heard a familiar sound. It was the tap-tapping of the blind man’s stick upon the frozen road. It drew nearer while we held our breath. Then we heard the blind man’s voice, along with several others:

B

C

With nothing but sea and sky in sight, sailors in the 1700s used a navigational tool called a quadrant to find their way on the open waters. This quarter-circle shaped instrument measured the angle between the North Star and the horizon, which sailors used to determine their distance north or south of the equator.
She began to count the money into a bag. As she counted, we heard a familiar sound.
A [Have students read page 12 silently.]

B Literal As Jim and his mother leave the inn in a hurry, what do they take with them from the captain’s chest?
   » Jim takes a bundle wrapped in oilcloth, and his mother takes the money she has so far.

C Evaluative How does the description of the natural setting reflect the situation in which Jim and his mother find themselves?
   » Just as the storm clouds appear threatening in the sky, the appearance of the “shadowy figures”—the pirates—threaten the safety of Jim and his mother. Nature helps Jim and his mother because just as they run from the house, the moon peeps out from behind the clouds, and the moonlight allows them to see the ditch, where they hide safely and listen.

Support Describe the setting as Jim and his mother dash outside.
   » It is night and dark, with threatening storm clouds, but there is light from the moon peaking out from the clouds.

“Mother!” I whispered nervously, “please hurry up!”
   “I’ll hold onto what I have so far!” she exclaimed.
   “I’ll take this to square the count,” I informed her as I picked up the bundle wrapped in oilcloth. Then we groped our way downstairs, threw open the back door, and ran out into the darkness of night—two desperate souls—unsure of what to do next.

A silvery moon peeped out from behind ominous storm clouds. The moonlight allowed us to glimpse the ditch that lay behind the inn. Without hesitating, we made our way toward it. There we waited, breathing in the cool night air, out of sight but within earshot of the inn.

Before long, a number of shadowy figures appeared. A silvery moon peeped out from behind ominous storm clouds.
D “Search him!” shrieked the blind man. “Find the key—or you’ll answer to me!”

There was a lengthy pause, and then another cry. “Someone got here before us! The key’s gone!”

“Then find the sea chest and smash it to pieces!” screeched the blind man. The sound of his voice sent a cold shiver running down my spine.

I heard a commotion and the sound of footsteps coming from the upstairs area of the inn. Moments later the window to the captain’s room was flung open. Such force caused the glass to shatter and break. Then a man with a face resembling that of an angry gargoyle leaned out of the window into the moonlight.

“Pew!” he shouted. “It’s like I told ya already. Someone’s been here before us! They rifled through Bill’s chest!”

“Is it there?” Pew roared.

“There’s some money,” said the gargoyle-faced man. “Forget the money!” Pew spat. “Flint’s map, I mean!”

“Blast it!” cried the blind man. “It’s that boy! I should have dealt with him earlier. He was here just a few minutes ago—I know it. Scatter, lads, and hunt the rascal down!”

A great to-do ensued in our old inn. Furniture was thrown about and beds were stripped. Doors were forcefully kicked in until finally the men came out and declared that I was nowhere to be found.

E [Have students read page 13 silently.]

F Inferential Does the blind man, Pew, seem satisfied with finding the money from the chest? Cite evidence from the text.

» No, Pew does not seem satisfied. When told that there is some money, Pew says “Forget the money!” He is searching for something else, Flint’s map.

G Inferential Why does Pew tell the men to search for Jim?

» He suspects Jim has taken Flint’s map.
A  [Have students read pages 14 and 15 silently.]

B  Challenge Imagery is used on page 14 to describe the pirates. Identify the image and explain its significance.

> “Pew, however, attempted to convince the others to hold their ground and not flee like scalded rats” (paragraph 3). Comparing the men to rats suggests that the men are cowardly. Rats are also pests that scavenge and feed off the trash of others, so this comparison is insulting. The simile not flee like scalded rats helps readers visualize the frenzied scene as men run in fear and it sounds like something Pew would yell in anger at his men. He often belittles them to make them follow his orders.

Just then we heard a whistle in the darkness. I guessed it was some sort of signal. The men had left a guard, and he was warning them of impending danger.

> “There's Dirk,” one of them pronounced. “We'll have to scarper and quick, mates!”

Pew, however, attempted to convince the others to hold their ground and not flee like scalded rats.

> “The boy can't have gone far,” he urged desperately. “That rascal was here no more than a few minutes ago. Scatter and look for him, you lily-livered cowards! Oh, if I had my eyes, what I wouldn't do right now!”

Two of the men obeyed Pew and began to search around the exterior of the inn, but the others stood in the road, unsure of their next move. Pew sensed the men's confusion.

> “Get to it!” he yelled. “If we find what we came for, we'll all be as rich as kings. Don't stand there skulking! If you had the pluck of a weevil in a biscuit, you would catch him.”

> “Hang it, Pew!” grumbled one of the men. “Don't you think we should take the money and run?”

> “He could be anywhere hereabouts,” moaned another. “Let's call it a day and run before we get caught!”

Pew's anger escalated and he began swinging his walking stick. He struck at the others right and left in his blindness. They, in turn, cursed the blind man, threatened him in horrid terms, and tried in vain to catch his stick and take it from him.

This quarrel saved us. For while it was raging, another sound came from the top of the nearby hill—galloping horses. A pistol shot came from the hedge. That must have been the final signal warning the men of serious danger, for they scattered like rabbits in every direction. In half a minute, only Pew remained.

He tapped up and down the road in a frenzy, calling out to his comrades.

"Johnny!" he shouted. "Black Dog! Dirk! Don't leave old Pew here without eyes to guide him!"

At that moment, five riders swept down the hill at full gallop. Pew sensed he was in their path and cried out, but it was too late. One of the horses knocked him to the ground, and another trampled over him. Pew made one last gasp and then lay silent on the ground. I saw that the horsemen were actually officers. One of them dismounted and checked on Pew, but there was nothing to be done.

I jumped up out of the ditch, and after conversing with the officers and calming my mother, I made my way to Dr. Livesey's home.

C Evaluative What does Jim mean when he says, “This quarrel saved us.”

» The quarrel delays and confuses the men, so they don't search far beyond the exterior of the inn. If the men had not been delayed, they might have found Jim and his mother hiding. During the confusion of the quarrel, there is also the sound of galloping horses and a warning shot is fired to warn the men that they need to flee.
I found Dr. Livesey dining with Squire Trelawney. I told them everything that had happened and showed them the bundle I had retrieved from the sea chest. At first they were stunned and rather silent, but eventually they were able to think clearly, and we began to converse.

"Have you heard of this Captain Flint?" Dr. Livesey asked Squire Trelawney.

"Heard of him!" the squire cried. "Of course I have! Why, John Flint was the bloodthirstiest pirate that ever flew the Jolly Roger. In fact, Blackbeard was a child compared to Flint!"

"Well," said the doctor, "suppose this packet tells us where the old buccaneer hid his treasure. What would you do then, may I ask?"

"I would fit out a sailing ship in Bristol," the squire declared confidently. "I'd take you and Jim Hawkins along, and I would find that treasure, even if I had to search for an entire year!"

With that said, the doctor cut the bundle open. It contained two things: a book and a sealed paper. Printed on the first page of the book were the words: Billy Bones, his account. The next twenty pages were filled with dates, sums of money, and little crosses. One line read, "June 12th, 1745, seventy pounds, off Caracas." Next to this entry were six tiny crosses.
With that said, the doctor cut the bundle open. It contained two things: a book and a sealed paper.
“What does it mean?” I asked.

“This is the old captain’s account book,” said the squire. “This entry tells us that the pirates got seventy pounds of loot after they attacked a ship off the coast of Caracas on the Spanish Main.”

Next, we inspected the sealed paper. The doctor opened it carefully, and a map fell to the floor. It was a map of an island, labeled with latitude and longitude, water depths, names of hills, bays, and inlets, and all the details needed to bring a ship safely to anchorage upon its shores.

It seemed to me that the island was shaped like a portly dragon. From the map, we could see that the island was about nine miles long and five wide. It had two harbors, and there was a large hill in the center marked ‘Spyglass.’

Several things had been added to the map in red ink. There were three crosses—two on the north part of the island and one in the southwest. Next to one of these, written in a small, neat hand, very different from the captain’s, were the words: Bulk of treasure here.

On the back of the map, in the same hand, we read:

Tall tree, Spyglass shoulder, bearing a point to the N. of N.N.E. Skeleton Island E.S.E. and by E. Ten feet. The bar silver is in the north cache. Find it by the trend of the east hummock, ten fathoms south of the crag with the face on it. The arms are in the sand hill, N. point of north inlet cape, bearing E. and a quarter N. —J.F.

It did not make much sense to me, but the squire was delighted.

“Tomorrow I’ll set off for Bristol,” he effused. “In ten days we’ll have the best ship and crew in England. Hawkins shall come with us as cabin boy. You, Livesey, will be the ship’s doctor, and I will be the admiral.”
Several things had been added to the map in red ink.
A  Inferential  What plan does the squire propose?
   » The squire proposes that he go to Bristol to get a ship and crew, and then they will all set off in search of the treasure. He would be the admiral, Livesey would be the ship's doctor, and Jim would be the cabin boy.

B  Inferential  What is the doctor worried about?
   » He is worried that the squire will tell people about the treasure map.

We'll have no difficulty in finding the spot, and we'll have money to roll in ever after!”

“I'll accompany you,” said the doctor. “And I hope Jim will, too. There's only one man who concerns me.”

“Name the dog, sir!” cried the squire.

“You!” replied the doctor. “You cannot hold your tongue. Those fellows who ransacked the inn tonight are looking for this map—and for Flint's treasure. We have to be extremely careful. You go to Bristol and take my two loyal servants, Joyce and Hunter, with you. Remember, do not breathe a word of what we've found.”

“Quite right!” said the squire. "You can rely on me to be as silent as the grave!"

So the squire, along with Joyce and Hunter, set off for Bristol. I stayed on at the hall with the squire's gamekeeper, old Redruth. After a couple of weeks, Dr. Livesey received a letter from the squire.
Dear Livesey,

The ship lies at anchor, ready for sea. You never saw a sweeter schooner. Her name is the Hispaniola. I acquired her through my old friend Blandly.

At first, finding a crew troubled me. I wanted twenty men, and I had difficulty finding half a dozen, but then fortune brought me the man I required. I fell into talk with him on the dock. He keeps a tavern, and I found he knew all the seafaring men in Bristol. It seems he lost his health ashore, and was hoping to secure a position as a cook at sea. He hobbled down there that morning, he said, to enjoy the salty sea air. I was touched by his story and engaged him on the spot to be the ship’s cook. Long John Silver he is called. He has lost a leg in his country’s service.

Between Long John Silver and myself we got together a fine company of seamen. Silver even got rid of two men I had already engaged. He explained that they were just the type of men we needed to avoid for an adventure of this importance.

I am in magnificent health and spirits, eating like a bull, sleeping like a tree. Yet I am eager to lift anchor. So do come quickly.

John Trelawney

P.S. My old friend Blandly has agreed to send another ship after us if we don’t turn up by the end of August. He found an admirable fellow for captain—a stiff man, but, in all other respects, a treasure. Long John Silver has unearthed a very competent mate.

C  Inferential  Why does the squire hire Long John Silver?

» He says he was touched by Silver’s story. The squire also has trouble finding enough men to join the crew, so the squire hires Silver because he knows a lot of people who are willing to join the trip.

D  Inferential  Why does Trelawney ask his friend, Blandly, to send another ship?

» Trelawney is afraid something may go wrong, so he asks Blandly to search for them if they don’t return from their voyage in a reasonable amount of time.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

• Use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Inferential When authors give details that refer to future events, it is called foreshadowing. In this chapter, details suggest there might be some trouble for the voyagers in the future. What clues in the text suggest this?

   » Answers may vary, but should include the doctor worries the squire will reveal too much about the map and journey; Long John Silver gets rid of two men Dr. Livesey had hired; Dr. Livesey asks Blandly to prepare a ship to rescue them if necessary.

Word Work: Ransack

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “Those fellows who ransacked the inn tonight are looking for this map—and for Flint’s treasure.”

2. Say the word ransack with me.

3. Ransack means to search thoroughly, causing damage or disorder.

4. The robbers ransacked the apartment looking for jewelry.

5. What are some other examples of things being ransacked? Be sure to use the word ransack in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “They ransacked _____ looking for . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word ransack?

   » verb

[Use a Synonyms activity for follow-up.] What does the word ransack mean? What are some words that are synonyms, or words that have a similar meaning, of ransack? [Prompt students to provide words like search, plunder, hunt, scour, rummage, and loot.] With a partner, create a sentence for each of the synonyms of ransack he or she provides.

Review Subject-to be Verb Agreement and Modal Auxiliary Verbs

• Tell students that today they will review to be verbs and modal auxiliary verbs. Remind students that they learned these during the American Revolution unit.

• Refer to the Subject-to be Verb Agreement Poster and Modal Auxiliary Verbs Poster you prepared in advance. Present the Subject-to be Verb Agreement Poster in the following manner:
  – Remind students that to be verbs are linking verbs that link, or connect, the subject to the predicate without showing action.
  – Have a student read each singular subject, its to be verb agreement in the present tense, and then the corresponding example sentence.
  – Have a student read each plural subject, its to be verb agreement in the present tense, and then the corresponding example sentence.
  – Then have a student create one sentence orally that correctly uses a to be verb either in the singular or plural form.

• Present the Modal Auxiliary Verbs Poster in the following manner:
  – Remind students that modal auxiliary verbs are helping verbs. A modal auxiliary verb cannot stand alone and does not change form. A modal auxiliary verb is followed by a verb, which also does not change in form.
  – Have a student read the modal auxiliary verbs used to express ability in present tense and the corresponding example sentences.
  – Then have another student read the modal auxiliary verbs used to express ability in past tense and the corresponding example sentences.
  – Then have a student create one sentence orally that correctly uses a modal auxiliary verb to express ability either in present or past tense.
  – Have a student read the modal auxiliary verbs used to express possibility.
  – Then have a student create one sentence orally that correctly uses a modal auxiliary verb to express possibility.

• As time allows, have students turn to Activity Page 2.2. Tell students they will practice using to be verbs and modal auxiliary verbs.

• Direct students to the first section of the activity page and read the directions aloud. Do the same for the remaining sections.

• Have students complete Activity Page 2.2 for homework, or if you feel they need more assistance, complete the activity page as a teacher-guided or partner activity.

Note

The copula be—the to be verb—and the third-person singular inflection pose problems for English learners at all levels. Thus, detailed treatment is given to the present tense forms of the to be verb.
MORPHOLOGY

Introduce Root bio

- Tell students today they will learn about the Greek root bio.
- Remind students a root is a main element of a word that forms the base of its meaning.
- Write the Greek root bio on the Roots Poster on display in the classroom and explain that it is pronounced /bie*oe/.
- Explain that bio means “life.” Add the meaning to the poster as well.
- Tell students that words with the root bio can be nouns, verbs, or adjectives.
- Write biology on the board/chart paper. Briefly discuss the part of speech and the meaning of the word. Then use it in a sentence. (Biology is a noun. It means the study of life. When we learn about biology, we learn about how plants and animals live.)
- Have students provide sentences using the word biology. (Answers may vary.)
- Write biography on the board/chart paper. Briefly discuss the part of speech and the meaning of the word. Then use it in a sentence. (Biography is a noun. It means a history of a person’s life. I enjoyed reading Robert Louis Stevenson’s biography.)
- Have students provide sentences using the word biography. (Answers may vary.)
- Continue in this manner for the remaining bio words, using the following chart as a guide.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 2.3. Briefly review the directions. Complete the first two sentences together as a class. Have students complete the rest of Activity Page 2.3 for homework, or if you feel they need more assistance, complete the entire activity page as a teacher-guided activity.

Materials

- Activity Page 2.3

Note

You will not write the information in the shaded columns on the board/chart paper, as that information is intended for use during oral instruction. Complete as many examples as time permits.
WRITING

Introduce an Adventure Story

- Explain that there are many types of stories, including fairy tales, personal narratives, science fiction stories, biographies, mysteries, and adventure stories.

- Explain that Treasure Island is an adventure story.

- Direct students’ attention to the Features of an Adventure Story Chart you prepared in advance. Review the features with students by having different students read aloud the features.

- Explain that adventure stories have a memorable hero, who may go on a quest or solve a mystery.

- Explain that adventure stories usually have a unique setting. Remind students that the setting is where and when the story takes place.

- Have students identify the setting of Treasure Island as it is described in the first chapter. (Admiral Benbow Inn)

- Explain that adventure stories often describe a particular setting like an inn, but they rarely give a date or a specific place. In Treasure Island, the inn could be anywhere in England and Treasure Island could be anywhere in the Atlantic Ocean. Adventure stories’ settings are both specific (an inn) and general (lack a date or the specific location of that inn).

- Explain that adventure stories often take place in a faraway place and time. They require readers to use their imaginations.

- Ask students to think about the first two chapters of Treasure Island. Ask whether there seems to be more focus and attention paid to the plot or the personal feelings of the characters. (the plot)

Materials

- Features of an Adventure Story Chart
- Treasure Island
- Writing Prompt
• Ask students to provide evidence from the text that shows the action-based plot is more important than the characters’ feelings. (The narrator focuses on the events or action in the story. He rarely tells us how he feels, although sometimes we can guess how he feels from his actions. For example, Jim describes how the old captain receives the black spot and how he and his mother hide in the ditch as the pirates ransack the inn but does not detail his feelings about the events.)

• Have students name some of the dangerous elements so far in Treasure Island. (threatening visitors at the inn, violent fights, treasure-seeking pirates)

• Explain that adventure stories usually involve a quest, mystery, or task that must be accomplished by the hero of the story.

• Have students identify the mystery that must be solved in Treasure Island, based on the first two chapters. (searching for and finding the buried treasure)

• Tell students that adventure stories often share common themes, which include bravery, duty, trustworthiness, loyalty, and curiosity. Ask students if they have noticed any of these themes so far in Treasure Island. (For example, curiosity could be a theme in Treasure Island, as many of the characters seem very curious about the buried treasure and its location.)

• Tell students they will write their own original adventure story over the course of this unit.

• Explain that, while students will use Treasure Island as a model, they will not write a pirate story, but will instead write another type of adventure story.

• Display the Writing Prompt you prepared in advance and read it aloud.

• As time permits, have students brainstorm the setting for their adventure story using the prompt. Encourage students to continue thinking about a setting for their adventure story on their own.

  Support As needed, have students record brainstorming ideas in their writing journals.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify key moments in the plot and explain how figurative language is used in the story.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to brainstorm and create a character.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

  Read carefully to explain how the use of figurative language helps tell the story.

Writing

- Display the Features of an Adventure Story Chart from Lesson 2.
- Display the Writing Prompt from Lesson 2.
- Prepare and display the following Character Sketch Poster. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Materials

- Treasure Island
- Activity Pages 1.3, 3.1

READING

Partner: Chapter 2 “The Sea Chest and the Blind Man” 40 minutes

Review the Chapter

- Tell students they will reread Chapter 2, “The Sea Chest and the Blind Man.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- You may wish to review the following vocabulary words before you reread the chapter:
1. farthing, n. a coin worth less than a penny formerly used in Great Britain (10)
2. gargoyle, n. a stone carving of a strange figure used as decoration on a building, usually a cathedral or Gothic structure (13)
3. ensue, v. to follow right after another event (ensued) (13)
4. impending, adj. about to occur (14)
5. scarper, v. to flee or run away (14)
6. stun, v. to shock or amaze (stunned) (16)
7. buccaneer, n. a pirate (16)
8. bulk, n. most; the larger part of something (18)
9. cache, n. a hiding place for supplies or treasures (18)
10. hummock, n. a rounded hill or mound (18)
11. fathom, n. a length of about 6 feet used to measure water depth (fathoms) (18)
12. cabin boy, n. someone hired to wait on the passengers and crew of a ship (18)
13. ransack, v. to search thoroughly, causing damage or disorder (ransacked) (20)
14. schooner, n. a sailing ship with two or more masts (21)

• Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if they forget its meaning.

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

   Read carefully to explain how the use of figurative language helps tell the story.

Read “The Sea Chest and the Blind Man” 20 minutes

Pair students to read and discuss the chapter. We encourage you to differentiate, assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Have students make a note of vocabulary, phrases, or concepts they do not understand, noting the page number, so they may seek clarification. As students read, circulate among the class, monitoring students’ focus and progress.

At this point in the school year, some or all of your students are likely ready for the challenge of reading the entire chapter independently to themselves, especially since this lesson is a reread of the chapter read as a whole group during the previous lesson. We encourage you to differentiate, assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 3.1 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read.

Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson
15 minutes

- Collect Activity Page 3.1 to review and grade at a later time.
- Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the displayed Character Chart.
- Remind students that this chart is being used throughout the unit to record key details and information revealed in each chapter about significant characters.
- Explain that students will record information about Dr. Livesey, Squire Trelawney, Pew, and Long John Silver, characters first introduced in Chapter 2. Students will also take additional notes on Jim Hawkins.
- Use the information in the following chart to engage students in a discussion about each of the characters introduced in the chapter. Tell students to draw on specific details in their responses, such as descriptions of appearance, words, or actions in the text.
- Then record the information on the Character Chart. At the same time, have students record the information in the chart on Activity Page 1.3. If necessary, tell students to leave space for additional entries in future lessons.

Word Work: Stun

1. In the chapter you read, “At first they were stunned and rather silent, but eventually they were able to think clearly, and we began to converse.”
2. Say the word stun with me.
3. Stun means to shock or amaze.
4. The scientist was stunned to learn he had won a research award.
5. What are some other examples of someone being stunned? Be sure to use the word stunned in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “______ was stunned when . . .”]
6. What part of speech is the word stun?
   » verb

[Use a Discussion activity for follow-up.] Talk with your partner about a time when you, or someone you know, was stunned. Be sure to use the word stun in complete sentences as you discuss this with your partner.

WRITING

Plan a Character Sketch

Choose a Setting

- Remind students that they will write an original adventure story. Tell them that today they will choose a setting and write a character sketch.

- Review the features of an adventure story using the displayed Features of an Adventure Story Chart.

- Have students explain how the setting in an adventure story is both specific and general. (Adventure stories take place in a particular place like an inn or on an island, but the location of that particular inn or island is usually unknown.)

- Tell students that to prepare to write their adventure story, they will first choose a setting. Choosing a setting first will help them in creating a plan for their main character using a character sketch.

- Refer to the displayed Writing Prompt. Have one student read it aloud.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 3.2. Have another student read the first question on the “Setting” chart aloud.
• If there was not sufficient time in the previous lesson for students to brainstorm settings, have them do so quickly now. Write possible settings on the board/chart paper. (jungle, deserted island, a mountaintop, under the ocean, the Arctic, another planet, a space station, an underground civilization, a different period in history, etc.)

• Choose one setting from the list and ask students what types of characters might populate a story about that location. (For example, if the jungle is the setting, students might list animals, such as a snake, monkey, or tiger, as possible characters.)

• Tell students to select a setting that they would like to use for their adventure story, keeping in mind that the setting will help determine the kind of characters they will create. Remind them that their character will be stranded in this location.

• Have students write the setting they will use for their adventure story in the first row on Activity Page 3.2. Tell students to use descriptive language and be as specific as possible in describing the setting.

• Then, have students read the second question on the “Setting” chart and write the kinds of characters that might appear in the setting they selected for their adventure story.

Plan a Character Sketch 30 minutes

• Display the Character Sketch Poster you prepared in advance.

• Have students take turns reading the quotations and inferences on the poster. Engage students in a brief discussion about some of the inferences, discussing how the quotation led to that inference, paying particular attention to the examples of descriptive language.

• Have students identify important details about Billy Bones that are listed in the Character Sketch Poster. (He is unique and mysterious; he is an old man with a sabre cut scar on his cheek; his demeanor, appearance, and behavior are frightening to those around him.)

• Explain that the information in the chart is a character sketch about Billy Bones. It explains the kind of character he is.

• Direct students’ attention back to Activity Page 3.2. Tell them to complete the “My Character” chart on the activity page to create a character sketch about the main character for their adventure story.

• Tell students to be as specific as possible when they describe their character.

• Remind students to use descriptive language to show rather than tell, as they did in Unit 1, Brown Girl Dreaming. Remind students that to show rather than tell means using descriptive language to make writing more interesting and detailed.
• Circulate and check in with students, ensuring they are planning appropriately for the character sketch.

  Support Have students answer fewer questions in the “My Character” chart on the activity page.

  Challenge Ask students to come up with their own questions and answer them to provide more detailed information about the character.

• As time permits, have students share some of their answers from Activity Page 3.2. Also, have them discuss the Writing Prompt, asking how their answers about setting and character relate to it.

• Collect Activity Page 3.2 to review and monitor student progress. Students will refer to Activity Page 3.2 in Lessons 4 and 5 to add descriptive details about characters and again in Lesson 8 to plan and draft their introduction.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to discuss the upcoming voyage and the character of Long John Silver in depth.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to use the relative pronouns who, whom, and whose correctly in sentences.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will have gained additional practice using words with the root bio in sentences.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to use descriptive details to write about a character.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn more about the upcoming voyage and Long John Silver’s character.
Grammar

- Prepare and display the following Relative Pronouns Poster. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit. Cover or omit the Things/Ideas column for this lesson. This portion will be introduced in Lesson 6.

Morphology

- Plan to put students in pairs to complete Activity Page 4.4.

Writing

- Write the following sentence on the board/chart paper.

The girl had brown hair.

- Plan to divide students into small groups to practice using descriptive details. Balance groups so students of different abilities are together. This will help all students generate ideas for their characters.

- Plan to hand back Activity Page 3.2 for use in this lesson.
READING

Small Group: Chapter 3 “The Real Adventure Begins” 40 minutes

Introduce the Chapter 5 minutes

- Tell students they will read Chapter 3, “The Real Adventure Begins.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- Have a student read the chapter title aloud.
- Tell students they may want to refer to pages 108 and 109 of the Reader, as well as Activity Pages SR.1 and SR.2, while reading the chapter if they have questions about particular ship references or words related to parts of a ship.
- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is coach.
- Have them find the word on page 22 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate coach, and then have a student read the definition.
- Explain the following:
  - The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun—n.; verb—v.; adjective—adj.; adverb—adv.
  - Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.
- Have students reference Activity Page 4.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  - The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  - Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.
1. coach, n. a horse-drawn carriage with four wheels (22)

2. quay, n. a dock; an area at the edge of a waterway where ships land, load, and unload (22)

3. shroud, v. to cover or conceal (shrouded) (22)

4. captivate, v. to fascinate or capture one’s attention (captivated) (22)

5. deduce, v. to figure out or draw a conclusion (deduced) (24)

6. brim, v. to become full or overflowing (brimming) (24)

7. scoundrel, n. a wicked or disreputable person (26)

8. nautical, adj. relating to the sea or sailors (26)

9. berth, n. an area below deck where crew members would sleep (berths) (29)

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn more about the upcoming voyage and Long John Silver’s character.
Establish Small Groups

Before reading the chapter, divide students into two groups using the following guidelines:

- Small Group 1: This group should include students who need extra scaffolding and support to read and comprehend the text. Use the guided reading supports to guide students through reading the text. This is an excellent time to make notes in your anecdotal records. Students will complete Activity Page 4.2 with your support while they read.

- Small Group 2: This group should include students who are capable of reading and comprehending text without guided support. We encourage you to vary how you assign students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 4.2 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read. Make arrangements to check that students in Small Group 2 have answered the questions on Activity Page 4.2 correctly. You may choose to do one of the following to address this:
  - collect the pages and correct them individually
  - provide an answer key to students to check their own or a partner’s work after they have completed the activity page
  - confer with students individually or as a group at a later time
Read “The Real Adventure Begins” 25 minutes

The following guided reading supports are intended for use with Small Group 1. Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.

B  Literal What new things does Jim see at the quay?
   » He sees ships from all over the world and sailors working on the ships, including some men high up in the rigging. He also sees sailors with their hair in pigtails and rings in their ears.

Inferential How does Jim feel about the sights at the quay?
   » Jim is excited.

B  Literal What words or phrases help you make that inference?
   » Jim says “I was captivated.” The word captivated means “fascinated.”

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 1 on Activity Page 4.2.]

C  Support Why does Jim go to Bristol?
   » Jim travels to Bristol to join the crew and ship waiting to take them on their search for the buried treasure.

Chapter 3

The Real Adventure Begins

A  I said farewell to my beloved mother and the dear Admiral Benbow, and then joined up with Redruth, the squire’s gamekeeper. We purchased our seats for the coach to Bristol. It picked us up around dusk and we arrived in Bristol as the sun was rising like a shimmering peach above the city.

Squire Trelawney was residing at an inn near the water. Along the quay lay ships of all sizes and nations. In one, sailors were singing as they worked in the morning fog that shrouded the quay. In another, men, high up in the rigging, were hanging by threads that seemed no sturdier than those of a spider’s web. An overwhelming smell of tar and salt filled the air. I spotted old sailors with pigtails, and rings in their ears. It was all new to me, and I was captivated.

We went to see the squire. He was dressed like a naval officer, in a new suit.

“There you are!” he cried. “The doctor arrived last night. Now our ship’s company is complete. We’ll set sail early in the morning, at first light!”
I said farewell to my beloved mother and the dear Admiral Benbow.
A [Have students read pages 24 and 25 silently.]

B Inferential What is Jim’s first impression of Long John Silver?

> Jim seems relieved. He says that Long John Silver doesn’t look like a buccaneer, but rather a likeable, clean landlord. He seems to have a positive first impression of Long John Silver.

Support How does Jim describe Long John Silver?

> Jim describes him as tall and strong, able to move around easily in spite of having only one leg. He says he is intelligent, also noting that he talked in a friendly way to each of the tavern guests.

[Have students record the answer(s) to Part A of question 2 on Activity Page 4.2.]

A The squire handed me a note to carry to Long John Silver. I made my way along the crowded quay, full of people and loaded carts, until I found the tavern.

It was brighter and cleaner than I expected. The windows glistened and the floor was cleanly sanded. The customers were seafaring men talking loudly and enthusiastically among one another.

As I was waiting, a man emerged from a side room. I deduced he must be Long John Silver. His left leg was missing, and he walked with the aid of a crutch. He managed the crutch with wonderful skill, hopping about on it like a sprightly bird. Silver was tall and strong, with a face as big as a ham, yet brimming with intelligence. He whistled as he moved among the tables and had a merry word or a slap on the shoulder for each of his guests.

From the first mention of John Silver in the squire’s letter, I had feared that he might be the very one-legged sailor I had watched out for at the Admiral Benbow. But one look at the man was enough to convince me I had nothing to fear. I had seen the captain, I had seen Black Dog, and I had seen Pew. I thought I knew what a buccaneer looked like, and they were quite different from this clean and likeable landlord. B
"Mr. Silver, sir?" I asked hesitantly.

"Yes, lad," said he. When Silver saw I had a letter from the squire, he seemed startled. "Oh!" he said, quite loudly. "You must be our new cabin boy!"

Just then, one of the customers rose suddenly and ducked out the door. Although the man made a hurried exit, I had time enough to catch a glimpse of his face. It was the man who had visited the captain at the Admiral Benbow—the man with the two missing fingers.

"Someone stop him!" I cried out. "He's Black Dog!"

Two of the men sitting near the door leaped up and chased after the eight-fingered man.

“Someone stop him!” I cried out. “He’s Black Dog!”

[Have students read pages 26 and 27 silently.]

Evaluative What might suggest that Jim’s positive first impression of Long John Silver may be wrong?

» Jim sees Black Dog in Long John Silver’s tavern. This suggests Long John Silver might be connected to the pirates that ransacked the Admiral Benbow Inn in Chapter 1. This could mean Long John Silver isn’t as honest and good as Jim first thinks.

[Have students record the answer(s) to Part B of question 2 on Activity Page 4.2.]

“What was that you said, boy?” John Silver asked. “Black what?”

“Black Dog,” I replied. “ Didn’t Mr. Trelawney tell you about the buccaneers? Black Dog was one of them.”

“Was he indeed?” cried Silver. “Black Dog, did ya say? The name’s not familiar, yet I think I’ve seen him. He used to come here with a blind beggar.”

“Yes!” I said. “That would be old Pew!”

“Yes!” cried Silver, his voice rising as all kinds of thoughts clearly flooded his mind. “Pew! That were his name alright. Well, never fear, my men will run him down.”

However, the moment I saw Black Dog in Silver’s tavern, I sensed something was wrong. Why was he there, and was Silver telling the truth when he said he did not know him? I watched Silver closely, but he continued to create the impression that he was an honest man.

The two men came back, out of breath, and confessed that they had lost Black Dog in a crowd by the quay. Silver scolded them and shook his head in a display of disappointment.

“Well, Hawkins,” said Silver, “we had better go and tell the squire about this, eh? Here this scoundrel is sitting in my house, right in front of me. We wouldn’t want the squire to get the wrong idea now, would we?”

As we walked along the quay, Silver proved himself a most interesting companion. We even stopped beside a large sailing ship, as he pointed out its different parts and the proper terms for each one. He taught me nautical terms such as fore and aft, starboard and port. He showed me the forecastle at the front of the ship and the quarterdeck toward the back. He pointed out the mainmast in the middle and the crow's nest on top. The crow's nest was the spot where sailors went to keep a lookout. He explained that the cables sailors use to raise a sail are called halyards. He had me repeat these phrases till I could recite them perfectly. I knew he was the best possible shipmate for a novice sailor like me.

When we got to the inn, Silver gave Mr. Trelawney and Dr. Livesey an account of all that had happened.

"I won't stand for scoundrels of that sort in my tavern," he said. "But there was not much chance of me catching him myself, with this old timber I hobble on. So I sent two of my mates after him. Thought they might catch him, but in the end he slipped away. And that's what happened, isn't it Hawkins?"

"It is," I said.

The doctor and the squire were sorry that Black Dog had escaped, but they agreed there was nothing else to be done.

Then Silver paid me a compliment: "This is a fine lad you've signed up," he said. "A good fellow—and smart as paint!"

I was pleased by this compliment, and I smiled as Silver hobbled away.

"All hands on deck by four this afternoon!" the squire shouted after him.

"Aye, aye, sir!" cried Silver.

"Well," said Dr. Livesey to the squire. "As a rule, I don't put much faith in your discoveries, but this John Silver suits me."

"Yes," said the squire. "He's quite a remarkable man."

C Evaluative What does Jim think of Long John Silver after seeing Black Dog in Silver's tavern?

» Answers may vary, but should include that Jim seems to have mixed feelings, sensing that something isn't quite right because Black Dog was in Silver's tavern. On the other hand, he concludes Silver is an honest man when he sees Silver scold the men for not catching Black Dog; Silver also tells Squire Trelawney what happened rather than keeping it a secret. Jim also mentions that Long John Silver takes the time during their walk to stop and teach Jim the proper terms for parts of a sailing ship. He says later that he is pleased by Silver paying him a compliment in front of the doctor and squire.

Later, we boarded the ship while the supplies were being loaded. As soon as we were on board, the captain paid us a visit.

“Well, Captain Smollett,” said the squire. “How are you? All's well with you, I hope?”

“I am well, sir,” said the captain. “But I must tell you I have a bad feeling about this voyage, and I don’t care for some of the seamen you’ve hired.”

The squire was extremely offended by this remark.

“Perhaps you do not like your employer, either?” replied the squire, but here Dr. Livesey cut in.

“Hold on, Trelawney,” said Dr. Livesey. “Let’s hear what Captain Smollett has to say.”

Captain Smollett addressed the doctor: “I was engaged, sir, to sail this ship where that gentleman should bid me. Now I find that every seaman on board knows more than I do. I hear that we are going after treasure. I don't like to involve myself in secret treasure voyages, especially when the secret is no longer secret. Why, even a parrot seems to know our business.”

“Do you mean Silver's parrot?” asked the squire.

“Gentlemen, do you understand what you're getting into?” came the captain's reply.

“We most certainly do!” said the squire.

“Please explain,” said Dr. Livesey, “what is it that you don't like about the crew?”

“I should have been able to pick them myself,” explained Captain Smollett. “I do not approve of your officer. He's a good seaman, but he's too friendly, familiar if you like, with the crew. And another thing—the men are putting the guns and powder in the forehold. I don't like that. Why not put them under the cabin and give your own people the berths?”

“Is there anything else?” asked the squire.

“Yes,” said the captain. “I've heard the exact latitude and longitude of our island location. I've heard you have a map of the island. I've even heard this map shows the exact location of treasure—as all good treasure maps should do!”

“Egad!” cried the squire. “I did not tell a soul about any of this!”

“Gentlemen,” continued the captain, “I don’t know who has this map, but I ask that it be kept somewhere secret—even from me. If you won't do that much, I would ask you to let me resign.”

“I see,” said the doctor. “You are afraid the men may mutiny.”

B  Evaluative Why is Captain Smollett upset?

» Answers may vary, but may include that Captain Smollett is upset because he thinks treasure voyages are dangerous, especially when everyone seems to know about the map and the location of the treasure; he doesn’t trust the crew and is worried about the location of the guns and powder; he is concerned because he was not able to select the crew himself and is afraid the men may mutiny.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 4 on Activity Page 4.2.]

Support The captain threatens to resign, or quit, unless Squire Trelawney does one thing. What is that one thing?

» keep the location of the treasure map a secret
A  [Have students read page 30 silently.]

B  Inferential What is the doctor's opinion of Captain Smollett? What is the squire's opinion of the captain?

» The doctor thinks highly of Captain Smollett and says that he thinks the captain is a good man. The squire thinks that the captain is difficult and rude.

C  Evaluative What do you think Jim means when he says he wonders about Silver's choice of name for his parrot, Captain Flint?

» Answers may vary, but may include that Jim might think it is odd that Long John Silver's parrot is named after the pirate Captain Flint. Billy Bones was Captain Flint’s first mate, and the journey to Treasure Island is to find Captain Flint’s buried treasure. Earlier in the story, Squire Trelawney describes Flint as “the bloodthirstiest pirate that ever flew the Jolly Roger.” Naming a parrot after a known pirate is not necessarily something that an average person would do. The choice of name may also suggest Long John Silver has a connection to Captain Flint and the treasure.

A  “Sir,” said Captain Smollett. “They may be honest men, for all I know, but I am responsible for the ship’s safety and the life of every man aboard. I’m concerned, and I ask you to be cautious or let me resign. That’s all.”

Trelawney grumbled, but eventually he agreed.

“I will do as you wish,” he said, sighing deeply. “But it grieves me that you do not trust me.”

“As you please, sir,” said Captain Smollett. “You’ll find I do my duty.” And with that, he left.

“Trelawney,” said the doctor, “I believe you have at least two good men on board—that man and John Silver.”

“Silver, perhaps,” cried the squire, still in a huff, “but I believe Captain Smollett to be difficult and downright rude.”

“Well,” said the doctor, “we shall see.”

Early the next morning we lifted anchor and set sail. The Hispaniola began her voyage to Treasure Island.

The Hispaniola proved to be a good ship. The captain and crew were very capable. I was especially fond of Long John Silver, or Barbecue, as some of the men called him. He was always glad to see me in the ship’s galley, which he kept as clean as a pin. The old sea cook even introduced me to his pet parrot.

“This is Cap’n Flint,” he told me. “Named for the famous buccaneer. And she predicts success for our voyage. Don’t you, Cap’n?”

I wondered at this choice of name.
Early the next morning we lifted anchor and set sail. The Hispaniola began her voyage to Treasure Island.
A  [Have students read pages 32 and 33 silently.]

B  Support  Pieces of eight are silver coins common in the 1600s and 1700s.

C  Inferential  What does Jim mean when he says that Silver “smiled in a way that made me think he was either the best of men—or the worst of men”?

   »  Jim still doesn’t know whether or not to trust Silver.

   [Have students record the answer(s) to question 6 on Activity Page 4.2.]

Challenge  What effect is created by making Long John Silver such a mysterious character and not revealing whether he is truly good or bad?

   »  In doing so, the reader—and Jim—keeps guessing. It creates suspense in the story and makes Long John Silver interesting.

Then the parrot squawked, “Pieces of eight! Pieces of eight!”

“That bird is maybe two hundred years old,” said Silver. “If anybody’s seen more wickedness, it must be the devil himself. She sailed with Cap’n England, the pirate. I reckon that’s how she learned about pieces of eight.”

Silver gave the bird a lump of sugar and smiled in a way that made me think he was either the best of men—or the worst of men.
All the crewmen respected and obeyed Silver. He had a way of talking to everybody and doing each one some particular service.

"He's no common man, Barbecue," Israel Hands, one of the crew, told me. “He can speak like a book when he wants, and he's brave—a lion's nothing alongside him. I've seen him, unarmed, grapple four men and knock their heads together!"

I had no doubt that Silver was a man to be reckoned with.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson 10 minutes

• Bring the class back together as a group and use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Evaluative Why do you think the chapter is titled “The Real Adventure Begins”?
   » Answers may vary, but should include that Jim leaves home, experiences a new city, and meets Long John Silver. The crew and the plans for the voyage are finalized in this chapter as well, and they set sail on their adventure.

2. Evaluative Think Pair Share How does Jim’s view of Long John Silver vary from the beginning to the end of the chapter?
   » Although Jim is a little skeptical in the beginning, he likes and trusts Long John Silver because he tries to catch Black Dog and he tells the squire about Black Dog’s escape. Long John Silver also compliments Jim and spends time teaching him nautical terms. By the end of the chapter, Jim is skeptical again, wondering whether Long John Silver is really a good or bad person.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the displayed Character Chart.

• Remind students that this chart is being used throughout the unit to record key details and information revealed in each chapter about significant characters.

• Explain that students will record information about Captain Smollett, a character first introduced in Chapter 3. Students will also take additional notes on Long John Silver.

• Use the information in the following chart to engage students in a discussion about each of the characters introduced in the chapter and additional information about Long John Silver. Tell students to draw on specific details in their responses, such as descriptions of appearance, words, or actions in the text.

• Then record the information on the Character Chart. At the same time, have students record the information in the chart on Activity Page 1.3.

Word Work: Brim

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “Silver was tall and strong, with a face as big as a ham, yet brimming with intelligence.”

2. Say the word brim with me.

3. Brim means to become full or overflowing.

4. After winning her tennis match, Caroline was brimming with confidence.

5. What are some other examples of someone or something brimming? Be sure to use the word brimming in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “______ was brimming with _____ because . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word brim?
   » verb

[Use a Multiple-Meaning Word activity for follow-up. Tell students the word brim is a word with multiple meanings. Share the following with students.]

Meaning #1: brim (verb)—to become full or overflowing

Meaning #2: brim (noun)—the top edge of something

Meaning #3: brim (noun)—an edge that sticks out

I am going to read several sentences. Listen to the context in the sentence for clues as to which meaning is being used. When you think a sentence is an example of Meaning #1, hold up one finger. When you think a sentence is an example of Meaning #2, hold up two fingers. When you think a sentence is an example of Meaning #3, hold up three fingers.

1. He pulled down the brim of his hat to keep the sun off his face.

2. She seemed to be brimming with courage.

3. He filled the cup to the brim.

4. When her father received an award, he was brimming with pride.

Introduce Relative Pronouns for People

- Tell students today they will begin learning about relative pronouns.
- Remind students that a pronoun is a part of speech that replaces a noun. Every pronoun always refers to a specific noun.
- Briefly review pronouns students are already familiar with by asking what pronouns they would use to replace the following nouns:
  - The ball bounced down the sidewalk. (it)
  - The men took the train. (they)
  - My family and I went to the movies. (we)
  - Rachel is in my class. (she)
  - Juan likes video games. (he)
- Refer to the Relative Pronouns Poster you prepared in advance, telling students that they will learn about a new type of pronoun today.
- Explain that relative pronouns refer to or replace nouns or pronouns. What is special about relative pronouns is that they join clauses, or sections of a sentence, together.
- Explain that there are two main categories of relative pronouns. The first main category is People. The relative pronouns in this category refer to or replace nouns like she, he, teacher, friend, aunt, and so on. The relative pronouns that refer to or replace people nouns are who, whom, and whose.
- Refer to the first pair of sentences you prepared in advance. Have a student read the sentences. Ask students what these two sentences have in common. (Both have the phrase my new neighbor.)

I met my new neighbor.
My new neighbor just moved here from France.

- Model combining the two sentences into one sentence by writing the following on the board/chart paper.

I met my new neighbor who just moved here from France.

- Explain that the relative pronoun in this sentence is who. Underline who in the sentence. Ask students which noun who refers to in the sentence. (neighbor) Who is used in this sentence because the relative pronoun refers to or replaces the subject of the sentence. Neighbor is the subject, so the relative pronoun is who.
• Refer to the second pair of sentences you prepared in advance. Have a student read the sentences. Ask students what these two sentences have in common. (Both have the phrase my piano teacher.)

I like my piano teacher.
I have known my piano teacher for years.

• Combine the two sentences into one sentence by writing the following on the board/chart paper.

I like my piano teacher, whom I have known for years.

• Have students analyze the sentence by identifying the subject of the sentence (I) and the object of the sentence (teacher). Because teacher is the object of the sentence, the relative pronoun is whom.

Support A helpful way to decide whether to use who or whom in a sentence is to think of the sentence in the form of a question. If the answer to the question is she, he, we, or they (all of which are subjects), use the relative pronoun who. If the answer to the question is her, him, us, or them (all of which are objects), use the relative pronoun whom. For example, who/whom always likes to be on time? The answer would be she does (or he does, we do, etc.). Because the answer is she, who is the correct relative pronoun. Who/whom should I call to answer my question? You should call him (or her, them, etc.). Because the answer is him, whom is the correct relative pronoun.

• Ask students which relative pronoun appears in this sentence. (whom) Underline whom in the sentence. Ask students which noun whom refers to in the sentence. (teacher) Whom is used in this sentence because the relative pronoun refers to or replaces the object of the sentence. Instead of it doing something (subject), something is being done to it (object).

• Explain that when talking, people use the relative pronoun who much more than whom. When talking to a friend instead of writing, someone might say, “I like my piano teacher, who I have known for years.” Using who instead of whom when talking is acceptable; it’s okay when talking to be more relaxed and informal about whether to follow every grammar rule. It is different when writing. Writing is more formal or official, so it is important to follow grammar rules. When writing, be careful to use whom when referring to the object of a sentence and who when referring to the subject of a sentence.

Challenge Point out the comma in this sentence. Explain that whom I have known for years is not needed to understand the meaning of the sentence, so it is set off from the rest of the sentence by a comma.

• Refer to the third pair of sentences you prepared in advance. Have a student read the sentences. Ask students what these two sentences have in common. (Both have the phrase my friend.)
My friend's dog ran away.
My friend was really upset.

• Combine the two sentences into one sentence by writing the following on the board/chart paper.

My friend whose dog ran away was really upset.

• Ask students which relative pronoun appears in this sentence. (whose) Underline whose in the sentence. Ask students what whose refers to in the sentence. (friend) Whose is used in this sentence because it indicates possession—the dog belongs to the friend.

Challenge Point out that there are no commas setting apart whose dog ran away. Explain that this phrase is needed to understand the meaning of the sentence and should not be set apart from the rest of the sentence.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 4.3. Read the directions aloud and go over the chart with students.

• Have students complete Activity Page 4.3 for homework, or if you feel they need more assistance, complete the activity page as a teacher-guided activity.

MORPHOLOGY 15 minutes

Practice Root bio

• Explain that you will give students two word choices, each of which features the root bio. Then, you will read a statement and students must decide which word the statement demonstrates.

  – Biology or biography? We learned about the similarities and differences between how house cats and lions live and develop. (biology)

  – Biodegradable or symbiotic? We try to get as many all-natural items as we can so they break down when we have to throw them away. (biodegradable)

  – Autobiography or biosphere? Some animals live in the ocean whereas others live on land. (biosphere)

• Have students turn to Activity Page 4.4. Read the directions and have students work in pairs to complete it.

• As time allows, have a few partner pairs share their sentences aloud.

• Collect Activity Page 4.4 to review and grade at a later time.
Write Descriptive Details

• Tell students that characters come alive to readers through descriptive language and specific details. Remind students they have used descriptive writing in earlier units.

• Explain that the more specific and descriptive their writing is, the more interesting their character will be.

• Tell them to use all five senses in their writing to write about how their character looks and sounds, as well as what the character sees, hears, smells, and touches.

• Have one student read the sentence you prepared in advance aloud.

  The girl had brown hair.

• Ask students to revise the sentence using descriptive language, especially the five senses, to add more details.

• As students answer aloud, write their words or phrases on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may have a student record the answers.

• If necessary, guide students by asking some of the following questions. Sample answers are provided as a guide.
  – How long is her hair? (Her hair is short.)
  – How does her hair feel? (It feels coarse and rough, as if she went swimming and didn’t wash the chlorine out.)
  – What kind of brown is her hair? Is it light brown, dark brown, blondish brown? (Her hair is blondish brown, as if she has been out in the sun all summer.)
  – What does her hair color remind you of? (Her hair is dark brown like the mane of a racehorse.)

• Divide students into small groups.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 3.2 and share their answers to the question “What does your character look like?” with the group.

• Encourage students to help each other use descriptive language and specific details to make each character come alive. Have students revise their answers to the question “What does your character look like?” using descriptive language discussed in the group.

• Circulate and check in with students, ensuring they are sharing and revising appropriately.

  Challenge Ask students to share and revise their answers to additional questions on Activity Page 3.2.

Materials

• Activity Page 3.2
As time permits, have each group choose one descriptive detail about someone’s character to share with the class.

Have students keep Activity Page 3.2 for use in future lessons.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will understand how descriptive language helps create a memorable plot and interesting characters.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to write about a character using descriptive details.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read closely to understand how the use of figurative and descriptive language helps create a memorable plot and interesting characters.

Writing

- Ensure that students have a writing journal or paper to write on for their character writing.

- Plan to divide students into pairs. You may also wish to partner students ready for an additional challenge with students who require extra support.

Fluency (optional)

- If students were assigned a selection from the Fluency Supplement, determine which students will read the selection aloud and when. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.
REVIEW

Grammar
- Collect Activity Page 4.3 to review and grade as there is no grammar lesson today.

Materials
- Treasure Island
- Activity Page 5.1

Note

Close reading lessons present excellent opportunities to ensure that English learners and other students who need additional support fully comprehend a reading selection.

REPRESENT

45 minutes

Close Reading: Chapter 3 “The Real Adventure Begins”

40 minutes

Review the Chapter

- Tell students they will reread Chapter 3, “The Real Adventure Begins.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

  Read closely to understand how the use of figurative and descriptive language helps create a memorable plot and interesting characters.

Close Reading

There are many ways for students to respond to the questions. Vary how you elicit students’ responses to promote student engagement. For example:

- Have students work in pairs. Following each question, direct students to consult with their partner about the correct response before one student responds.
- Have students work in small groups of three or four students. Following each question, direct students to consult with others in their group about the correct response before one student responds.
- Following a question, have all students provide a written response before one student responds orally.
Read “The Real Adventure Begins” 25 minutes

- Read the title of the chapter as a class, “The Real Adventure Begins.” As you read portions of the chapter, pause to explain or clarify the text at each point indicated.
A [Have one student read the second paragraph aloud.]

B LIT Inferential A simile is a literary device that compares two different things, usually using like or as. In the last sentence of the first paragraph, a simile is used to describe the sunrise Jim sees as he arrives in Bristol. What is the simile and what does it mean?

» The simile is as the sun was rising like a shimmering peach above the city. It means as the sun rose, it looked like a peach lit up and shining in a way that the light appears to be moving a little bit.

LIT Inferential What effect does this simile have?

» It creates vivid imagery in the reader’s mind about what Jim saw as he arrived in Bristol and what seeing the sunrise might have been like.

C LIT Inferential What effect does the comparison of the rigging to a spider’s web have?

» It shows that the ropes look weak and thin, as though they cannot support the weight of the men climbing on them. The image also suggests that the rigging looks beautiful, making intricate patterns like spider webs above the ships. Such language paints a picture for the reader and illustrates how captivated Jim is by the quay.

Support Rigging is the series of ropes used on a ship to hold up the masts and control the sails.

I said farewell to my beloved mother and the dear Admiral Benbow, and then joined up with Redruth, the squire’s gamekeeper. We purchased our seats for the coach to Bristol. It picked us up around dusk and we arrived in Bristol as the sun was rising like a shimmering peach above the city.

Squire Trelawney was residing at an inn near the water. Along the quay lay ships of all sizes and nations. In one, sailors were singing as they worked in the morning fog that shrouded the quay. In another, men, high up in the rigging, were hanging by threads that seemed no sturdier than those of a spider’s web. An overwhelming smell of tar and salt filled the air. I spotted old sailors with pigtails, and rings in their ears. It was all new to me, and I was captivated.

We went to see the squire. He was dressed like a naval officer, in a new suit.

“There you are!” he cried. “The doctor arrived last night. Now our ship’s company is complete. We’ll set sail early in the morning, at first light!”
I said farewell to my beloved mother and the dear Admiral Benbow.
A [Have students read the third paragraph silently.]

B VOC Inferential What does the word emerged mean in the first sentence of the paragraph?

» came out or appeared

C LIT Inferential A simile is a literary device that compares two different things, usually using like or as. A simile in this paragraph is, He managed the crutch with wonderful skill, hopping about on it like a sprightly bird. What is compared in the simile in this paragraph and why?

» The simile compares Long John Silver to a sprightly bird. This could be because Long John Silver only has one leg and uses a crutch to walk, which makes his movements jerky, like hopping. Birds also make a series of quick, small movements when they move that look like hopping. The simile also suggests Long John Silver uses the crutch surprisingly well. Although his movements are different, they look natural for him.

The squire handed me a note to carry to Long John Silver. I made my way along the crowded quay, full of people and loaded carts, until I found the tavern.

It was brighter and cleaner than I expected. The windows glistened and the floor was cleanly sanded. The customers were seafaring men talking loudly and enthusiastically among one another.

As I was waiting, a man emerged from a side room. I deduced he must be Long John Silver. His left leg was missing, and he walked with the aid of a crutch. He managed the crutch with wonderful skill, hopping about on it like a sprightly bird. Silver was tall and strong, with a face as big as a ham, yet brimming with intelligence. He whistled as he moved among the tables and had a merry word or a slap on the shoulder for each of his guests.

From the first mention of John Silver in the squire’s letter, I had feared that he might be the very one-legged sailor I had watched out for at the Admiral Benbow. But one look at the man was enough to convince me I had nothing to fear. I had seen the captain, I had seen Black Dog, and I had seen Pew. I thought I knew what a buccaneer looked like, and they were quite different from this clean and likeable landlord.
“Mr. Silver, sir?” I asked hesitantly.

“Yes, lad,” said he. When Silver saw I had a letter from the squire, he seemed startled. “Oh!” he said, quite loudly. “You must be our new cabin boy!”

Just then, one of the customers rose suddenly and ducked out the door. Although the man made a hurried exit, I had time enough to catch a glimpse of his face. It was the man who had visited the captain at the Admiral Benbow—the man with the two missing fingers.

“Someone stop him!” I cried out. “He’s Black Dog!”

Two of the men sitting near the door leaped up and chased after the eight-fingered man.
“What was that you said, boy?” John Silver asked. “Black what?”

“Black Dog,” I replied. “Didn’t Mr. Trelawney tell you about the buccaneers? Black Dog was one of them.”

“Was he indeed?” cried Silver. “Black Dog, did ya say? The name’s not familiar, yet I think I’ve seen him. He used to come here with a blind beggar.”

“Yes!” I said. “That would be old Pew!”

“Yes!” cried Silver, his voice rising as all kinds of thoughts clearly flooded his mind. “Pew! That were his name alright. Well, never fear, my men will run him down.”

However, the moment I saw Black Dog in Silver’s tavern, I sensed something was wrong. Why was he there, and was Silver telling the truth when he said he did not know him? I watched Silver closely, but he continued to create the impression that he was an honest man.

The two men came back, out of breath, and confessed that they had lost Black Dog in a crowd by the quay. Silver scolded them and shook his head in a display of disappointment.

“Well, Hawkins,” said Silver, “we had better go and tell the squire about this, eh? Here this scoundrel is sitting in my house, right in front of me. We wouldn’t want the squire to get the wrong idea now, would we?”

As we walked along the quay, Silver proved himself a most interesting companion. We even stopped beside a large sailing ship, as he pointed out its different parts and the proper terms for each one. He taught me nautical terms such as fore and aft, starboard and port. He showed me the forecastle at the front of the ship and the quarterdeck toward the back. He pointed out the mainmast in the middle and the crow’s nest on top. The crow’s nest was the spot where sailors went to keep a lookout. He explained that the cables sailors use to raise a sail are called halyards. He had me repeat these phrases till I could recite them perfectly. I knew he was the best possible shipmate for a novice sailor like me.

A When we got to the inn, Silver gave Mr. Trelawney and Dr. Livesey an account of all that had happened.

“I won’t stand for scoundrels of that sort in my tavern,” he said. “But there was not much chance of me catching him myself, with this old timber I hobble on. So I sent two of my mates after him. Though they might catch him, but in the end he slipped away. And that’s what happened, isn’t it Hawkins?”

“It is,” I said.

The doctor and the squire were sorry that Black Dog had escaped, but they agreed there was nothing else to be done.

Then Silver paid me a compliment: “This is a fine lad you’ve signed up,” he said. “A good fellow—and smart as paint!”

I was pleased by this compliment, and I smiled as Silver hobbled away.

“All hands on deck by four this afternoon!” the squire shouted after him.

“Aye, aye, sir!” cried Silver.

“Well,” said Dr. Livesey to the squire. “As a rule, I don’t put much faith in your discoveries, but this John Silver suits me.”

“Yes,” said the squire. “He’s quite a remarkable man.”

B COMP Inferential When Long John Silver calls Jim “smart as paint,” what do you think he means?

» Answers may vary, but may include that Long John Silver means that Jim is smart or clever.

[Explain that this is also a play on the fact that _smart_ has two meanings that are commonly accepted in Great Britain. Not only does _smart_ mean intelligent in Great Britain, it also means fashionable or well-groomed. _Smart as paint_ could mean as clean and fresh-looking as a new coat of paint. This is a playful use of words, saying that Jim is as clever as a new coat of paint is fresh.]

C COMP Evaluative Why might Jim be so pleased with Long John Silver’s compliment? What does it portray about each character’s personality?

» Answers may vary, but may include that Jim wants Long John Silver’s approval and, therefore, responds well to his flattery. Jim is young and wants to be successful in his new job as cabin boy. He may also miss his father and be looking for attention from an adult. Long John Silver likes to flatter those around him (he gives everyone a merry word or a slap on the shoulder in the tavern). It is possible that Silver compliments Jim to gain Jim’s trust and loyalty.
A [Have students read page 28 silently.]

B COMP Inferential Why does the squire ask Captain Smollett, “Perhaps you do not like your employer, either?”

» Answers may vary, but may include that the squire feels insulted and defensive. The captain has criticized the crew the squire hired for the ship. Squire Trelawney is Captain Smollett’s employer, so the squire is implying that the captain does not like him either. This remark shows the squire’s anger toward the captain. The squire could be telling the captain to remember his place, reminding the captain that he was hired by the squire, not the other way around. The squire could also be threatening the captain, implying that he could just as easily get rid of him.

Later, we boarded the ship while the supplies were being loaded. As soon as we were on board, the captain paid us a visit.

“Well, Captain Smollett,” said the squire. “How are you? All’s well with you, I hope?”

“I am well, sir,” said the captain. “But I must tell you I have a bad feeling about this voyage, and I don’t care for some of the seamen you’ve hired.”

The squire was extremely offended by this remark.

“Perhaps you do not like your employer, either?” replied the squire, but here Dr. Livesey cut in. B

“Hold on, Trelawney,” said Dr. Livesey. “Let’s hear what Captain Smollett has to say.”

Captain Smollett addressed the doctor: “I was engaged, sir, to sail this ship where that gentleman should bid me. Now I find that every seaman on board knows more than I do. I hear that we are going after treasure. I don’t like to involve myself in secret treasure voyages, especially when the secret is no longer secret. Why, even a parrot seems to know our business.”

“Do you mean Silver’s parrot?” asked the squire.

“Gentlemen, do you understand what you’re getting into?” came the captain’s reply.

“We most certainly do!” said the squire.

“Please explain,” said Dr. Livesey, “what is it that you don’t like about the crew?”

“I should have been able to pick them myself,” explained Captain Smollett. “I do not approve of your officer. He’s a good seaman, but he’s too friendly, familiar if you like, with the crew. And another thing—the men are putting the guns and powder in the forehold. I don’t like that. Why not put them under the cabin and give your own people the berths?”

“Is there anything else?” asked the squire.

“Yes,” said the captain. “I’ve heard the exact latitude and longitude of our island location. I’ve heard you have a map of the island. I’ve even heard this map shows the exact location of treasure—as all good treasure maps should do!”

“Egad!” cried the squire. “I did not tell a soul about any of this!”

“Gentlemen,” continued the captain, “I don’t know who has this map, but I ask that it be kept somewhere secret—even from me. If you won’t do that much, I would ask you to let me resign.”

“I see,” said the doctor. “You are afraid the men may mutiny.”
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson 10 minutes

- Have a student read page 33 aloud.

- Use the following questions to understand the language and Long John Silver's character in more depth.

1. Literal A simile is a comparison of two things, usually using like or as. Identify a simile on this page.
   » He can speak like a book when he wants.

   Inferential What does this simile mean?
   » It means Silver is well-spoken and intelligent.

2. Literal Hyperbole is figurative language that describes something in a highly exaggerated way, or as better or worse than it really is. Identify an example of hyperbole on this page.
   » “. . . he’s brave—a lion’s nothing alongside him.”

   Inferential What does the hyperbole portray about Silver’s character?
   » It emphasizes points about Silver’s character. Hands compares Silver to a lion, saying he is braver than a beast and able to win fights against four men at a time, a feat even more amazing considering Silver only has one leg.

3. Inferential The idiom a man to be reckoned with means someone is influential, strong, or powerful and difficult to deal with. What does it mean when Jim thinks Silver is a man to be reckoned with?
   » Jim suspects Silver is not the honest man he appears to be. Even though he is hired as the ship’s cook, Jim thinks he has the potential to be difficult to deal with and to have a powerful influence on events.

Word Work: Captivate 5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “It was all new to me, and I was captivated.”
2. Say the word captivate with me.
3. Captivate means to fascinate or capture one’s attention.
4. My 6-year-old brother was captivated by the talking parrot.
5. What are some other examples of things that captivate you? Be sure to use the word captivate in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ captivated me.”]
6. What part of speech is the word captivate?

WRITING

Draft a Character Sketch

Review and Draft a Character Sketch 35 minutes

- Direct students’ attention to Activity Page 3.2.
- Have students name some of the features that make a character memorable, drawing information from the questions in the “My Character” chart on the activity page. (Features may include physical attributes, such as hair color, eye color, scars, and height, catch phrases, an interesting name, special talent, job, hobby, or mannerisms.)
- Tell students they will write one or two paragraphs about their character to use in their adventure story.
- Remind students they should describe the features that make their character unique and memorable. They should use descriptive language and specific details to make the character come alive.
- Encourage students to use their answers in the “My Character” chart and any feedback provided on Activity Page 3.2 to guide their writing.
- Explain that their paragraph(s) should have a topic sentence, at least six detail sentences, and a concluding sentence. Explain that if students choose to write two paragraphs, they need to consider how to group information about the character in each paragraph so the information is presented logically.
- Circulate and check in with students to support them as they write.

Support Direct students to their answers to only a few specific questions in the “My Character” chart to help them draft their paragraph.

Wrap Up 10 minutes

- Divide students into pairs and have them exchange writing.
- Explain that students should read their partner’s paragraph(s). As they read, students should underline examples of descriptive language. In addition, students should tell their partner at least one thing he or she did well, and offer one or two suggestions for revision.

[Use a Synonyms activity for follow-up.] What are some words that are synonyms, or words that have a similar meaning, of captivate? [Prompt students to provide words like charm, fascinate, mesmerize, attract, enthral, spellbind, or intrigue.] With a partner, create a sentence for each of the synonyms of captivate he or she provides.
• Tell students they may also suggest a metaphor, analogy, or other literary device their partner could include, or they could suggest their partner include the answer to one of the questions on Activity Page 3.2 that was not present in the writing.

• Tell students to write down the suggested revisions they receive for use in future lessons.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain what Jim Hawkins hears while hiding in the apple barrel and how it impacts the story.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to use the relative pronouns that, which, and whose correctly in sentences.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will have reviewed the meanings and uses of the prefixes im– and in– and the roots port and bio.

Spelling: By the end of this lesson, students will be prepared to practice spelling targeted words.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading
- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to find out what Jim overhears while hiding in the apple barrel on the ship.

Small Group: Chapter 4 “What I Heard in the Apple Barrel” 40 minutes

Introduction to the Chapter 5 minutes

• Tell students they will read Chapter 4, “What I Heard in the Apple Barrel.”

• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

• Tell students they may want to refer to pages 108 and 109 of the Reader, as well as Activity Pages SR.1 and SR.2, while reading the chapter if they have questions about particular ship references.

• Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.

• Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is leagues.

• Have them find the word on page 34 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.

• Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate league, and then have a student read the definition.

• Explain the following:
  – The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun–n.; verb–v.; adjective–adj.; adverb–adv.
  – Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

• Have students reference Activity Page 6.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. league, n. a unit of length about 3 miles long (leagues) (34)
2. squall, n. a sudden, powerful wind with rain, snow, or sleet (squalls) (34)
3. maroon, v. to abandon someone on an island (marooned) (37)
4. duplicity, n. dishonest behavior meant to trick someone (40)
5. predicament, n. a difficult or dangerous situation (40)

- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

  Read to find out what Jim overhears while hiding in the apple barrel on the ship.

Establish Small Groups

Before reading the chapter, divide students into two groups using the following guidelines:

- Small Group 1: This group should include students who need extra scaffolding and support to read and comprehend the text. Use the guided reading supports to guide students through reading the text. This is an excellent time to make notes in your anecdotal records. Students will complete Activity Page 6.2 with your support while they read.

- Small Group 2: This group should include students who are capable of reading and comprehending text without guided support. We encourage you to vary assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 6.2 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read. Make arrangements to check that students in Small Group 2 have answered the questions on Activity Page 6.2 correctly. You may choose to do one of the following to address this:
  - collect the pages and correct them individually
– provide an answer key to students to check their own or a partner’s work after they have completed the activity page
– confer with students individually or as a group at a later time

Read “What I Heard in the Apple Barrel” 25 minutes

The following guided reading supports are intended for use with Small Group 1. Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
A few leagues out from Bristol we ran into some squalls and heavy weather, but this only confirmed the seaworthiness of the Hispaniola.

As we continued our voyage, every man on board the ship appeared to be cheerful. The old sea cook, John Silver, cooked up delicious grub, and the men were given generous portions. Squire Trelawney had even purchased a large barrel of apples, and it was left open so any of us could help ourselves whenever we felt the urge.

Captain Smollett disapproved of the apple barrel. "No good ever came of that sort of thing," he said to Dr. Livesey.

Some good did come of the apple barrel though, and I will tell you how it came about.

It was the last day of our outward voyage. After sundown, when my work was done and I was on my way back to my berth, it occurred to me that I would like an apple. I went to the barrel and found there were only a few left, so I had to climb into the barrel to get one.
After sundown, when my work was done and I was on my way back to my berth, it occurred to me that I would like an apple.
A Inferential What new information is revealed by Long John Silver’s statement, “Flint was cap’n and I was part of the crew. I lost my leg on that voyage, and old Pew lost his eyes. But I got my hands on some money, and it’s all safe in the bank”?

» Long John Silver knows all of the pirates who tried to steal the treasure map from the Admiral Benbow Inn, as described in earlier chapters. He was actually one of the crew members on the original voyage when the treasure was hidden and buried.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 1 on Activity Page 6.2.]

B Evaluative Why do you think Jim says he wants to pounce on Silver when he hears Silver say “you’re as smart as paint” to another crew member?

» Jim wants to pounce on Silver because he is angry, realizing that Silver is not the honest man Jim believed him to be. Silver had complimented Jim by calling him smart as paint when they were in Bristol. This made Jim feel special and made him like Silver. Now, it is obvious to Jim that Silver says things like that just to get people on his side, and he really does not mean what he says. Jim feels tricked and deceived.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 2 on Activity Page 6.2.]

While I was sitting in the barrel, comparing the quality of two apples, several members of the crew arrived. They were talking, and before I had heard a dozen words, my mood changed to one of fear and anxiety. You see, their conversation revealed that the lives of all the honest men aboard the Hispaniola depended upon me.

“No, not I,” said Silver. “Flint was cap’n and I was part of the crew. I lost my leg on that voyage, and old Pew lost his eyes. But I got my hands on some money, and it’s all safe in the bank. You see, boys, it’s not earning that does it—it’s saving.”

Another seaman mumbled something I could not hear.

“Look here, mate,” Silver said in reply, “you’re young, but you’re as smart as paint, and I’ll talk to you like a man.”

You can imagine how I felt when I heard those words “smart as paint,” as that was what Silver had said about me that day in Bristol! In fact, those were his exact words! I wanted to pounce on him, but he was unaware that I was listening, and he continued to speak.

“Gentlemen of fortune live rough, and they risk death every day,” Silver explained. “But when a cruise is done, they’ve got money in their pockets. Most spend it carelessly, but that’s not the course for me. I put it all away. I’m fifty years old now. Once I get back from this cruise, I’ll set myself up as a gentleman. My missus has gathered up all my money. She’s sold the Spyglass by now, and I’ll meet up with her when I return.”

“Well,” said one of the men named Dick, “I didn’t like this job till I had this talk with you, but now things are startin’ to look up! Here’s my hand on it, John!”

“A brave lad you are!” Silver answered. “And smart, too!”
By this time I understood what was happening. By “gentlemen of fortune,” Silver meant pirates, and he had just convinced another one of the honest men to join the mutiny he was planning.

Silver gave a little whistle and a third man joined them.

“Dick’s square,” said Silver to the newcomer.

“I knew he was no fool!” said the other. “But here’s what I want to know, Barbecue: When will we strike? I’ve had more than enough of Captain Smollett.”

“Listen, Israel,” said Silver. “Keep your eyes peeled till I give the order.”

I concluded that the new arrival must be Israel Hands.

“I don’t say no,” Hands growled, “but I say when?”

“At the last possible moment, that’s when,” replied Silver. “We’ve got a first-rate captain sailing the ship for us, and the squire and the doctor have Flint’s map. We’ll let them find the treasure and haul it onboard. Then we’ll strike.”

“And what will we do with them?” asked Dick.

“Well,” said Silver, “we could leave them on the island, marooned—or we could cut ’em down. That’s what Flint would have done—and Billy Bones, too.”

“Billy was the man for that,” added Hands. “‘Dead men don’t bite,’ he used to say. If ever a rough man came to port, it was Billy Bones!”

“Rough and ready,” said Silver, “and on this point, I agree with him. When I’m a rich man, back in England and riding in my coach, I don’t
A Evaluative Why do you think Silver suddenly breaks off when he is talking about what he will do to other crew members once the treasure is found?

» Answers may vary, but may include that perhaps Silver thinks he has already said too much about his plans to steal the treasure and get rid of the other crew members. Perhaps he wants to change the topic or distract the others so he doesn’t reveal anything else he is thinking of doing, in case the men he is speaking with tell others about his plans.

B [Read the rest of page 38 and page 39 aloud.]

want these men coming home. We’ll wait, but when the time comes, let her rip! I claim Trelawney. Dick—” he added, breaking off suddenly, “jump up like a sweet lad, and get me an apple to wet my pipe.”

An apple! From the barrel! You can imagine how terrified I was.

I heard Dick getting up. I figured I was as good as dead, but then Hands said, “Nah, let’s have something to drink instead.”

Dick went to fetch the drinks, and Hands and Silver continued talking.

“That’s the last of them,” Hands said. “None of the others will join us.”

This lifted my spirits, for it meant there were at least a few faithful men onboard.

When Dick returned, he and the others drank a series of toasts.

“Here’s to luck!” said Dick.

“Here’s to old Flint!” said Hands.

Just then, the lookout up in the crow’s nest shouted, “Land ahoy!”

This was followed by a great rush of Inferential Why does Captain Smollett have a copy of the map that does not show where the treasure is buried?

» Answers may vary, but should include that Captain Smollett asks early on that the treasure map be hidden from the crew, including himself. The captain suspects some of the crew may be dishonest, so he likely made a copy of the map to protect the actual location of the treasure from people who likely can’t be trusted, including Silver.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 4 on Activity Page 6.2.]
“Yes, sir,” he said. “This is the spot—and I believe the best anchorage is right over here in this little cove.”

I was surprised at the coolness with which Silver declared his knowledge of the island. I had, by this time, such a fear of his cruelty and duplicity that I could scarcely conceal a shudder when he called out, “Ahoy there, Jim!” and laid his hand on my shoulder.

“This island is a sweet spot for a lad,” Silver said. “When you want to do a bit of exploring, just ask old John, and I’ll fix up a snack for you to take along.”

After Silver hobbled off, I met with the captain, the doctor, and the squire. I proceeded to tell them everything I had heard. Everyone sat quietly for a few moments until, at last, the squire broke the silence.

“Captain,” he said, “I believe I owe you an apology. You were right, and I was wrong. I await your orders.”

“Well,” said the captain, “I accept your apology, but now I must present to you my opinion of our current predicament. I see three or four important points for our consideration. First, we can’t turn back. If I gave orders to go back, Silver and the others would mutiny at once. Second, we have some time—at least until the treasure’s found. Third, we will come to blows sooner or later. What I propose is that we choose a time to fight when they least expect it. I take it we can count on your servants—Hunter, Joyce, and Redruth—Mr. Trelawney?”

“As upon myself,” declared the squire.

“That’s three honest men,” said the captain. “Ourselves make seven, counting Hawkins here. Now, what about the others?”

“I fancy we can also count on the men Trelawney hired,” said the doctor. “I mean the men he found by himself before Silver intervened.”

“Nay,” replied the squire. “Hands was mine.”

“Well, gentlemen,” said the captain, “we must determine who can be trusted.”

I felt helpless. There were only seven out of twenty-six who were known to be good—and one of those was me, a young boy.

Silver helped the captain guide the Hispaniola to the best anchorage. He knew the passage like the palm of his hand and never hesitated once. Still, there were problems afoot. Discipline had begun to break down. The men were now unfriendly and unwilling to take orders. They seemed to be on the verge of mutiny. Only Silver showed a willingness to obey. When an order was given, he was on his crutch in an instant with a cheery, “Aye, aye, sir!” and, when there was nothing else to do, he sang old sea songs.

The captain called a meeting with our group in his cabin.

“Gentlemen,” he said, “we are in a real pickle here. I believe that if I continue to command this ship, the men will mutiny. If I don’t, Silver will know that something is up. I believe there’s only one thing to do.”

“What’s that?” inquired the squire.

“Leave things to Silver,” the captain replied. ”He’s as anxious as we are to cover things up. He doesn’t want the men to mutiny—at least not yet—and I say we give him a chance to talk them out of it. Let’s allow the men to go ashore if they like. Then Silver can talk with them and get them under his control. If they go, you mark my words, Silver will get them back in line. He’ll bring ’em on board again, mild as lambs.”

B  Inferential  Why does Captain Smollett want Silver to get the dishonest crew members under his control?

» The captain is concerned the men may begin to fight among themselves, overthrow Silver, and mutiny on their own. If Silver can talk them out of beginning the mutiny now, it will give the captain more time and more control.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 5 on Activity Page 6.2.]
[Have students read pages 42 and 43 silently.]

Support What does the captain do to allow Silver to gain control of his men?

» The captain allows Silver and the men to go ashore for the afternoon. While they are alone on the island, Silver will have time to convince them all to wait to mutiny.

We all agreed this was the best plan. Loaded pistols were served to all the sure men. The squire’s men—Hunter, Joyce, and Redruth—were taken into our confidence, and received the news with less surprise and better spirits than we anticipated. After the meeting, the captain went on deck and addressed the crew:

“Lads,” said he, “it’s hot, and we’re all tired. As many of you as would like may go ashore for the afternoon. Take the landing boats. I’ll fire a gun to call you back just before sundown.”

The men must have thought they would trip over treasure as soon as they landed, for their spirits seemed to lift in a moment, and they all gave a cheer. The captain whipped out of sight, leaving Silver to arrange the landing party. In a few minutes, the party was assembled. Six of the seamen were to stay on board. The remaining thirteen, including Silver, were to go ashore.
I thought about the numbers: If Silver was leaving six of his men on the Hispaniola, it was plain that our party could not take over the ship. At the same time, if he was leaving only six men, those men would not pose too much of a danger to the loyal hands. The captain and the others would be safe—and they would not need my help. I thought it might be more useful for me to go ashore. So, without debating the question any more, I slipped over the side and curled up in the front of the nearest boat.

No one in the boat took any notice of me. When we reached the shore, and the men had wandered off, I came out of my hiding place and began to explore the island.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

10 minutes

• Bring the class back together as a group and use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Evaluative Conflict is a literary device often used by authors in which something stands in the way of the main character in a story achieving his or her goal. Why might this chapter be an example of conflict?
   » Jim, the narrator and main character, finds out that many members of the crew are disloyal and are planning a mutiny. Jim, the squire, the doctor, and the captain now must face the dangerous possibility of a mutiny. They will no longer be able to easily and safely get the treasure and go back home. They have to deal with enemies who are planning to fight them for the treasure.

2. Inferential At the end of Chapter 3, Jim is unsure about Long John Silver’s character, or morals. Is Jim still unsure about Silver at the end of this chapter? How do you know?
   » No, after he overhears Silver’s plan to overthrow the crew and steal the treasure, Jim knows Silver is not honest.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the displayed Character Chart.

• Remind students that this chart is being used throughout the unit to record key details and information revealed in each chapter about significant characters.

• Explain that students will take additional notes about Jim Hawkins and Long John Silver.

• Use the information in the following chart to engage students in a discussion about additional information for each of the characters. Tell students to draw on specific details in their responses, such as descriptions of appearance, words, or actions in the text.

Word Work: Predicament

1. In the chapter you read, “‘Well,’ said the captain, ‘I accept your apology, but now I must present to you my opinion of our current predicament.’”

2. Say the word predicament with me.

3. Predicament means a difficult or dangerous situation.

4. We were in a predicament when we got a flat tire late at night on a dark road.

5. What are some other examples of a predicament? Be sure to use the word predicament in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “______ is a predicament.”]

6. What part of speech is the word predicament?
   » noun

[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I will read several sentences. If the sentence is an example of a predicament, say, “That is a predicament.” If the sentence is not an example of a predicament, say, “That is not a predicament.”

1. The dishonest men want to overthrow the crew.
   » That is a predicament.

2. The captain can count on the doctor and the squire.
   » That is not a predicament.

3. Silver plans to leave the honest men on the island, marooned.
   » That is a predicament.

4. Silver says if they don’t leave the men on the island, they could cut ’em down.
   » That is a predicament.

5. Jim hears the seaman come for an apple from the barrel he is hiding in.
   » That is a predicament.
Introduce Relative Pronouns for Things

- Refer to the Relative Pronouns Poster on display. Remind students that a relative pronoun refers to or replaces a noun or a pronoun. Remind students that a relative pronoun also joins clauses, or sections of a sentence, together.

- Remind students that there are two main categories of relative pronouns. Ask students which category they learned about in the previous lesson. (people) Ask students to identify the relative pronouns that refer to or replace people nouns (who, whom, and whose).

- Refer to the first pair of sentences you prepared in advance. Have a student read the sentences aloud.

  My sister sent me a postcard.

  My sister is visiting Germany.

- Combine the two sentences into one by asking students what the two sentences have in common. (my sister) Then ask students for ideas on how to combine the sentences. (Answers may vary.)

- Ask which relative pronoun should be used. (who) Then ask students what the relative pronoun refers to in the sentence. (my sister) Once complete, the sentence should read: My sister, who is visiting Germany, sent me a postcard.

- Explain that the second main category of relative pronouns is Things/Ideas. The relative pronouns in this category refer to or replace nouns or pronouns like dog, park, hat, book, it, and so on. The relative pronouns that refer to or replace things/ideas nouns are that, which, and whose.

- Point out that whose refers to both people nouns and things/ideas nouns.

- Refer to the first pair of example sentences you prepared on the board/chart paper. Have a student read the sentences. Ask students what these two sentences have in common. (Both have the phrase the sweater.)

  She finally found the sweater.

  The sweater had been lost.

- Model combining the two sentences into one sentence by writing the following on the board/chart paper.

  She finally found the sweater that had been lost.

Materials

- Relative Pronouns Poster
- Activity Page 6.3
• Ask students which relative pronoun appears in this sentence. (that) Underline that in the sentence. Ask students what that refers to in the sentence. (sweater) That is used in this sentence because it introduces a section of the sentence that is needed to understand the meaning of the sentence.

• Refer to the second pair of example sentences you prepared on the board/chart paper. Have a student read the sentences. Ask students what these two sentences have in common. (Both have the phrase the grocery store.)

The grocery store was open today.
The grocery store sells apples.

• Combine the two sentences into one sentence by writing the following on the board/chart paper.

The grocery store, which sells apples, was open today.

• Explain that the relative pronoun in this sentence is which. Underline which in the sentence. Ask students what which refers to in the sentence. (store) Which is used in this sentence because it introduces a section of the sentence that is not needed to understand the meaning of the sentence. (sells apples)

  Challenge Point out the commas in this sentence. Explain that which sells apples is not needed to understand the meaning of the sentence, so it is set off from the rest of the sentence by commas.

• Explain that when talking, people often use the relative pronoun that interchangeably with which. When talking to a friend instead of writing, someone might say, “The grocery store that sells apples was open today.” Using that instead of which when talking is acceptable; it’s okay when talking to be more relaxed and informal about whether to follow every grammar rule. It is different when writing; writing is more formal or official, so it is important to follow grammar rules. When writing, be careful to use these relative pronouns correctly: that when introducing a section of a sentence that is needed to understand the meaning and which when introducing a section of a sentence that is not needed to understand the meaning.

• Refer to the third pair of example sentences you prepared on the board/chart paper. Have a student read the sentences. Ask students what these two sentences have in common. (Both have the phrase the book.)

I just started reading the book.
The book’s cover has an elaborate design.
• Combine the two sentences into one sentence by writing the following on the board/chart paper.

I just started reading the book whose cover has an elaborate design.

• Ask students which relative pronoun appears in this sentence. (whose) Underline whose in the sentence. Ask students what whose refers to in the sentence. (book) Whose is used in this sentence because it indicates possession—the cover belongs to the book.

Challenge Point out that there are no commas setting apart whose cover has an elaborate design. Explain that this phrase is needed to understand the meaning of the sentence and should not be set apart from the rest of the sentence with commas.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 6.3. Read the directions aloud and go over the chart with students.

• Have students complete Activity Page 6.3 for homework, or if you feel they need more assistance, complete the activity page as a teacher-guided activity.

MORPHOLOGY

15 minutes

Review Prefixes im– and in– and Roots port and bio

• Tell students that today they will review prefixes and roots covered in previous lessons and units.

• Refer to the Prefixes Poster on display in the classroom and read it. Focus on the prefixes im– and in–, reminding students that they are of Latin origin and both mean “not.” Point out that im– is pronounced /im/ and in– is pronounced /in/.

• Remind students that adding im– or in– does not change the part of speech of the root word, but it does change the meaning of the root word.

• Write mature on the board/chart paper. Briefly discuss the part of speech and meaning of the word. Then use it in a sentence. (Mature is an adjective meaning fully grown, developed, or thought out. Once the seeds grew into mature plants, we took them out of pots and planted them in the ground.)

• Add the prefix im– to mature. Have students read the new word; then discuss the part of speech and the meaning of the word, and use it in a sentence. (Immature is an adjective meaning not fully grown, developed, or thought out. The fruit they picked was immature and not ripe yet, so it didn’t taste very good.)

• Write dependent on the board/chart paper. Briefly discuss the part of speech and meaning of the word. Then use it in a sentence. (Dependent is an adjective meaning relying on someone or something else. We couldn’t drive, so we were dependent on them for a ride around town.)
• Add the prefix in– to dependent. Have students read the new word; then discuss the part of speech and the meaning of the word and use it in a sentence. (Independent is an adjective meaning not relying on someone or something else. When he went on a trip to Germany by himself, he felt very independent.)

• Refer to the Roots Poster on display in the classroom and read it. Focus on the root port, reminding students that it is a Latin root that means “to carry” and is pronounced /port/.

• Write important on the board/chart paper. Briefly discuss the part of speech and meaning of the word. Then use it in a sentence. (Important is an adjective meaning carrying great power, influence, or significance. Getting an education is important to your future success.)

• Remind students that bio is a Greek root that means “life” and is pronounced /bie*oe/.

• Write biodiversity on the board. Briefly discuss the part of speech and the meaning of the word. Then use it in a sentence. (Biodiversity is a noun meaning a variety of plant and animal life in a particular place. A rainforest is an ecosystem with biodiversity because so many different plants and animals live there.)

• Continue in this manner for the remaining words, using the following chart as a guide.

Have students complete the rest of Activity Page 6.4 for homework, or if you feel they need more assistance, complete the entire activity page as a teacher-guided activity.

Note
You will not write the information in the shaded columns on the board/chart paper, as that information is intended for use during oral instruction. Complete as many examples as time permits.
SPELLING

15 minutes

Introduce Spelling Words

- Explain that students will practice 10 words related to the content of the Reader, Treasure Island. These words do not follow one single spelling pattern. Tell students they will be assessed on these words and will write a dictated sentence related to one or more of these words in Lesson 10.

- Introduce the words by writing them on the board/chart paper. First say the word aloud, and then sound out each syllable, naming each letter aloud as you write it. Continue syllable by syllable until the word is spelled correctly. You may wish to use the pronunciation chart to guide students in saying the words.

1. captain 6. commotion
2. ferocious 7. buccaneer
3. treasure 8. mutiny
4. voyage 9. nautical
5. fortune 10. league

Pronunciation/Syllabication Chart

The following chart includes pronunciation and syllabication information for the spelling words. The first column lists the words. The second column breaks the words into decodable sounds based on the Core Knowledge code approach to decoding words. The third column lists syllable types in each word. This information is provided so you can present these new, unfamiliar spelling words in a way that calls upon and reinforces the manner in which students were taught to decode and encode in the earlier grades.

Students who participated in CKLA instruction in Grades K–2 have been taught to read and spell using an explicit, systematic phonics approach. These students will be most successful in learning to spell increasingly challenging words if they are encouraged to segment each word into manageable syllables and then make use of the specific letter-sound code knowledge they were taught in earlier grades. This letter-sound knowledge is summarized on the Individual Code Chart, which lists each sound in the English language, followed by all the possible ways that the given sound could be spelled; the spellings for each sound are listed in the order of frequency with which they occur in English, from most frequent to least frequent spelling. The Individual Code Chart is located in the Activity Book (Activity Page SR.3) and in the Yearlong Teacher Resources on the Grade Four Ancillary Materials page: https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-ancillary-materials-fourth-grade/yearlong-teacher-resources/.

As you introduce and write each word, it may be helpful if you point out particular spelling patterns within each word and show students where these spellings are reflected on the Individual Code Chart. For example, you might note that the word...
nautical includes a schwa sound (/ə/) in the third syllable of the word (i.e., the third syllable is pronounced /kal/, but spelled ‘cal’) and then point out the ‘al’ spelling for /al/ that is included on the Individual Code Chart.

If you are unfamiliar with the CKLA phonics approach and/or have limited phonics training, you may also find the following materials in the Yearlong Teacher Resources on the Grade Four Ancillary Materials page helpful: “Using Chunking to Decode Multisyllable Words” and “Sound and Spelling of Schwa.”

If you have taught CKLA in Grades K–3, you will notice the sound-spelling notation is different in Grade 4 than in previous grades. In Grades K–3, we noted each individual sound spelling within //. For example, the sound spellings for costly would be /kə/o/s/t/ʃ/*l/*ee/. In Grade 4, we use a sound-spelling notation that follows linguistic and dictionary conventions, making each notation easier to see and read. For example, the word costly is now notated as /kost*lee/.

buccaneer (noun) a pirate
The buccaneer was arrested for taking over a ship and stealing in various towns along the East Coast.

mutiny (noun) a rebellion or uprising against those in charge on a ship
A mutiny broke out after a group of workers had made requests that were ignored by their bosses.

nautical (adjective) relating to the sea or sailors
My uncle is a retired fisherman, so he takes me out on the water and teaches me a lot of nautical terms and rules.

league (noun) a unit of length about 3 miles long
The boat was about a league from the shore, so we watched it come into the harbor.

• Tell students the word list will remain on display until the assessment so they can refer to it until then.

• Have students turn to Activity Pages 6.5 and 6.6. Explain that they will take home Activity Page 6.5 to practice spelling the words for homework and complete Activity Page 6.6 for homework.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to cite examples of descriptive language and literary devices in the text.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will plan their own adventure story.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read closely to examine the use of language and literary devices to understand how the events in this chapter impact the plot of the story.

Writing

- Display the Writing Prompt from Lesson 2. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

- Prepare and display the Shape of a Story Chart. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the components for this unit. This chart will remain on display for the remainder of the unit.
Grammar; Morphology; Spelling

- Collect Activity Pages 6.3, 6.4, and 6.6 to review and grade as there are no grammar, morphology, or spelling lessons today.
Close Reading: Chapter 4 “What I Heard in the Apple Barrel”  40 minutes

Review the Chapter 10 minutes

• Have students recall the significant events that happen during Chapter 4, “What I Heard in the Apple Barrel.”

  – Answers may vary, but should include: As the Hispaniola nears the island, Jim overhears a conversation between Silver and some of the other men aboard that proves they cannot be trusted; Silver plans to lead a mutiny and take the treasure once the honest men find it and bring it on board the ship; Jim meets with the captain, the doctor, and the squire to tell them what he heard; they decide to let the dishonest men go ashore upon reaching the island in hopes that this will give Silver an opportunity to convince the men not to mutiny yet; Jim decides to sneak ashore in one of the boats.

• Tell students they will reread and discuss excerpts from Chapter 4, “What I Heard in the Apple Barrel.”

• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

  Read closely to examine the use of language and literary devices to understand how the events in this chapter impact the plot of the story.

Close Reading

There are many ways for students to respond to the questions. Vary how you elicit students’ responses to promote student engagement. For example:

• Have students work in pairs. Following each question, direct students to consult with their partner about the correct response before one student responds.

• Have students work in small groups of three or four students. Following each question, direct students to consult with others in their group about the correct response before one student responds.

• Following a question, have all students provide a written response before one student responds orally.

Read “What I Heard in the Apple Barrel”  25 minutes

• Read the title of the chapter as a class, “What I Heard in the Apple Barrel.” As you read portions of the chapter, pause to explain or clarify the text at each point indicated.

Note

Close reading lessons present excellent opportunities to ensure that English learners and other students who need additional support fully comprehend a reading selection.
want these men coming home. We'll wait, but when the time comes, let her rip! I claim Trelawney. Dick—” he added, breaking off suddenly, “jump up like a sweet lad, and get me an apple to wet my pipe.”

An apple! From the barrel! You can imagine how terrified I was.

I heard Dick getting up. I figured I was as good as dead, but then Hands said, “Nah, let's have something to drink instead.”

Dick went to fetch the drinks, and Hands and Silver continued talking.

“That's the last of them,” Hands said. “None of the others will join us.”

This lifted my spirits, for it meant there were at least a few faithful men onboard.

When Dick returned, he and the others drank a series of toasts.

“Here's to luck!” said Dick.

“Here's to old Flint!” said Hands.

Just then, the lookout up in the crow's nest shouted, “Land ahoy!”

This was followed by a great rush of shuffling feet as the mutineers sprinted away. I waited a few seconds, then slipped out of the apple barrel and followed them.

As we drew near the island, Captain Smollett called out, "Men, have any of you ever seen the island ahead?"

"I have, sir," said Silver. "Once, when I was a ship's cook, we stopped there for fresh water. Skeleton Island, they calls it. It were a main hideout for pirates once. There are three hills on it, and the big one—the one in the middle there, with its top in the clouds—that's called the Spyglass, because it's the perfect place to post a lookout."

"I have a map here," said the captain. "Have a look and see if this is the place."

John Silver's eyes burned with intensity as he took the map, but I could tell it was not the map I had found in Billy Bones's chest. It was a copy that did not show the location of Flint's treasure. Silver carefully concealed his disappointment.
A [Have one student read the second paragraph on page 40 aloud.]

B COMP Inferential Why is Jim surprised by the coolness with which Silver declares his knowledge of the island?
» He knows Silver is lying now. He can’t believe Silver could be so calm while lying to the captain.

Support Cool is a multiple-meaning word. It is often used to describe the temperature of something as being a little cold. Here, it means to act in a calm way. Why is Silver acting cool, or in a calm way?
» He doesn’t want the captain to know he is up to something.

C There is a lot of information in the second sentence in paragraph two. Let’s unpack this sentence so we can understand all the information here.

SYN Inferential When Jim says, “I had, by this time, such a fear of his cruelty and duplicity . . .”, what does he mean?
» Jim means now that he knows Silver is dangerous and not trustworthy, he is afraid of Silver.

SYN Inferential What does it mean when Jim says, “I could scarcely conceal a shudder”?
» It means he could barely hide that he shakes with fear when Silver says his name.

SYN Inferential The last part of the sentence says “. . . laid his hand on my shoulder.” Laid is the past tense of the verb lay, which is used here to mean place or put. Why would Jim be afraid when Silver places his hand on Jim’s shoulder?
» Jim knows Silver is a dishonest man and that he is planning to mutiny. Jim is afraid of what Silver might do to him because Jim doesn’t trust Silver.

Support Ahoy is an interjection sailors use to call out to other ships. Ahoy there! is a phrase pirates use as if to say “Hi there!”

“Yes, sir,” he said. “This is the spot—and I believe the best anchorage is right over here in this little cove.”

A I was surprised at the coolness with which Silver declared his knowledge of the island. I had, by this time, such a fear of his cruelty and duplicity that I could scarcely conceal a shudder when he called out, “Ahoy there, Jim!” and laid his hand on my shoulder.

“Ahoy there, Jim!” Silver said. “When you want to do a bit of exploring, just ask old John, and I’ll fix up a snack for you to take along.”

After Silver hobbled off, I met with the captain, the doctor, and the squire. I proceeded to tell them everything I had heard. Everyone sat quietly for a few moments until, at last, the squire broke the silence.

“Captain,” he said, “I believe I owe you an apology. You were right, and I was wrong. I await your orders.”

“Well,” said the captain, “I accept your apology, but now I must present to you my opinion of our current predicament. I see three or four important points for our consideration. First, we can’t turn back. If I gave orders to go back, Silver and the others would mutiny at once. Second, we have some time—at least until the treasure’s found. Third, we will come to blows sooner or later. What I propose is that we choose a time to fight when they least expect it. I take it we can count on your servants—Hunter, Joyce, and Redruth—Mr. Trelawney?”

“As upon myself,” declared the squire.

“That’s three honest men,” said the captain. “Ourselves make seven, counting Hawkins here. Now, what about the others?”

“I fancy we can also count on the men Trelawney hired,” said the Silver helped the captain guide the Hispaniola to the best anchorage. He knew the passage like the palm of his hand and never hesitated once. Still, there were problems afoot. Discipline had begun to break down. The men were now unfriendly and unwilling to take orders. They seemed to be on the verge of mutiny. Only Silver showed a willingness to obey. When an order was given, he was on his crutch in an instant with a cheery, "Aye, aye, sir!" and, when there was nothing else to do, he sang old sea songs.

The captain called a meeting with our group in his cabin.

"Gentlemen," he said, "we are in a real pickle here. I believe that if I continue to command this ship, the men will mutiny. If I don't, Silver will know that something is up. I believe there's only one thing to do."

"What's that?" inquired the squire.

"Leave things to Silver," the captain replied. "He's as anxious as we are to cover things up. He doesn't want the men to mutiny—at least not yet—and I say we give him a chance to talk them out of it. Let's allow the men to go ashore if they like. Then Silver can talk with them and get them under his control. If they go, you mark my words, Silver will get them back in line. He'll bring 'em on board again, mild as lambs."

Inferential

- E Why does Silver help the captain anchor the Hispaniola?
  - He is still acting helpful in hopes that the captain won’t notice he is planning a mutiny.

- F What effect does use of the idiom like the palm of his hand have instead of just "He knew the passage well"?
  - The figurative language is more descriptive and helps convey how well Silver knows the passage; he knows it very well, just like he knows his own hand very well.

Inferential

- H We are in a real pickle is an idiom that means “We are in a difficult situation.” How does the vocabulary word predicament relate to the meaning of this idiom?
  - Predicament means in a dangerous or difficult situation, which means something very similar to the idiom we are in a real pickle.

Inferential

- I The idiom mark my words means someone is positive that what they just said will happen.

Inferential

- J In the final paragraph, the simile He’ll bring ‘em on board again, mild as lambs is used. How does this simile help the reader understand the expected behavior of the men after Silver talks to them?
  - Lambs are very mild animals; if Silver can get the men to be mild as lambs, it means he will calm them down and they will no longer be ready to rebel.
We all agreed this was the best plan. Loaded pistols were served out to all the sure men. The squire’s men—Hunter, Joyce, and Redruth—were taken into our confidence, and received the news with less surprise and better spirits than we anticipated. After the meeting, the captain went on deck and addressed the crew:

“Lads,” said he, “it’s hot, and we’re all tired. As many of you as would like may go ashore for the afternoon. Take the landing boats. I’ll fire a gun to call you back just before sundown.”

The men must have thought they would trip over treasure as soon as they landed, for their spirits seemed to lift in a moment, and they all gave a cheer. The captain whipped out of sight, leaving Silver to arrange the landing party. In a few minutes, the party was assembled. Six of the seamen were to stay on board. The remaining thirteen, including Silver, were to go ashore.
I thought about the numbers: If Silver was leaving six of his men on the Hispaniola, it was plain that our party could not take over the ship. At the same time, if he was leaving only six men, those men would not pose too much of a danger to the loyal hands. The captain and the others would be safe—and they would not need my help. I thought it might be more useful for me to go ashore. So, without debating the question any more, I slipped over the side and curled up in the front of the nearest boat.

No one in the boat took any notice of me. When we reached the shore, and the men had wandered off, I came out of my hiding place and began to explore the island.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

• Use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Inferential Think Pair Share  Why does Jim think it would be more useful for him to go ashore than to stay aboard the ship?

   » He thinks it would be more useful to explore the island and perhaps keep an eye on what Silver and his men are doing. Also, because Silver does not leave very many men behind, Jim is confident that the men left behind on the ship will not try to do anything to the ship or the others on it.

Word Work: Duplicity

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “I had, by this time, such a fear of his cruelty and duplicity that I could scarcely conceal a shudder when he called out, ‘Ahoy there, Jim!’ and laid his hand on my shoulder.”

2. Say the word duplicity with me.

3. Duplicity means dishonest behavior meant to trick someone.

4. The spy used his duplicity to learn secrets from the enemies.

5. What are some other examples of duplicity? Be sure to use the word duplicity in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: An example of duplicity is . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word duplicity?

   » noun

[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I will read several sentences. If the sentence I read is an example of duplicity, say, “That is duplicity.” If the sentence I read is not an example of duplicity, say, “That is not duplicity.”
1. The spy sneaked behind enemy lines to get information that helped the army win the war.
   » That is duplicity.

2. The children told their parents the truth about what happened when the window broke.
   » That is not duplicity.

3. Long John Silver lied to the captain about knowing where the island was located.
   » That is duplicity.

4. My friend always waits for me before walking to the bus.
   » That is not duplicity.

5. I know I can always count on my brother to help with my homework.
   » That is not duplicity.

WRITING

Plan an Adventure Story

Introduce Shape of a Story

- Tell students that today they will begin planning their adventure story.

- Explain that all stories have a shape or structure. Explain that you will use Treasure Island to model how a story is organized.

- Direct students’ attention to the Shape of a Story Chart you prepared in advance. Ask students what the chart resembles. (a mountain)

- Tell students the shape illustrates how suspense increases in a story. Explain that suspense is a feeling of excitement or nervousness caused by wondering what will happen. Explain that a story starts off flat, with minimal suspense, and gradually increases in suspense until the end when the problem in the story is resolved.

- Point to the “Introduction” line. Explain that the “Introduction” line is flat because it does not increase suspense. An introduction establishes the setting, introduces the main characters, and captures the reader’s attention.

- Explain that in most stories the introduction is part of the beginning of the story.

- Have students recall what happens in the introduction to Treasure Island. (Several characters are introduced including Jim Hawkins (the narrator), Billy Bones, and Black Dog, and the setting is established, The Admiral Benbow Inn. The reader’s attention is captured by interesting characters and elements of danger, such as Black Dog and pirates, and mystery with the sea chest and the sudden death of Billy Bones.)

Materials

- Shape of a Story Chart
- Treasure Island
- Writing Prompt
- Activity Pages 7.1, 7.2
• Explain that the second part of a story is the problem or conflict.

• Have students identify the problem or conflict at the beginning of Treasure Island. (The pirates and the honest men are searching for the same buried treasure. Students may also say the first problem is that Billy Bones is a hunted man.)

• Explain that the third part of a story is called Rising Action. Tell students that Rising Action occurs as the story becomes more exciting or the problem worsens.

• Explain that Treasure Island is a relatively long story, so there are many points of Rising Action. Shorter stories, like the one they will write, will have fewer points of Rising Action.

• Have students brainstorm some of the events in Treasure Island that might be part of Rising Action. Because students have only read through Chapter 4 at this point, be sure not to give away any plot twists. (Events so far: Trelawney goes to Bristol to find a ship and crew; Jim gets to know Long John Silver and wonders if he is trustworthy; Captain Smollett doesn’t trust the crew; the Hispaniola sets sail; Jim overhears Long John Silver convincing some members of the crew to mutiny; Jim tells Trelawney and Livesey what he overhears and they form a plan.)

• Explain that because they have not yet read the entire story, students are not yet able to identify parts of the story that align with the rest of the chart.

• Tell students all stories have a turning point or climax. This occurs when the problem is addressed. It is the most exciting point in the story.

• Point out that students have not read far enough to reach the turning point or climax in Treasure Island but they should look for the story’s climax in future lessons.

• Explain that the resolution or end is the last part of a story and comes after the turning point or climax; in the end, the problem is resolved and the action calms.

Plan an Adventure Story

• Remind students they created a character and selected a setting in previous lessons and now they will focus on the action or main events in the story.

  Support If students need to brainstorm before working on the shape of the story, have them complete Activity Page 7.1 first. The questions correspond to the different stages addressed in the shape of a story, which is displayed on Activity Page 7.2.

  Challenge As students finish Activity Page 7.2, they can begin drafting the introduction to their story in their writing journals.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 7.2 and begin creating the shape of their adventure story.
• Have students refer to the displayed Writing Prompt and Shape of a Story Chart as needed. Circulate and check in with students, ensuring that they understand how to shape a story.

  Feedback Provide reinforcing or corrective feedback for Rising Action examples, such as:

  » I like how the Rising Action moments you have chosen are logically sequenced.

  » It looks like you have identified a Rising Action moment for your climax. How could you rephrase the moment you have identified to instead be when the problem is finally addressed, or a turning point in the story?

  Wrap Up

  5 minutes

  • Ask for student volunteers to share their examples of Rising Action.

  • Have students keep Activity Pages 7.1 and 7.2 for use in future lessons.

TAKE-HOME MATERIAL

Writing

• If students do not finish Activity Page 7.2 during class, have them complete it for homework. They may need to take home Activity Page 7.1 to use as a reference.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to summarize significant events that occur in the chapter and to distinguish between trustworthy and untrustworthy characters.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to write an introduction to an adventure story.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn what happens once Jim Hawkins arrives on Treasure Island.

Writing

- Prepare and display the following excerpt from Treasure Island. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.
Squire Trelawney, Dr. Livesey, and the other gentlemen have asked me to record the story of Treasure Island, keeping nothing back but the bearings because there is still treasure there. Therefore, I take up my pen and go back to the time when my family ran the Admiral Benbow Inn, and the old seaman with the sabre cut on his cheek came to stay with us.

- Prepare and display the Adventure Story Rubric. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

READING

Small Group: Chapter 5 “The Man on the Island”

Introduce the Chapter

- Tell students they will read Chapter 5, “The Man on the Island.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is outlandish.
- Have them find the word on page 44 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate outlandish, and then have a student read the definition.

Materials

- Treasure Island
- Activity Pages 1.3, 8.1–8.3
• Explain the following:
  – The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows:
  – Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition.
    They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

• Have students reference Activity Page 8.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. outlandish, adj. odd, unusual, bizarre (44)
2. dell, n. a small, secluded valley with trees and grass (44)
3. treacherous, adj. dangerous or difficult to handle (45)
4. shipwreck, v. to cause a passenger or crew member to experience the destruction of a ship (shipwrecked) (46)
5. desolate, adj. lacking people, plants, animals, and other things that make a place feel welcoming (46)
6. Union Jack, n. the official flag of Great Britain (49)
7. stockade, n. a barrier made of upright posts used for protection or defense (50)
8. scout, v. to explore an area to find information about it (scouted) (50)

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn what happens once Jim Hawkins arrives on Treasure Island.

Establish Small Groups

Before reading the chapter, divide students into two groups using the following guidelines:

Small Group 1: This group should include students who need extra scaffolding and support to read and comprehend the text. Use the guided reading supports to guide students through reading the text. This is an excellent time to make notes in your anecdotal records. Students will complete Activity Page 8.2 with your support while they read.

Small Group 2: This group should include students who are capable of reading and comprehending text without guided support. We encourage you to differentiate, assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 8.2 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read. Make arrangements to check that students in Small Group 2 have answered the questions on Activity Page 8.2 correctly. You may choose to do one of the following to address this:

- collect the pages and correct them individually
- provide an answer key to students to check their own or a partner’s work after they have completed the activity page
- confer with students individually or as a group at a later time
Read “The Man on the Island”

The following guided reading supports are intended for use with Small Group 1. Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.

Chapter 5
The Man on the Island

At first, Treasure Island seemed a fascinating place. There were marshes full of willows and odd, outlandish, swampy plants and trees. Here and there I saw snakes, and one raised his head from a rock and hissed at me with a noise not unlike that of a spinning top. I explored for a while until I wandered into a thicket of live oak trees, which grew along the sand.

Suddenly a wild duck flew up into the air followed by another, and soon, over the whole surface of the marsh, a great cloud of birds hung screaming and circling in the sky above us. I guessed that some of my shipmates must be drawing near. I listened and heard voices, faint but growing louder. I got down on all fours and crawled until I could see down into a little green dell beside the marsh, closely set about with trees. There Long John Silver and a seaman named Tom stood face-to-face in conversation. It was clear that Silver was testing Tom, trying to find out if he would join the mutiny.

"I'll not be led away," said Tom. "I'd sooner lose my hand. If I forget my duty—"

All of a sudden, he was interrupted. Faraway out in the marsh arose an angry roar, then another. Tom jumped at the sound, like a horse pricked by a rider’s spurs, but Silver winked not an eye. He stood resting lightly on his crutch, watching his companion, like a snake about to strike.

"John!” said Tom, "what was that?”

"That?” said Silver, with a treacherous smile. "Oh, I reckon that was Alan.”

Then Tom seemed to understand everything all at once.

"Alan!” he cried, fearing the worst for his friend. "Well, John Silver, you’re no mate of mine, and that’s a fact! I'll have no part in your mutiny.”

With that, the brave fellow turned his back on the cook and set off toward the beach, but he was not destined to go far. With a cry, Silver seized the branch of a tree, whipped the crutch from under his armpit, and sent the missile hurtling through the air. It struck poor Tom right between the shoulders in the middle of his back. His hands flew up, he let out a gasp, and fell.

I felt faint. The whole world seemed to swim before me in a whirling mist. When I gathered my courage to look again, I saw Silver standing next to Tom, who was motionless on the ground.

A moment later, Silver pulled out a whistle and blew upon it. I guessed he was calling the other pirates, and I was worried they might find me. I crawled out of the undergrowth and ran as fast as I could. It was all over for me, I thought. I would be captured by the mutineers.
A Have students read pages 46 and 47 silently.

B Inferential Who is Ben Gunn?
   » Ben Gunn is an English buccaneer who has been marooned on Treasure Island for three years.

A I ran without knowing where I was going, until a new alarm brought me to a standstill. With a thumping heart, I saw a dark shaggy figure leap behind a tree trunk. Was it a bear? Or a monkey? I could not tell, but I was afraid because I was now cut off on both sides. Behind me were the ferocious pirates, and in front of me, the lurking creature.

   The figure flitted from trunk to trunk like a deer, but it ran on two legs like a man. I was tempted to cry for help, when another sighting reassured me that the creature was indeed a man. I took some comfort in this discovery, and in the fact I had just remembered I carried a pistol in my pocket. I put one hand on my pistol and took a few steps forward. At that precise moment, the man leaped out in the open, threw himself on his knees, and held out his hands as if begging for mercy.

   I could see that he was an Englishman like myself, but his clothes were old and tattered, and his skin had been burned by the sun. In fact, his bright eyes looked quite startling on a face so burned.

   "Who are you?" I demanded.

   "I'm Ben Gunn, I am," he replied. His voice sounded like a rusty lock. "I haven't spoken with a man for three years! I am surprised I still know how to speak."

   "Three years?" I cried. "Were you shipwrecked here?"

   "Nay, friend," said he. "I was marooned."

   I had heard the word, and I knew it stood for a horrible kind of punishment common enough among buccaneers. It was my understanding that when a person is marooned, he is abandoned on a desolate island with not much to rely on other than his wits.
Inferential  What do you think Ben Gunn means when he says, “If I ever get back to England, I’m changing my ways and the company I keep”?

» Ben Gunn was a pirate until another group of pirates marooned him on the island. When he says he’s going to change his ways, he means that he is going to stop being a buccaneer. When he says he will change the company he keeps, he means that he will not associate with pirates anymore.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 2 on Activity Page 8.2.]
“And, Jim . . .” he continued, looking around and lowering his voice to little more than a whisper. “I’m rich! You’ll thank your lucky stars, you will, that you was the first that found me!”

Then a shadow passed over his face, and he took hold of my hand and raised one finger threateningly before my eyes.

“Now, Jim,” he said, “tell me true. Is that Flint’s ship you came on?”

“No,” I replied. “It’s not Flint’s ship. Flint is dead, but we have some of his men with us.”

“Not a man . . . with . . . one leg?” he gasped.

“John Silver?” I asked.

“Yes, that were his name,” he said anxiously.

After talking with Ben Gunn for a few minutes, I no longer feared him. In fact, I told him the story of our voyage, and he heard it with the keenest of interest.

“Well,” he said, “you and your friends are in a pinch, ain’t you? Well, never you mind. Just put your trust in Ben Gunn. But tell me one thing—is this squire of yours an honest man?”

“Yes,” I said.

“Suppose I gave him a share of my money. Do you think he would let me sail home with you?” he asked.

“I’m sure he would,” I replied. He seemed greatly relieved to hear this.

“Well, then,” he went on, “I’ll tell you my story. I was on Flint’s ship when he buried his treasure. He went ashore on this very island, with six strong men. They were ashore nearly a week, and left the rest of us on the ship. Eventually, Flint came back, all by himself. There he was! And the six men? All dead. How he done it, not a man aboard could make out. Billy Bones was the mate back then, and Silver was also part of the crew.

"Then, three years back, I was on another ship, and we sighted this island. 'Boys,' said I, 'this is where Flint buried his treasure. Let's go ashore and find it!' Twelve days we spent lookin' for it. Then the others gave up and went back aboard. 'As for you, Benjamin Gunn,' says they, 'here's a musket, and a spade, and a pickaxe. You can stay here and find Flint's money for yourself.'"

“Well, Jim, that's my story. Now, be a good lad and run and speak with the squire. Tell him I know this island like it's my own.”

“How am I to get back to the ship?” I asked.

“You can use my boat,” he said. “I made it with my own two hands. I keep it under a white rock along the shore.”

Then, quite suddenly, we heard the boom of a cannon.

“They've begun to fight!” I cried.

We stayed together in the undergrowth, unaware of time passing, listening to the sound of cannon and pistol fire. Eventually I decided I should make my way toward the anchorage. Ben agreed to accompany me. At some point along the way, we spotted a Union Jack fluttering above the trees.

“That must be your friends,” said Ben Gunn.

“It can't be,” I said, stunned by the sight of the flag. “They're on the ship. That must be Silver, or some of the other mutineers.”

B Evaluative Do you think Ben Gunn is a trustworthy character? Why or why not?

» Answers may vary, but students should support their opinions with evidence from the text. Students may say Ben Gunn is not a trustworthy character because he is a pirate and, so far in the text, it has become apparent that pirates are often disloyal and not trustworthy. Alternatively, students may say Ben Gunn is a trustworthy character because, after being marooned on an island, he has vowed to change his ways, stop being a pirate, and live a more honest life.

C Inferential When Jim Hawkins and Ben Gunn see the Union Jack, why do you think Ben Gunn says, "That must be your friends’"?

» Jim Hawkins and his fellow shipmates are British. Because the Union Jack is the British flag, it makes sense that Englishmen would fly it because England is part of Great Britain. Pirates do not often fly the flags of their homelands; they often fly the Jolly Roger.

Support What is the Union Jack?

» The Union Jack is the official flag of Great Britain.

Support What is the Jolly Roger?

» The Jolly Roger is the unofficial flag of pirates, featuring a skull and crossbones on a black background.
“Not likely,” said Ben Gunn. “In a place like this, where nobody puts in but gentlemen of fortune, Silver would fly the Jolly Roger. You see, Jim, just over that hill is an old stockade. Flint built it many years ago. I reckon that your friends have retreated to the stockade, and Silver has the ship.”

“Well,” I said, “if it really is them, I should try to help.”

“I’ll not go with you,” said Ben Gunn, “not till I have an opportunity to meet with the squire in private. If he wants to talk, tell him where he can find me and to come with a white flag to show he means well.”

At that moment, a cannonball came whizzing through the trees and tore up the sand, not a hundred yards from us. I ran one way and Ben Gunn ran another.

After parting with Ben Gunn, I decided to assess the situation. First, I went to check on the Hispaniola. I saw she was still anchored in the same place, but now she was flying the Jolly Roger. It seemed that the pirates had indeed taken over the ship. Next, I scouted the shore line. I spotted a big white rock and I figured it must be the rock beneath which Ben Gunn hid his boat. Then I made my way through the woods until I came to the stockade, a plain log house surrounded by a tall fence. I saw that Ben Gunn had been right. My friends were in the stockade with the Union Jack flying above them. I called out to them and was warmly welcomed. They told me their story, and I told them mine.

When fighting broke out on the ship, they had decided they would be safer on the island, so they escaped in two of the landing boats with some guns and supplies. They had heard about the stockade. When the pirates saw them rowing away, they fired on them from the ship and then attacked the stockade. Old Redruth had been killed, and another of our loyal men, Gray, had been injured.
After telling my story, I had a chance to look about me. The stockade was made of trunks of pine. Near the door of the stockade was a little spring that welled up and provided fresh water. There was a small chimney in the roof through which only a little smoke found its way out. The rest stayed in the house and kept us coughing. If we had been allowed to sit idle, we should have all fallen into the blues, but Captain Smollett divided us into watches.

The doctor questioned me about Ben Gunn, “Do you think he’s sane, Jim?”

“I’m not quite sure. He seems a little strange.”

“Well,” said the doctor, “you can’t expect a man who has spent three years on a deserted island to be as clear-minded as you or me.”

We had very little in the way of supplies, and the captain was worried. He thought our best hope was to get the better of the buccaneers. They had lost four men, and two others were wounded.

On an uninhabited island like the one on which Captain Flint buried his treasure, a stockade, usually built by staking tall wooden fence posts into the ground, provides a structure for protection or capture. In Treasure Island the stockade provides a barrier to slow down the mutinous attack. Similar forts could be used to hold prisoners as well.

B Evaluative Based on what you have read, would you characterize buccaneers or pirates as trustworthy or not trustworthy? Why?

» Answers may vary, but students should support their position with evidence from the text. For example, buccaneers are not trustworthy people, as they lie, steal, and treat one another poorly. Marooning Ben Gunn on an island is an example of how buccaneers can be disloyal and not trustworthy. Ben Gunn wanting to take Captain Flint’s treasure is also an example of being disloyal, as that treasure does not belong to him.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 4 on Activity Page 8.2.]
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

• Bring the class back together as a group and use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Inferential What significant events occur during this chapter?
   » Answers may vary, but should include: Jim Hawkins meets Ben Gunn, a pirate who has been marooned on Treasure Island for three years; a mutiny takes place, leaving John Silver and his crew of pirates in charge of the Hispaniola and Jim Hawkins and his friends taking shelter in a stockade on the island.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the displayed Character Chart.

• Remind students that this chart is being used throughout the unit to record key details and information revealed in each chapter about significant characters.

• Explain that students will record information about Ben Gunn, a character first introduced in Chapter 5.

• Use the information in the following chart to engage students in a discussion about the character introduced in the chapter. Tell students to draw on specific details in their responses, such as descriptions of appearance, words, or actions in the text.

• Record the information on the Character Chart. At the same time, have students record the information in the chart on Activity Page 1.3. If necessary, tell students to leave space for additional entries in future lessons.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 8.3. Tell students they will take home Activity Page 8.3 to read excerpts from Chapter 5 and answer related questions.

Word Work: Scout

1. In the chapter you read, “Next, I scouted the shore line.”

2. Say the word scout with me.

3. Scout means to explore an area to find information about it.

4. We will scout the beach for seashells.

5. What are some other examples of scouting? Be sure to use the word scout in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “I scouted ______ looking for . . .” or “You can scout . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word scout?
   » verb
[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I am going to read several sentences. If the person scouted, say “_____ scouted for ____.” If the person did not scout, say, “_____ did not scout for ____.”

1. Sally searched the park for the perfect picnic location.
   » Sally scouted for the perfect picnic location.
   » Nicholas did not scout for his book.
3. Derek looked for rocks during the hike to add to his collection.
   » Derek scouted for rocks.
4. Jennifer drove around the neighborhood trying to find a store.
   » Jennifer scouted for a store.
5. Max walked his dog on a leash.
   » Max did not scout for his dog.

WRITING

Plan and Draft an Introduction

Discuss a Model Introduction 5 minutes

• Direct students’ attention to the Treasure Island excerpt you prepared in advance. Explain that this excerpt is the first paragraph of the story and, therefore, serves as the introduction.

   Squire Trelawney, Dr. Livesey, and the other gentlemen have asked me to record the story of Treasure Island, keeping nothing back but the bearings because there is still treasure there. Therefore, I take up my pen and go back to the time when my family ran the Admiral Benbow Inn, and the old seaman with the sabre cut on his cheek came to stay with us.

• Have students explain the purpose of an introduction. (to introduce the main characters, describe the setting, and capture the reader’s attention)

• Have one student read the excerpt aloud.

• Have students identify the characters introduced in the excerpt. (Squire Trelawney, Dr. Livesey, the old seaman with the sabre cut on his cheek, and the narrator)

• Point out that the introduction also names the setting, the Admiral Benbow Inn. A fuller description follows throughout the chapter.

• Explain that a hook is the information an author provides to capture the reader’s attention. A hook can be particular information, a specific idea, or particular images.

Materials

• Treasure Island excerpt
• Adventure Story Rubric
• Activity Pages 3.2, 7.2, 8.4
• Writing Prompt
• completed character sketch
• writing journals
• Have students explain how the reader’s attention is captured in the excerpt. (The name Treasure Island is mentioned, which evokes mystery, wealth, and adventure. The first-person narrator also implies he has an interesting tale to tell because others have been urging him to do so. The last sentence also ends with a mysterious, scar-faced character the reader wants to learn more about.)

Plan an Introduction

15 minutes

• Tell students they will plan and draft the introduction to their adventure story.

• Refer to the displayed Adventure Story Rubric and have students turn to Activity Page 8.4. Tell students they will use the Adventure Story Rubric to plan their introduction.

• Have a student read the “Exemplary” column in the “Introduction” row aloud.

• Tell students the descriptions for each writing element in the “Exemplary” column will help them plan their introduction. Have students refer to the rubric, and tell them they should focus on three things:
  – Are the characters portrayed clearly?
  – Is the setting described effectively?
  – Does the introduction have a hook?

• Have students refer to the displayed Writing Prompt and Activity Page 7.2. Students may also refer to Activity Page 3.2 and their completed character sketches. Note that they should use the work they’ve produced on character and setting to help them plan their introduction.

• Tell students to write down their ideas for the introduction in their writing journal using all of the resources mentioned. They do not have to write complete sentences yet; instead, they can jot down important phrases, names, and details to use in the introduction.

Draft an Introduction

25 minutes

• Next, have students draft their introduction.

• Explain they should use complete sentences and include figurative language whenever possible. As needed, students can continue referring to the displayed Writing Prompt, Activity Pages 3.2, 7.2, and 8.4, and their completed character paragraphs.

• Explain their introductions will vary in length, but they should write at least five sentences. Some students may need more than one paragraph to introduce their story.

• Guide students to focus on one element of the introduction at a time. For example, have students focus on starting the introduction with a description of the setting. Then students can lead into describing the character(s) in that setting.

• Circulate and check in with students, ensuring that they are writing effectively.
Feedback Provide reinforcing or corrective feedback for the introduction, such as:

» I like the way you’ve described the setting for your story. Can you add another detail after the second sentence?

» It looks like you have identified two interesting characters for your story. How could you use sensory details to help the reader imagine what the characters smell, hear, or see around them?

Challenge If students finish their introduction, they can use Activity Page 7.2 to draft the problem and Rising Action in their story.

Wrap Up

- Have students share their favorite sentence from their introduction.

- If students do not finish writing the introduction, they should complete it for homework.

- Tell students they will reference Activity Page 8.4 in Lessons 12 and 13.

Guidance for Teacher Use of Rubrics

Rubrics are provided for evaluation of the content and structure of student writing composed within each unit. The criteria within the descriptions correspond to what is taught in the writing lessons. “Exemplary” to “Beginning” performance columns provide graduated descriptions for each criterion. The columns for “Strong,” “Developing,” and “Beginning” performance are shaded to help students initially attend to the description for “Exemplary” performance. Rubrics allow teachers and students to identify graduated steps for improvement when aspects of the writing do not meet all the criteria taught. To do this, teachers (and students) may highlight the language from each row that best describes student writing. Consider the following sample rubric with bolding. The rubric communicates a corresponding piece of writing was evaluated as:

- Strong for the “Introduction” section
- Developing for the “Body” section
- Strong for the “Conclusion” section
- between Strong and Exemplary for the “Language” section

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to summarize the significant events that transpire during the chapter and express opinions based on and supported by evidence from the text about relationships between characters.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will have gained additional practice using the relative pronouns who, whom, that, which, and whose in sentences.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will have gained additional practice using words with prefixes im– and in– and words with the roots port and bio in sentences.

Spelling: By the end of this lesson, students will have gained additional practice spelling targeted words.
ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

• Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn what happens next as tension grows between Captain Smollett’s men and John Silver’s pirates.

• Collect Activity Page 8.3 to review and grade at a later time.

Grammar

• As needed, determine student pairs for completing Activity Page 9.3.

Morphology

• Determine student pairs for completing Activity Page 9.4.

Spelling

• Determine student pairs for completing Activity Page 9.5.

READING

Read-Aloud: Chapter 6 “The Plan”

40 minutes

Introduce the Chapter

5 minutes

• Tell students they will read Chapter 6, “The Plan.”

• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

• Tell students they may want to refer to pages 108 and 109 of the Reader, as well as Activity Pages SR.1 and SR.2 while reading the chapter if they have questions about particular ship references.

• Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.

• Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is truce.

• Have them find the word on page 52 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.

• Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate truce, and then have a student read the definition.

Materials

• Treasure Island

• Activity Pages 1.3, 9.1, 9.2, SR.1, SR.2
• Explain the following:
  – The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows:
  – Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

• Have students reference Activity Page 9.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. truce, n. an agreement between enemies to stop fighting for a certain period of time (52)
2. desertion, n. a departure without permission and without intending to return; the act of giving up and ignoring responsibilities (53)
3. onslaught, n. an attack (55)
4. cutlass, n. a short, thick sword with a curved blade (55)
5. excursion, n. a short trip (58)
6. craft, n. a ship or boat (60)

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn what happens next as tension grows between Captain Smollett’s men and John Silver’s pirates.

Read “The Plan” 25 minutes

Read the chapter aloud, as students follow along in their Readers. As you read, stop to read and discuss the corresponding guided reading supports. Guided reading supports in brackets are directional and not intended to be read aloud. All other phrases and sentences are intended to be read aloud verbatim. Whenever asking a guided reading support question, explicitly encourage students to refer to the text and reread prior to offering an answer.
The next morning, I was awakened by the sound of loud voices.

“Flag of truce!” I heard someone yell. Then, “It's Silver!”

I got up and rubbed my eyes. Sure enough, two men stood just outside the stockade—one of them was waving a white cloth, and the other was Silver himself.

“Stay inside,” said the captain. “Ten to one says this is a trick.” Then he shouted to the buccaneers, “Who goes there? Stand or we'll fire!”

“Flag of truce!” cried Silver.

“What do you want with your flag of truce?” Captain Smollett shouted back.

“Cap'n Silver wishes to make terms,” the other man called out.

“Captain Silver?” said the captain. “Don't know him. Who's he?”

John Silver answered: “Me, sir. These poor lads have chosen me... cap’n, after your desertion, sir. We’re willing to submit, if we can come to terms, and no bones about it.”

Captain Smollett agreed to meet with Silver—and only Silver. Silver threw his crutch over the fence, got a leg up, and, with great vigor and skill, climbed over the fence and dropped to the other side.

“Well, now,” he said, “that was a good scare you gave us last night. We lost some men, but you mark me, cap’n, it won’t work twice!” said Silver. “We want that treasure and we’ll have it! You would just as soon save your lives, I reckon. We want the map, so if you hand it over, we won’t do you no harm.”

“Not a chance,” replied the captain.

“Give us the map,” said Silver, “and stop shooting poor seamen. If you do that, we’ll give you a choice. You can come aboard with us once the treasure is stowed away, and I’ll give you my word of honor to put you ashore somewhere safe. Or, if that ain’t to your fancy, you can stay here. We’ll divide the supplies with you, and I’ll send the first ship I sight to pick you up.”

“Is that all?” Captain Smollett asked. “Now hear me! If you come up one by one, unarmed, I’ll clap you all in irons and take you home to a fair trial in England. If not, it won’t end well for you.”

Silver looked scornfully at the captain.

“Give me a hand up!” he cried.

“Not I,” returned Captain Smollett.

“Who’ll give me a hand up?” Silver roared.

Not one among us moved. Silver had to crawl along the sand,

B Evaluative  John Silver says he’ll give Captain Smollett his “word of honor.” Do you think Captain Smollett should trust Silver? Why or why not?

> Answers may vary, but students should support their opinion with evidence from the text. Some students may say Captain Smollett should not trust John Silver because his prior actions have proven he is a disloyal and dishonest man. Alternatively, some students may say that perhaps John Silver has changed his ways and means what he says.

Support  What does word of honor mean?

> a promise to do what a person says he or she will do
Silver looked scornfully at the captain. "Give me a hand up!" he cried.
A “Before an hour’s out, I’ll knock in your old log house. Them that die will be the lucky ones!” he cried.

As soon as Silver left the stockade, we returned to our posts and loaded our muskets. There were several small holes in the walls of the log house. We peered out through the holes and waited for the onslaught.

“Put out the fire!” shouted the captain. “We mustn’t have smoke in our eyes.”

Suddenly, with a loud cry, a group of pirates leaped from the woods on the north side and ran straight toward the stockade. At the same time, gunfire opened from the woods. A rifle ball sang through the doorway and knocked the doctor’s musket to bits.

The pirates climbed over the fence like monkeys. We fired at them, and immediately three of them fell to the ground. Four others made it over the fence and charged forward. In an instant, they were upon us.

“At ’em, all hands!” one of the pirates roared in a voice of thunder. One pirate grasped Hunter’s musket and wrenched it out of his hands. With one stunning blow, he laid poor Hunter senseless on the floor. Meanwhile, another pirate appeared in the doorway and descended upon the doctor with his cutlass.

The log house was filled with smoke, cries, and confusion. Flashes and the reports of pistol shots rang out.

“Out, lads, and fight ’em in the open!” cried Captain Smollett.

B Inferential Why does the fight between Captain Smollett’s men and John Silver’s men break out? What is the purpose?

The fight takes place because Silver and Smollett could not come to an agreement in their discussion. Because Smollett does not give in to Silver’s offers, Silver and his men attack the stockade. Smollett and his men are forced to defend themselves. The purpose of the fight is to determine who will continue on the journey to claim the treasure.
I snatched a cutlass and dashed out into the sunlight.

"Round the house, lads! 'Round the house!" the captain cried.

I raised my cutlass and ran 'round the corner of the house. The next moment I found myself face to face with the pirate named Job Anderson.
He roared and raised his cutlass. I leaped to one side and rolled headlong down the slope.

Gray followed close behind me and took down Anderson before he had time to recover. Another pirate was shot while firing into the house. The doctor had taken down a third. Of the pirates who had made it over
A  Inferential  For whom is the fight a success?

> The fight is ultimately a success for Smollett and his men, as Silver and his remaining pirates flee the scene.

B  [Have students read the remainder of the chapter silently.]

A  the fence, only one remained, and he had seen enough. He dropped his cutlass and clambered back over the fence. In three seconds, nothing remained of the attacking party but the ones who had fallen.

I ran full speed back to the house. Somewhat cleared of smoke, I assessed the price we had paid for the victory. Hunter lay on the ground, stunned. Joyce had been killed. In the center, the squire was holding up the captain, one as pale as the other.

“That's good!” cried the captain. “That means fewer men. That's better odds than when we started.”

B  The mutineers did not return. They had had enough, so we were able to tend to our wounded and get some food. After dinner, the doctor grabbed his hat, pistols, and a cutlass. He slipped the map in his pocket, and with a musket over his shoulder, climbed the fence, setting off briskly through the trees.

“I would not have thought him capable of such a thing,” I said. “I bet he's going to see Ben Gunn.”

I was right, as I found out later. In the meantime, I had another thought. The house was stifling. I began to envy the doctor, walking in the cool shadows of the woods. I longed to escape and set about gathering supplies for my own excursion. I filled both coat pockets with biscuits, then took two pistols to arm myself.
As for the scheme I had in my head, it was not a bad one in itself. I would go down to the shore and look for Ben Gunn’s boat. I knew it was wrong to slip out when nobody was watching, but I was only a boy, and I was determined.

While the squire and Gray were busy helping the captain with his bandages, I bolted into the woods. Before my absence was noticed, I was out of earshot of my companions.

This was my second foolish decision, and it was far worse than the first, for there were only two honest men left to guard the log house. Much like the first time, though, I did it for the good of us all.

I headed up the east coast of the island. After a while, I came out into the open and saw the sea lying blue and sunny to the horizon, and the surf tumbling its foam along the beach. In the distance I could see the Hispaniola, the Jolly Roger waving in the breeze. [C]

The sun was setting, and it grew dark in earnest. I knew I must lose no time if I were to find Ben Gunn’s boat that evening. The white rock was still further down the sandy spit, and it took me a while to get to it. Below the rock was a little hollow, and tucked away inside, covered in old sack cloth, was Ben Gunn’s boat. It was a homemade coracle—a lopsided frame of wood lined with goatskin. It was extremely small, even for me, but it was light and portable.

C Inferential Why do you think Jim leaves the safety of the stockade and goes out on his own?

» Jim describes the stockade as stifling and wants to escape. The doctor goes out on his own, which gives Jim the idea to do the same. He decides to try to locate Ben Gunn’s boat. What he plans to do once he locates Ben Gunn’s boat is not entirely clear, but it seems as though he might try to get to the Hispaniola because he checks to see where the ship is located in relation to his spot on Treasure Island.
I thought the mutineers might be planning to raise anchor and sail away. I wondered how I might be able to prevent this. I could paddle out in Ben Gunn's boat under cover of night, cut the ship loose, and let her drift toward the shore.

I waited for darkness to fall. As the last rays of daylight disappeared, absolute darkness settled over Treasure Island, and I shoved Ben Gunn's boat out of the hollow.

The little coracle was a safe boat for someone my size, but she was the most difficult craft to manage. Turning round and round was the maneuver at which she was best. She turned in every direction but the one I chose. However, by good fortune, the tide swept me down to where the Hispaniola was anchored.

As I drew near, I could hear loud voices in the cabin. One I recognized as Israel Hands, who was having a disagreement with another pirate. Both men were angry and oaths flew like hailstones.

I quietly rowed next to the schooner, then carefully cut the ropes that held the ship in place. The Hispaniola drifted free in the current. To my surprise, the coracle suddenly lurched. She seemed to change course and her speed had strangely increased. I realized that I was being whirled along by the wake of the Hispaniola.

The current turned at right angles, sweeping the tall schooner and the little coracle out to sea. Not knowing what to do, I lay on the bottom of my boat, sure this would be my final day. I must have lain there motionless for some time, but then, even in the midst of my fear, weariness overcame me and I fell asleep.

When I awoke, it was broad daylight. I found myself tossing about in the boat at the southwestern end of Treasure Island. I was barely a quarter of a mile from the shore, and my first thought was to paddle in.
I soon saw the problem with this idea. The coast was rocky, and powerful waves crashed against the rocks. If I tried to land, I might be dashed to death upon the rough shore.

I attempted to paddle to a safer landing spot along the cape, but there was no use. Try as I might, the current carried the coracle past the point of the cape. There, I beheld a sight that changed the nature of my thoughts. It was the Hispaniola. I knew there were at least a few pirates on board, but I could not see any of them. To and fro, up and down, the ship sailed by swoops and dashes, as if nobody was steering. I thought maybe the pirates had deserted the ship, or maybe they were sleeping. I figured if I could get onboard, I could return the ship to the captain.

I set myself to paddle and did so till I drew up alongside the ship, and the bowsprit was just over my head. I sprang to my feet, and leaped up, pushing the coracle under water. Then, with one hand, I caught the jibboom and pulled myself up onto the deck of the Hispaniola.

At first I did not see a soul. However, on the afterdeck I discovered the two men who had been left to watch the ship. One was on his back, lifeless. A little further on sat Israel Hands, propped against the ship wall, with his chin on his chest. His hands lay open, and his face was as white as a candle.

I saw the signs of a fight and felt sure the two men had killed each other. Just then, Israel Hands gave a low moan. He opened his eyes wearily and caught sight of me. He said only two words, "Help me!"
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

10 minutes

- Use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Evaluative Why do you think this chapter is titled “The Plan”?
   - Answers may vary, but should be supported with evidence from the text. The chapter may be called “The Plan” because most of the main characters have some sort of plan they attempt to put into motion over the course of this chapter. The following events take place during this chapter: John Silver reveals his plan of finding and claiming the treasure for himself and then leaving the island—with or without Captain Smollett and his men; Captain Smollett tells of his own plan to capture John Silver and the pirates, and take them to England for a trial; the doctor appears to have a plan, even though it is still unclear by the end of the chapter; most importantly, Jim Hawkins has a plan to bring the Hispaniola to the shore of Treasure Island so Captain Smollett can regain control of the ship.

2. Evaluative At the end of this chapter, who do you think has the upper hand, or have more power and control—Captain Smollett’s men or John Silver’s men? Support your opinion with evidence from the text.
   - Answers may vary, but should be supported with evidence from the text. Students may say Captain Smollett’s men have the upper hand because they are victorious in the battle, are safe in the stockade, and are in possession of the map to the buried treasure, whereas most of John Silver’s men are now dead or wounded. Alternatively, students may say John Silver’s men have the upper hand because they are still in control of the Hispaniola and could, therefore, sail off to safety, while Captain Smollett’s men are stuck on the island.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the displayed Character Chart.

- Remind students that this chart is being used throughout the unit to record key details and information revealed in each chapter about significant characters.

- Use the following chart to engage students in a discussion about additional information learned in this chapter about certain characters.

- Record the information on the Character Chart. At the same time, have students record the information in the chart on Activity Page 1.3. If necessary, tell students to leave space for additional entries in future lessons.

Word Work: Craft

1. In the chapter you read, “The little coracle was a safe boat for someone my size, but she was the most difficult craft to manage.”

2. Say the word craft with me.

3. Craft means a ship or boat.

4. The captain sailed his craft through the storm.

5. What are some other examples of crafts? Be sure to use the word craft in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “______ is a craft.”]

6. What part of speech is the word craft?

   » noun

[Use a Multiple-Meaning Word activity for follow-up. Tell students the word craft is a word with multiple meanings. Share the following with students.]

Meaning #1: craft (noun)—a ship or boat

Meaning #2: craft (noun)—skillful work in making or doing something, especially with one’s hands
I am going to read several sentences. Listen to the context, or the text surrounding craft in the sentence, for clues as to which meaning is being used. When you think a sentence is an example of Meaning #1, hold up one finger. When you think a sentence is an example of Meaning #2, hold up two fingers.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Spelling: Students will be assessed on their knowledge of the correct spelling of targeted words.

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to discuss how and why significant events take place.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to incorporate dialogue as they write an adventure story.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Spelling

- Erase or cover the list of spelling words prior to the assessment.

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to understand how Jim thwarts the pirates’ plan to sail away on the Hispaniola and what happens when Jim discovers Long John Silver and his gang have taken over the stockade.

- Collect Activity Page 9.2 to review and grade at a later time.
Writing

- Write the following sentence from page 72 of the Reader on the board.

“No one lays a finger on the boy!” Silver growled.

- Write the following sentences from page 25 of the Treasure Island Reader on the board/chart paper for practice with dialogue. Omit the punctuation so students can practice inserting punctuation.

Mr. Silver sir I asked hesitantly
Yes lad said he

Fluency (optional)

If students were assigned a selection from the Fluency Supplement, determine which students will read the selection aloud and when. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.

SPELLING

Assessment

- Have students turn to Activity Page 10.1 for the spelling assessment.
- Using the following list, read the words one at a time in the following manner: Say the word, use it in a sentence, and then repeat the word.
- Tell students that at the end you will review the list once more.
- Remind students to pronounce and spell each word syllable by syllable.

Note

This is a good opportunity to use the Tens scoring system to gather formative assessment data. Information about the Tens scoring system appears in the Yearlong Teacher Resources on the Grade Four Ancillary Materials page on the website: https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-ancillary-materials-fourth-grade/yearlong-teacher-resources/.
Spelling Word Example Sentence

1. buccaneer
   - The buccaneer sailed all over the world in search of gold.

2. fortune
   - When he found a penny on the street, he took it as a sign of good fortune to come.

3. nautical
   - The two sailors used lots of nautical words and phrases when they spoke, so it was difficult for me to follow their conversation.

4. league
   - The ship was several leagues out to sea when a giant storm hit.

5. captain
   - The captain gave orders to the crew about which route to take.

6. voyage
   - It was going to be a long voyage for the sailor who got seasick two days into his month-long trip.

7. commotion
   - There was quite a commotion when someone accidentally let their dog loose in the grocery store.

8. mutiny
   - The sailors felt mistreated by their captain, so they decided to stage a mutiny and stopped working.

9. ferocious
   - The cat seemed ferocious to the little girl, but it was actually very sweet.

10. treasure
    - When I was cleaning my grandmother’s house, I found a box of treasure that she had collected over the years.

---

- After reading all of the words, review the list slowly, reading each word once more.
- Have students write the following sentence as dictated.

  The captain set off on a voyage in search of fortune.

- Repeat the sentence slowly several times, reminding students to check their work for appropriate capitalization and punctuation.

- Collect all spelling assessments to grade later. Use of the template provided at the end of this lesson is highly recommended to identify and analyze students’ errors.

Introduce the Chapter

5 minutes

- Explain that the title is an idiom that would be difficult to understand without some background. Shiver me timbers is a catch phrase often attributed to pirates in literature. It is used to express shock, surprise, or annoyance. The phrase comes from nautical slang, and the word timbers refers to the wooden support frames of a sailing ship. In rough waters, ships would be lifted up and down by the waves so hard as to “shiver” or shake the timbers, startling the sailors.

- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

- Tell students they may want to refer to pages 108 and 109 of the Reader, as well as Activity Pages SR.1 and SR. 2, while reading the chapter if they have questions about particular ship references.

- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.

- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is lash.

- Have them find the word on page 64 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.

- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate lash, and then have a student read the definition.

- Explain the following:
  - The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun–n.; verb–v.; adjective–adj.; adverb–adv.
  - Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

- Have students reference Activity Page 10.2 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
1. lash, v. to tie down with a rope or cord (lashed) (64)
2. pretext, n. a pretend reason given to hide one's true reason for doing something (64)
3. treachery, n. a betrayal; an act of hurting someone who trusts you (64)
4. unison, n. agreement; the same way at the same time (65)
5. right, v. to correct or put in an upright position (righting) (67)

Establish Small Groups

Before reading the chapter, divide students into two groups using the following guidelines:

- Small Group 1: This group should include students who need extra scaffolding and support to read and comprehend the text. Use the guided reading supports to guide students through reading the text. This is an excellent time to make notes in your anecdotal records. Students will complete Activity Page 10.3 with your support while they read.
Small Group 2: This group should include students who are capable of reading and comprehending text without guided support. We encourage you to vary how you assign students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 10.3 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read. Make arrangements to check that students in Small Group 2 have answered the questions on Activity Page 10.3 correctly. You may choose to do one of the following to address this:

- collect the pages and correct them individually
- provide an answer key to students to check their own or a partner’s work after they have completed the activity page
- confer with students individually or as a group at a later time
Read “Shiver Me Timbers”

The following guided reading supports are intended for use with Small Group 1. Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
A  [Have a student read page 62 aloud.]

B  Literal Describe the scene on the Hispaniola when Jim arrives.
   » The ship is a mess; every chest has been opened and ransacked as the pirates searched for the treasure map.

C  Evaluative Jim seems much surer of himself in this scene than in earlier chapters. How does he show leadership on the Hispaniola?
   » Answers may vary, but may include Jim acts fairly but authoritatively with Israel Hands. He gives him a drink and addresses him politely, as a gentleman or captain would. However, Jim also speaks confidently, telling Hands he will now take over the ship and be his captain. Jim takes charge of the situation, making him seem mature.

   [Have students record the answer(s) to question 1 on Activity Page 10.3.]

D  Inferential Why does Jim take down the Jolly Roger and shout “God save the king!”?
   » Answers may vary, but may include Jim takes down the Jolly Roger to show that the pirates no longer control the ship. God save the king! is a victory cheer meant to intimidate Hands, assert Jim’s authority, and give Jim courage to proceed with his plans to secure the ship. It also indicates that the ship is again sailing under the British Flag.

I left Israel Hands on deck and, with no time to lose, went to inspect the ship’s cabin. It was a scene of mass confusion. The pirates had ransacked the ship and opened every chest in search of the map.

My mouth was parched and dry. I found some water and drank it, gulping and spluttering in the process. I also took some up on deck for Hands.

“Mr. Hands,” I said. “I am taking possession of this ship. From now on, I am your captain.”

He looked at me sourly but said nothing. I gave him a sip of water and set the cup to one side.

Then I took down the Jolly Roger.

“God save the king!” I shouted.

Hands watched me slyly, with his chin on his chest. At last he spoke.
“Mr. Hands,” I said. “I am taking possession of this ship. From now on, I am your captain.”
A  Have students read pages 64 and 65 silently.

B  Inferential Why does Jim agree to help Israel Hands by binding his wound and getting him food?
   » Jim doesn’t know how to sail a ship, so he needs Hands’s help to get to shore.

C  Inferential How does Jim know that Hands will turn against him?
   » Jim says Hands has a “look of treachery,” meaning he can see the deceit in Hands’s expression. Jim cleverly peeks out onto the deck without Hands knowing and watches as the pirate grabs a dagger and hides it in his shirt.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 3 on Activity Page 10.3.]

“Well, Cap’n Hawkins,” he groaned. “I reckon you’ll want to get ashore, so suppose we talk. This man,” he said, nodding feebly at the body on the deck, “this man and me got the ship ready to sail back home. Who’s to sail her now? You’re not a sailor, and I reckon unless I give you a hint, you ain’t the man for the job. Now, look here, we need to join forces. Get me a scarf and help me tie up this wound, and then I’ll tell you how to sail her.”

I agreed to work with him, at least for the time being. I lashed the wheel in place and went below to get a handkerchief. I returned to the deck and helped Hands bind up the wound in his thigh. After another gulp or two of water, he sat up straighter, spoke clearer, and looked in every way a revived man.

“Cap’n,” he said, after a while. “I’d take it kindly if you’d get me something to eat. I need some sustenance if we are to manage this ship.” I guessed that this was just a pretext, as his face contained the look of treachery. He wanted to get me off the deck for some reason, though I wasn’t sure why. However, I cleverly masked my suspicions.

“All right,” I answered. “I’ll bring you up some food, but I may have to dig around a bit to find something worth eating.”

I went below, slipped off my shoes, and ran quietly along the gallery deck until I got to the forecastle ladder. I climbed up toward the deck and popped my head out, as I knew Hands would not expect to see me there.

He had risen to his hands and knees, and, though his leg was obviously injured, he was pulling himself across the deck at a good clip. At length, he grabbed a dagger, which he concealed inside his jacket, and then hurried back into his old place against the wall of the ship.

This told me all I needed to know. Hands was mobile, he was armed, and it was clear that I was to be his next victim. Yet I felt sure Hands would not attack me right away. He wanted to get back to land as much as I did. Therefore, he would wait until the ship was safely at anchor.

Hands and I worked in unison to guide in the ship. The entrance to the anchorage was narrow. He gave orders, and I obeyed without giving him the slightest hint that I trusted him as much as I trusted my worst enemy.

Finally, as we approached the anchorage, I heard something creak and saw a shadow moving toward me. I looked around, and there was Hands, coming at me with the dagger in his hand. He roared with fury, like a charging bull. I leaped sideways, letting go of the wheel and ducking away from him. The wheel caught him, leaving me just enough time to reach into my pocket and draw my pistol. I hastily took aim and pulled the trigger. The hammer fell, but the pistol did not fire—the gunpowder was wet.

Hands came after me again, and with no time to reload, my only hope was to retreat. As I fled, the Hispaniola ran aground on a sandbar. The ship tilted to the port side, till the deck stood at an angle of forty-five degrees. Hands and I fell and rolled about the deck.

I got up first and sprang into the ropes. Hands struck at me with his dagger but missed. I began to reload my pistol, and Hands realized the odds were going against him. He hauled himself up into the rigging after me with the dagger clenched between his teeth. He was a third of the way up by the time I readied my pistol.

“One more step, Mr. Hands,” said I, “and I’ll shoot!”

He stopped, and I could see in his eyes that he was considering his next move.

D Inferential It seems that Hands has an advantage in the fight on deck because he is a stronger, more experienced fighter, but Jim has luck on his side. How does Jim gain the advantage in their battle?

» When Jim dodges Hands’s first attack, the wheel catches Hands, giving Jim time to grab his pistol. Then, the ship runs aground, knocking both of them down. Jim manages to get up quickly and load his pistol while Hands climbs up the ropes.
With a choked cry, Hands plunged headfirst into the water.
"Jim," he said, taking the dagger from his mouth. "I'd have had you if the ship hadn't run aground. I reckon I'll have to give up."

As he spoke these words, he lurched forward. Then something sang through the air like an arrow. I felt a sharp pain and looked to my left. Hands had thrown the dagger, and it had pierced my left shoulder. Without thinking, I fired my pistol.

With a choked cry, Hands plunged headfirst into the water.

The ship was leaning hard to one side, and the masts stuck out over the water. I was afraid I might fall, too. The wound on my arm burned like a hot iron, and I shuddered. Somehow, and I'm not sure how, I slowly let myself down on the deck. Then I went below and tied up my wound. The pain was terrible, and it bled freely, but it was neither deep nor dangerous, and I found I could still use my arm.

After righting the ship, I let myself drop softly overboard into the cool salty water. I waded ashore just as the sun went down.

I made my way back to the stockade. It was dark, and I was able to climb over the fence without being detected. Not a soul stirred. As I made way into the log house, I heard the sound of snoring. I wondered... to myself how my friends were taking such a great risk sleeping when they should be standing watch. What if Silver and the pirates launched an attack?

Suddenly my foot struck something. It was a man’s leg. The owner of the leg groaned. Then a shrill voice broke forth in the darkness.
“Pieces of eight! Pieces of eight!”

It was Silver’s parrot, Captain Flint!

I turned to run, but as soon as I did, I collided with another man who grabbed me and held me tight.

Soon the red glare of a torch lit up the interior of the log house. I saw Silver’s face. First he squinted at me and then he smiled.

“Well, shiver me timbers!” he said. “It’s Jim Hawkins! Welcome, lad!”

Even though his greeting was deceptively friendly, Silver had his men tie me up. I counted that he had five men left, but one of them was ghostly pale, with a blood-stained bandage ‘round his head, so I figured he would not be able to put up much of a fight.

I could not imagine how these six buccaneers could have driven my friends out of the stockade.

Silver lit a pipe and patted me on the back.

“I knew you were smart, Hawkins,” he said. “You’re a lad of spirit, too. I’ve always said you should get a share of the treasure yourself. And now, I’m afraid you’ve got no choice but to side with us. Cap’n Smollett won’t have you back, and even the doctor has turned against you. ‘Ungrateful scamp.’ That’s what he called you. No, you can’t go back to your own lot now, for they won’t have you. You’ll have to join with Cap’n Silver!”

From this exchange, I learned that my friends were still alive. As for what Silver said about my friends being angry with me, I confess I partly believed him.
"Well," I said, "if you are forcing me to choose sides, I have a right to know why you're here and where my friends are."

"Well, Mr. Hawkins," Silver began, "yesterday morning Dr. Livesey came to see us with a flag of truce. 'Silver,' says he, 'you've been sold out. The ship's gone.' Well, that was news to us. Anyway, none of us had been keeping an eye on the ship. We looked out, and by thunder, he was right, it was gone! 'Well,' says the doctor, 'let's bargain.' We bargained, him and I, and here we are. We've got the log house, supplies, some firewood, and a landing boat. As for them, they've gone, and I don't know to where.

"Jim," he went on, "in case you're thinking that maybe you was included in the deal I made with the doctor, well, think again. I asked him, 'How many are you?' And he told me: 'four.' 'What about the boy?' says I. And he says, 'Don't know where he is and don't much care.'"

"Well," I said, "let the worst come—but there's a thing or two I have to tell you. You're in a bad way, you've lost the ship, and you haven't got the treasure. You've lost most of your men to boot. Your whole business has gone to wreck, and if you want to know who did it—I’m the one! I was in the apple barrel the night we sighted land, and I heard you talking with the others. I heard every word you said—and told my friends before the hour was out. As for the Hispaniola, it was I who cut her loose, it was I who killed the men you had left aboard, and it was I who anchored her where you’ll never see her more! Kill me, if you please, or spare me, but one thing I’ll say, and no more. If you spare me, bygones are bygones, and when you are in court for piracy, I’ll save you if I can. You choose. Kill me and do yourself no good, or spare me and keep a witness to save yourself from the fate of a judge and jury.”

At last I stopped. I was out of breath. Not a man moved. The pirates sat staring at me.

“Well, well,” said Silver, with a curious accent. “That’s a mighty fine speech.”

I could not decide if he was laughing at me or if he was impressed by my apparent courage.

B Support [Explain that the saying bygones are bygones means let the past stay in the past. This means that Jim will not hold a grudge and will not allow himself to be affected by what has transpired with Silver in the past.]

C Inferential Why does Jim tell Silver he sabotaged the pirates’ plans, or caused them to fail?

» Jim wants to show Silver he is brave and clever in the hopes Silver will spare his life. Jim is proud that he outwitted the pirates, and he seems to relish the chance to tell his story.

D Evaluative Why does Jim give Silver a choice rather than simply beg for his life?

» Rather than begging for his life, he offers arguments that show his cleverness and bravery. Jim hopes if he can convince Silver that he is not only brave and smart, but also more valuable as an ally and witness, Silver will not have the pirates kill him. Although Jim is probably scared, he doesn’t show it. Instead, he speaks confidently, showing his wits and courage. Jim says “You choose,” which is a command. So at his most vulnerable, dangerous moment, Jim tells Silver what to do. In other words, the language Jim chooses makes him sound as if he is in control.

E Evaluative Explain why the chapter is titled “Shiver Me Timbers.”

» Long John Silver uses the phrase on page 69 to emphasize his surprise at seeing Jim enter the stockade. The chapter is full of surprises—the battle on the Hispaniola, Jim returning to the stockade to find the pirates there, Jim telling Silver that he is the one who foiled Silver’s plan—so the chapter title captures the idea of surprise by referring to that phrase.

Support [Remind students that shiver me timbers is a catchphrase often attributed to pirates that is used to express shock, surprise, or annoyance. The phrase comes from nautical slang, and the word timbers refers to the wooden support frames of a sailing ship. In rough waters, ships would be lifted up and down by the waves so hard as to “shiver” or shake the timbers, startling the sailors.]
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson 5 minutes

- Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the displayed Character Chart.

- Remind students that this chart is being used throughout the unit to record key details and information revealed in each chapter about significant characters.

- Explain that students will take additional notes about Jim Hawkins.

- Use the information in the following chart to engage students in a discussion about additional information about Jim Hawkins. Tell students to draw on specific details in their responses, such as descriptions of appearance, words, or actions in the text.

- Record the information on the Character Chart. At the same time, have students record the information in the chart on Activity Page 1.3. If necessary, tell students to leave space for additional entries in future lessons.

Word Work: Collide 5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “I turned to run, but as soon as I did, I collided with another man who grabbed me and held me tight.”

2. Say the word collide with me.

3. Collide means to crash together with strong force.

4. Both drivers slammed on their brakes so their cars would not collide.

5. What are some other examples of situations where people or things might collide? Be sure to use the word collide in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ might collide if . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word collide?
   » verb

[Use a Sharing activity for follow-up.] You will be working with a partner for this activity. Describe a situation to your partner in which there is a good chance two things will collide. Your partner will respond by providing a full sentence to describe the situation. For example, you might say, “running quickly in a crowded hallway.” Your partner would elaborate by saying, “If I run quickly in a crowded hallway, I might collide with another person.” Then switch roles.
INTRODUCE DIALOGUE

- Tell students you will discuss dialogue and how to insert it in a story.
- Have students define the term dialogue (when two or more characters speak in a story).
- Explain that dialogue is important because it helps readers get to know the characters and how they interact with one another. It also involves the reader in the story and makes events seem more real. Dialogue transmits important information and shows characters’ feelings. Dialogue shows rather than tells.
- Direct students’ attention to the sentence from the Reader you prepared in advance. Have a student read the sentence aloud.

  “No one lays a finger on the boy!” Silver growled.

- Have students explain briefly what is happening in the story. (Long John Silver is defending Jim against the other pirates.)
- Ask students why growled is a stronger verb choice than said or stated. (The strong verb lets us imagine what Silver sounded like. Growled implies that he sounded angry and similar to an animal. The word choice also shows that Silver is a leader and has influence over the other pirates.)
- Tell students as they write dialogue, they should imagine what the characters are thinking and feeling.
- Explain that there are punctuation rules for writing dialogue. Remind students that they learned about how to use commas and quotation marks in dialogue in the grammar lessons of Unit 5, Geology.
- Have students reread the example sentence from page 72 in Treasure Island.
- Remind students that quotation marks show exactly what is being said by a particular character. The quotation marks set off what is being quoted from the rest of the text.
- Remind students that punctuation for dialogue should be located inside the quotation marks. For example, the exclamation point at the end of Silver’s statement is included inside the quotation marks because it relates to the dialogue.
- Remind students that punctuation not for dialogue should remain outside of the quotation marks.
- Explain that students should begin a new paragraph each time there is a new speaker, starting on a new line and indenting.
- Direct students’ attention to the sentences you prepared in advance and have students read the sentences silently.

MATERIALS

- Treasure Island
- writing journals
Mr. Silver, sir? I asked hesitantly.

Yes, lad, said he.

• Tell students the sentences are examples of dialogue. Have students punctuate the sentences on the board/chart paper correctly, either orally or by appointing a student scribe.

“Mr. Silver, sir?” I asked hesitantly.

“Yes, lad,” said he.

• Once the punctuation is in place, have students turn to page 25 in the Reader to see if the sentences are punctuated correctly.

• Tell students that they will be incorporating dialogue into their adventure story drafts at least twice.

• Have students think about the characters they created in their introduction and create dialogue for their story in their writing journal for the remainder of the lesson.

   Support Pair students and have them brainstorm dialogue with their partner before writing in their journal.

   Support Remind students of the punctuation rules as needed.

• Students might make the following errors:
  – captain: using ‘e’ or ‘i’ instead of ‘ai’ for /a/– ferocious: using ‘shus’ or ‘shis’ instead of ‘cious’ for /shәs/
  – treasure: using ‘ezh’ instead of ‘eas’ for /ezsh/

  – nautical: using ‘naw’ or ‘naugh’ instead of ‘nau’ for /naw/; using ‘kul’ or ‘kel’ instead of ‘cal’ for /kәl/
  – league: using ‘ee’ instead of ‘ea’ for /lee/; using ‘g’ or ‘ge’ instead of ‘gue’ for /g/

• Although any of the above student-error scenarios may occur, misspellings may be due to many other factors. You may find it helpful to use the analysis chart to record any student errors. For example:
  – Is the student consistently making errors on specific vowels? Which ones?
  – Is the student consistently making errors at the ends of the words?
  – Is the student consistently making errors in multisyllable words, but not single-syllable words?

• Also, examine the dictated sentence for errors in capitalization and punctuation.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain how Long John Silver persuades Jim to bargain with him and how Silver convinces the pirates to stay loyal to him.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to correctly use coordinating conjunctions in sentences with appropriate punctuation.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to distinguish between root words and words with the suffix –ful or –less and use those words correctly in sentences.

Spelling: By the end of this lesson, students will be prepared to practice spelling targeted words.
ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading
- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to find out what Silver does to keep himself in control and out of harm's way.

Grammar

- Write the following example sentences on the board/chart paper.

I like cake and pie.
She loves cats, and I love dogs.

She wanted to go to the park but couldn’t go.
We wanted pineapple, but we got watermelon instead.

Christopher was sick, so he stayed home from school.
Olivia needed to buy sugar, so she went to the market.

The sign said to be quiet, yet it was very noisy.

Fluency (optional)
- Choose and make sufficient copies of a text selection from the online Fluency Supplement to distribute and review with students for additional fluency practice. If you choose to do a fluency assessment, you will assess students in Lesson 15. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.
Small Group: Chapter 8 “My Life Hangs in the Balance” 40 minutes

Review 5 minutes

• Have students summarize Chapter 7, “Shiver Me Timbers,” noting how the chapter ends.

  – Answers may vary, but should include the following: Jim Hawkins takes over the Hispaniola; he fights Israel Hands; Jim gets back to the island and returns to the stockade, only to find that the pirates are there; the pirates tie Jim up; John Silver tells Jim that he made a bargain with the doctor and that the doctor, squire, and the others are still alive but he doesn’t know where they are. Students should note that the chapter ends with Jim making a speech to the pirates taking responsibility for the state of things. He says the pirates can kill him or spare him—but if they kill him, they have nothing, and if they spare him, he will try to help them when they are in court for piracy.

Introduce the Chapter 5 minutes

• Tell students they will read Chapter 8, “My Life Hangs in the Balance.”

• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

• Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.

• Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is taunt.

• Have them find the word on page 72 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.

• Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate taunt, and then have a student read the definition.

• Explain the following:

  – The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun–n.; verb–v.; adjective–adj.; adverb–adv.

  – Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

• Have students reference Activity Page 11.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:

  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.

  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

Materials

• Treasure Island

• Activity Pages 11.1, 11.2

Establish Small Groups

Before reading the chapter, divide students into two groups using the following guidelines:

✨ Small Group 1: This group should include students who need extra scaffolding and support to read and comprehend the text. Use the guided reading supports to guide students through reading the text. This is an excellent time to make notes in your anecdotal records. Students will complete Activity Page 11.2 with your support while they read.

✨ Small Group 2: This group should include students who are capable of reading and comprehending text without guided support. We encourage you to vary how you assign students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 11.2 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read. Make arrangements to check that students in Small Group 2 have answered the questions on Activity Page 11.2 correctly. You may choose to do one of the following to address this:

- collect the pages and correct them individually
- provide an answer key to students to check their own or a partner’s work after they have completed the activity page
- confer with students individually or as a group at a later time

Read “My Life Hangs in the Balance” 25 minutes

The following guided reading supports are intended for use with Small Group 1. Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
[Have students read pages 72 and 73 silently.]

After I taunted the pirates, Silver’s men were itching to punish me. One stepped toward me, but Silver stopped him.

"Stop there!" he cried. "You’re not the cap’n here. I’ll teach you! Cross me, and you’ll go where many a man’s gone before—to feed the fishes!"

Silver’s man stepped back, but an audible murmur rose from the other men.

"No one lays a finger on the boy!" Silver growled.

After this there was a long, uneasy silence. I stood straight up against the wall, with my heart beating like a sledgehammer. Silver leaned back against the wall, with his arms crossed and his pipe in the corner of his mouth, as calm as could be. But he kept one eye on his unruly followers.

The other pirates drew together at the far end of the log house and began to whisper among themselves. One after another, they would look up, but it was not me they were looking at. It was Silver. Eventually they went outside, leaving Silver and me alone.

"Now, look here, Hawkins," Silver said in a whisper that was barely audible. "You're within half a plank of death. They're going to try to throw me off, but I'll stand by you through thick and thin. I didn't mean to. No, not till you spoke, but now I see what sort of man you are. You stand by me, and I'll stand by you. I'll save your life if I can—but, if I do, it's tit for tat, Jim. You've got to help me out if I get into a sticky spot with the squire and your people. You've got to do what you can to save John Silver."

I was bewildered. It seemed a hopeless thing he was asking. After all, he had been the ringleader from the beginning. I told him I would do what I could if it should come to that.

"Then, it's a bargain!" he said, still whispering. "I'm on the squire's side from now on, and you and I will stick together."

We sat in silence for a few moments and then Silver continued, "While we're sittin' here, perhaps you can explain somethin'. Why do you suppose the doctor decided to give me Flint's map?" he asked.

My face must have expressed complete astonishment. I could not imagine why Dr. Livesey would have given Silver the map, and I wondered if he really had. Silver saw that I was surprised, but he did not press me for an answer.

"There's a reason for it, no doubt," he said, shaking his head like a man who expects the worst.

Just then the door opened, and one of the mutineers stepped in. Or, more like it, he was pushed in by the others. He was visibly trembling.

B Inferential Based on what Silver tells Jim, why is Silver protecting Jim?

» Based on what Silver tells Jim, Silver is protecting Jim because Silver has decided he is on the squire's side now. He says that Jim’s speech showed him what sort of man Jim is and that the speech changes Silver’s mind about what to do. Silver says that, in turn, he expects Jim to help him later.
A [Have students read pages 74 and 75 silently.]

B Support Why do the pirates give Silver the black spot?
   » The pirates give Silver the black spot because they want to mutiny. The pirates no longer want Silver as their leader. They say Silver has made a mess of their original plan, he let the other men get away, and he will not let them hurt Jim.

Support What is the black spot?
   » The black spot is the sign for mutiny.

“Don’t worry, lad,” said Silver. “I won’t eat you. I know what’s happening.”

The buccaneer presented a slip of paper to Silver.

“The black spot!” said Silver. “I thought so. They’re fixin’ to mutiny.”

Silver didn’t waste a second. He called the others in. “Let’s hear your grievances,” he said. “Then I’ll give you an answer.”

A pirate by the name of George Merry laid out the case against Silver: “You’ve made a mess of this cruise, John,” he said. “You let the enemy out o’ this here trap for nothin’. Then you wouldn’t let us go after them, and, on top of it all, you insist on protecting the boy.”

“Is that all?” asked Silver quietly.

B

“I’d say that’s enough!” retorted Merry.

“Well, now, look here,” said Silver. “I’ll answer these points, one after another, I’ll answer ’em. I made a mess of this cruise, did I?

74
You all know what my plan was, and if we had stuck to it, we'd a been aboard the Hispaniola this night, every man of us alive, and the treasure stowed safely in the hold. Now you have the insolence to stand for cap'n over me—you, that sank the lot of us!"

Silver paused, and I could see by the other men's faces that these words had not been said in vain.

"You say this cruise is ruined," Silver continued. "By gum, you're right about that. We're close to being locked up, but there's one thing that may save us yet and that's this boy. You scurvy dogs want to kill him? What sort of a fool plan is that? Much better to keep him alive. Maybe you didn't know that there's a rescue boat coming to get these gentlemen, but there is, and when that boat arrives, you'll be glad we have a hostage to bargain with."

Silver spat on the ground and went on, "And as for why I made a bargain with the squire, well, look here!" As he spoke, he pulled the map out of his pocket. "Right here's why I done it!"

I looked and saw that it was the map with the three red crosses, the one I had found in the captain's sea chest. Dr. Livesey really had given it to Silver! But why? I could not imagine.

The other mutineers were stunned, too. They leaped on the map like ravenous beasts. It was passed from hand to hand, one tearing it from another, and by the oaths and the cries and the childish laughter with which they accompanied their examination, you would have thought they were fingering the gold itself, already loaded safely on the ship.

"Yes," said one, "it's Flint's writing, sure enough!"

"Then there's hope in it yet!" exclaimed another.
A [Read pages 76 and 77 aloud.]

B Inferential Why do the pirates decide not to go forward with their mutiny?

> The pirates decide not to mutiny when Silver produces the treasure map. They decide they still have an opportunity to retrieve the treasure if they continue on with Silver as their leader, so they decide not to mutiny.

"Mighty pretty!" said George Merry. "But how are we to get away with the treasure now that the ship's gone?"

"How are we supposed to get away?" Silver barked angrily. "You ought to tell me—you and the rest that lost me my schooner! But no, you can't! You haven't got the invention of a cockroach. You lost the ship; I found the treasure. Who's the better man? By thunder, I resign! You can elect a new cap'n if you fancy. I'm done with it!"

By this point, the men had changed their minds. It was the map that convinced them.

"Silver!" they cried. "Silver for cap'n! John Silver forever!"

"So that's the tune, is it?" said Silver. "Well, George, I reckon you'll have to wait another turn. Here, Jim—here's a curiosity for you."

He handed me the paper the men had given him. I saw that one side had been blackened with wood ash, while the other displayed the word deposed.

After this, Silver tied me up, and we all went to sleep. Well, all except me, that is. I had trouble sleeping. As I lay in the darkness, I thought of the man I had fought that afternoon and my perilous position. Above all, I thought of the remarkable game that Silver was playing—keeping the mutineers together with one hand, while grasping with the other after every way, possible and impossible, to save his miserable life. He himself slept peacefully and snored loudly, yet my heart was sore for him, wicked as he was, to think of the dangers that surrounded him and the shameful fate that surely awaited him.

The next morning we prepared to set off to find the treasure. During breakfast, Silver ate with Captain Flint on his shoulder and reminded the other men how lucky they were to have him as their leader.

"Aye, mates," he said, "it's lucky you have Barbecue to think for you with this here head. Sure enough, they have the ship. Where they have it, I don't know yet, but once we get the treasure, we'll find out. Then, we'll be all set!" Thus he ran on, with his mouth full of bacon, restoring the mutineers' hope and confidence and perhaps repairing his own at the same time.

"As for the hostage," he continued, "I'll tie a rope around his waist and keep him close to me when we go treasure hunting in a bit. We'll keep him like gold, in case we need him later."

By the time we set out, all the pirates were armed to the teeth. Silver had two guns slung about him, the great cutlass at his waist, and a pistol in each coat pocket.
To complete his strange appearance, Captain Flint sat perched upon his shoulder, squawking odds and ends of sea-talk.

Some of the men carried picks and shovels while others carried pork, bread, and water for the midday meal. I had a line about my waist and followed after Silver like an obedient puppy.

We began to climb a hill, and the men plunged ahead. They were in excellent spirits. Some of them even ran. Silver and I followed, I tethered by my rope, and he plowing through rocks and gravel with his wooden leg.

We had gone about half a mile when one of the men gave a cry of terror. We ran forward and saw a skeleton on the ground. George Merry bent down to inspect the bones.

“He must have been a seaman,” he said, “for these scraps on his bones are bits of quality sea cloth.”
"Aye," said Silver. "You wouldn't find a bishop here, I reckon, but what sort of a way is that for bones to lie? It ain't in nature."

The dead man lay perfectly straight, with both arms raised above his head like a diver. We stood and stared at the skeleton for a minute before Silver broke the silence.

"I've taken a notion into my old skull," he said. "I think this poor fellow is a pointer. Get out the compass and take a bearing—along the line the bones is pointin."

It was done and, sure enough, the bones seemed to be pointing the way to the treasure.

"I thought so!" cried Silver. "This is one of Flint's little jokes. Him and those six fellows was alone here. He killed 'em, every man, and this one he laid down by compass to point the way!"

After a few minutes, we set off again, but the pirates no longer ran. They kept side by side and spoke softly. The terror of the fallen buccaneer had dampened their spirits.

When we reached the top of the hill and saw the Spyglass before us, Silver took bearings with his compass.

"There are three tall trees," he said, "and they are in the right line. Should be child's play to find the loot now!"

B Inferential Casual language and slang are often used to portray character. As mentioned in earlier chapters, some of the dialogue in Treasure Island uses shortened forms of words and even non-standard grammar to imitate the speech and rhythm of the pirates speaking to each other. Rephrase the following sentences using standard English: "Aye," said Silver. "You wouldn't find a Bishop here, I reckon, but what sort of a way is that for bones to lie? It ain't in nature."

Answers may vary but should sound something like, "Yes," said Silver. "You wouldn't find a Bishop here, I bet, but look at those bones. You will not find bones positioned that way naturally."

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 3 on Activity Page 11.2.]

C Inferential What is the significance of the skeleton on the ground?

It points in the direction of the buried treasure.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 4 on Activity Page 11.2. As needed, discuss the events in the chapter and encourage students to turn back to previous pages for assistance.]
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

Bring the class back together as a group and use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Evaluative Think Pair Share  This chapter is titled, “My Life Hangs in the Balance.” The expression hang in the balance is an idiom. When something hangs in the balance, it means it is dependent upon something else in order to continue to exist or thrive. Why do you think this chapter is titled “My Life Hangs in the Balance”?

   Jim is the narrator, so “my life” means Jim’s life. His life hangs in the balance because whether he lives or dies is currently dependent on Silver. Silver agrees to save Jim’s life in exchange for his support in talking to the squire. The chapter refers to the fact that Jim’s life depends on things working out according to Silver’s plan—and on finding the treasure.

Word Work: Express

1. In the chapter you read, “My face must have expressed complete astonishment.”

2. Say the word express with me.

3. Express means to represent or convey a feeling or opinion in words or actions.

4. After my sister flawlessly performed her piano solo at the recital, she expressed complete joy and had a huge smile on her face for the rest of the day.

5. What are some other examples of feelings or opinions people express? Be sure to use the word express in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “______ expressed _____ when . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word express?

   » verb

[Use a Synonyms activity for follow-up.] What does the word express mean? What are some synonyms, or words that have a similar meaning, of express? [Prompt students to provide words like convey, show, and demonstrate.] With a partner, create a sentence for each of the synonyms of express he or she provides.
Introduce Coordinating Conjunctions

- Tell students that today they will learn about coordinating conjunctions.

- Remind students that conjunctions connect words or groups of words. Explain that conjunctions often connect words to words, phrases to phrases, and clauses to clauses.

- Tell students that there are three types of conjunctions, but they will only focus on one type: coordinating conjunctions.

- Refer to the Coordinating Conjunctions Poster you prepared in advance. Tell students that coordinating conjunctions are words that join together words, phrases, or clauses of equal importance. Coordinating conjunctions include and, but, so, and yet.

- Refer to the example sentences you prepared in advance that include and. Have different students read them aloud.

I like cake and pie.

She loves cats, and I love dogs.

Support  Explain that and is used when it is joining together words, phrases, or clauses that are similar or have something in common.

- Point out that in one of the examples, there is no comma in the sentence. Point out that in the other example, there is a comma in the sentence.

- Explain that in the case of compound sentences, a comma must be added to the sentence before the conjunction. Explain that a compound sentence is one with more than one independent clause.

- Explain that an independent clause is a clause, or part of a sentence, that has a subject and a predicate. This means that each clause could stand alone as a separate sentence.

- Refer to the first example sentence. Have students identify the subject(s) in the sentence (I). Then have students identify the predicate(s) (like cake and pie). Explain that, because there is only one subject and predicate in this sentence, the sentence does not have two independent clauses. Therefore, a comma is not needed.

- Refer to the second example sentence. Have students identify the subject(s) in the sentence (she and I). Then have students identify the predicate(s) (loves cats and love dogs). Explain that, because there are two subjects and two predicates in this sentence, the sentence has two independent clauses. Rewrite the parts as individual sentences on the board/chart paper to illustrate this point. (She loves cats. I love dogs.) Because this sentence contains two independent clauses, a comma is needed before the conjunction and.

Materials

- Coordinating Conjunctions Poster
- Activity Page 11.3
• Refer to the example sentences you prepared in advance that include but. Have different students read them aloud.

  She wanted to go to the park but couldn’t go.
  We wanted pineapple, but we got watermelon instead.

  Support Explain that but is used when it is joining together words, phrases, or clauses that are different.

• Point out that in one of the examples, there is no comma in the sentence. Point out that in the other example, there is a comma in the sentence.

• Refer to the first example sentence. Explain that this sentence does not have two independent clauses, so no comma is needed.

• Refer to the second example sentence. Explain that this sentence does have two independent clauses, so a comma is needed before the conjunction but.

  Support As needed, dissect the sentences with students to illustrate that there are not two subjects and predicates in the first example, and that there are two subjects and predicates in the second example.

• Refer to the example sentences you prepared in advance that include so. Have different students read them aloud.

  Christopher was sick, so he stayed home from school.
  Olivia needed to buy sugar, so she went to the market.

  Support Explain that so is used when it is joining together words, phrases, or clauses in which one word, phrase, or clause leads to or causes the other.

• Point out that in both of the examples, there is a comma in the sentence. Explain that this is because so is most often used when there are two independent clauses in one sentence.

  Support As needed, dissect the sentences with students to illustrate that there are not two subjects and predicates in the first example, and that there are two subjects and predicates in the second example.

• Refer to the example sentences you prepared in advance that include yet. Have different students read them aloud.

  It was raining, yet the sun was shining.
  The sign said to be quiet, yet it was very noisy.

  Support Explain that yet is used when it is joining together words, phrases, or clauses in which one word, phrase, or clause is an exception to or in spite of the other.
• Point out that in both of the examples, there is a comma in the sentence. Explain that this is because yet is most often used when there are two independent clauses in one sentence.

Support As needed, dissect the sentences with students to illustrate that there are two subjects and predicates in both of the example sentences.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 11.3. Read the directions aloud and complete the first item together as a whole group. Have students to complete Activity Page 11.3 for homework.

MORPHOLOGY

Introduce Suffixes –ful and –less

• Tell students today they will learn about the suffixes –ful and –less.

• Write the suffixes –ful and –less on the Suffixes Poster on display in the classroom. Point out that –ful is pronounced /fəl/. Point out that –less is pronounced /les/.

• Tell students the suffix –ful means “full of.” Write the meaning of the suffix on the poster.

• Tell students the suffix –less means “without” or “lacking.” Write the meaning of the suffix on the poster.

• Explain that when you add the suffix –ful or –less to a noun, the new word is an adjective.

• Write power on the board/chart paper. Briefly discuss the meaning of the word and then use it in a sentence. (Power means strength, influence, or authority. My parents have the power to make the rules in our house.)

• Add the suffix –ful to power and have students read the new word; then discuss the meaning of the new word and use it in a sentence. (Powerful means full of strength, influence, or authority. Our principal is a powerful person in our school.)

• Have students provide sentences using the word powerful. (Answers may vary.)

• Erase or cover –ful and add the suffix –less to power and have students read the new word; then discuss the meaning of the new word and use it in a sentence. (Powerless means without strength, influence, or authority. The people were powerless to stop the storm, so they just had to prepare for its arrival as best as they could.)

• Note adding the suffixes –ful and –less to the same root word creates words with opposite meanings. Powerful and powerless are antonyms, or words with opposite meanings.

• Have students provide sentences using the word powerless. (Answers may vary.)

SPELLING

15 minutes

Introduce Spelling Words

• Explain that students will practice 12 words related to suffixes they have studied in morphology. Apart from the suffixes, these words do not follow one single spelling pattern. Tell students they will be assessed on these words and will write a dictated sentence related to one or more of these words in Lesson 15.

• Introduce the words by writing them on the board/chart paper. First say the word aloud, and then sound out each syllable, naming each letter aloud as you write it. Continue syllable by syllable until the word is spelled correctly. You may wish to use the pronunciation chart to guide students in saying the words.

Pronunciation/Syllabication Chart

The following chart includes pronunciation and syllabication information for the spelling words. The first column lists the words. The second column breaks the words into decodable sounds based on the Core Knowledge code approach to decoding words. The third column lists syllable types in each word. This information is provided so you can present these new, unfamiliar spelling words in a way that calls upon and reinforces the manner in which students were taught to decode and encode in the earlier grades.

As you introduce and write each word, it may be helpful if you point out particular spelling patterns within each word and show students where these spellings are reflected on the Individual Code Chart. For example, you might note that the word faithful includes a schwa sound (/ə/) in the second syllable of the word (i.e., the second syllable is pronounced /fəl/, but spelled ‘ful’) and then point out the ‘ul’ spelling for /əl/ that is included on the Individual Code Chart.

Materials

- Activity Pages 11.5, 11.6, SR.3

Note

Remember to point out specific spelling patterns in each word and their relationship to the sounds and spellings on the Individual Code Chart.
If you are unfamiliar with the CKLA phonics approach and/or have limited phonics training, you may also find the following materials in the Yearlong Teacher Resources section of the Ancillary Materials page: https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-ancillary-materials-fourth-grade/helpful: “Using Chunking to Decode Multisyllable Words” and “Sound and Spelling of Schwa.”

If you have taught CKLA in Grades K–3, you will notice the sound-spelling notation is different in Grade 4 than in previous grades. In Grades K–3, we noted each individual sound spelling within //. For example, the sound spellings for costly would be /k//o//s//t/*/l//ee/. In Grade 4, we use a sound-spelling notation that follows linguistic and dictionary conventions, making each notation easier to see and read. For example, the word costly is now notated as /kost*lee/.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify figurative language and literary devices and explain how the author uses them in the chapter.

Writing: By the end of the lesson, students will have started drafting their adventure story.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading
- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read carefully to explain how the use of figurative language and literary devices helps tell what happens next in the story.

Writing
- Display the Shape of a Story Chart from Lesson 7.
- Display the Adventure Story Rubric from Lesson 8.
- Ensure that students have a writing journal or paper to write on for the body of their adventure story.
READING

Partner: Chapter 8 “My Life Hangs in the Balance”

Review the Chapter

- Tell students they will reread Chapter 8, “My Life Hangs in the Balance.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- You may wish to review the following vocabulary words before you reread the chapter:

1. taunt, v. to make fun of or tease (taunted) (72)
2. ringleader, n. the leader of a group that causes trouble or gets involved in illegal activity (73)
3. insolence, n. rude behavior or speech (75)
4. scurvy, adj. mean; not worthy of respect (75)
5. hostage, n. a person held prisoner until another group or person meets demands (75)
6. depose, v. to remove someone from office or a high rank (deposed) (76)

- Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if they forget its meaning.
- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

  Read carefully to explain how the use of figurative language and literary devices helps tell what happens next in the story.

Read “My Life Hangs in the Balance”

Pair students to read and discuss the chapter. We encourage you to differentiate, assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs.

Have students make a note of vocabulary, phrases, or concepts they do not understand, noting the page number, so they may seek clarification. As students read, circulate among the class, monitoring students' focus and progress.

Materials

- Treasure Island
- Activity Pages 1.3, 12.1

---

Grammar; Morphology; Spelling

- Collect Activity Pages 11.3, 11.4, and 11.6 to review and grade as there are no grammar, morphology, or spelling lessons today.
• Have students complete Activity Page 12.1 with their partners while they read.

At this point in the school year, some or all of your students are likely ready for the challenge of reading the entire chapter independently to themselves, especially since this lesson is a reread of the chapter read as a whole group in the previous lesson. We encourage you to differentiate, assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 12.1 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read.

Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson 10 minutes

• Review the correct answers to Activity Page 12.1 with the whole class. You may wish to select different students to read each question and share their responses, including the page number where the evidence for the answer was located.

1. Inferential In the second paragraph on page 72, how does the use of the phrase to feed the fishes contribute to the meaning of the passage in which it is used?
   » C. The phrase suggests that if the men don’t obey Silver, he will throw them in the ocean where they will become food for the fish.

2. Inferential The idiom tit for tat means given in exchange for something equal or comparable. How does this apply to the story?
   » This applies to the story in that Long John Silver tells Jim Hawkins that Silver will save Jim’s life if Jim saves his life in return. Silver will protect Jim from his group of pirates, but if he does, he expects Jim to protect him from Jim’s group of honest men. He expects an even trade—protecting Jim’s life in exchange for protection of his own life. (Page 73)

3. Literal In the conversation between Silver and Jim Hawkins, dialogue is used to show rather than tell what happens. What do we learn from that conversation?
   » A. The doctor has given Flint’s treasure map to Silver. (Page 73)

4. Inferential The text says that Jim has a hard time sleeping while Silver does not. What is being conveyed about these two characters? Are they similar or are they different? What does this suggest about them as people?
   » Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text. Students may say that Jim is a good person with a conscience while Silver is not. Jim feels bad about what happened with the man earlier that day so he thinks about it and is kept up at night by his thoughts; Silver does not feel bad about the things he does, so he is able to sleep well without worrying. (Pages 76/77)
5. Literal A simile is a comparison of two different things, usually using like or as. There are several similes in this chapter, some of which are located on pages 78 and 79. Record one simile exactly as it appears in the text.

   » “We’ll keep him like gold, in case we need him later.” (Page 77)

   » I had a line about my waist and followed after Silver like an obedient puppy. (Page 78)

   » The dead man lay perfectly straight, with both arms raised above his head like a diver. (Page 79)

6. Inferential At the end of the chapter, Silver says, “‘Should be child’s play to find the loot now!’” From the context of the sentence, will it be easy or hard to find the treasure? Use evidence from the text to support your answer.

   » It will be easy to find the treasure. This is evident by the fact that Silver takes bearings with his compass and says, “‘There are three tall trees, and they are in the right line.’” The way he says this suggests that they have followed the map correctly and that the map and compass indicate that they are near the treasure, and the hard part is over. (Page 79)

• Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the displayed Character Chart.

• Explain that students will take additional notes about Jim Hawkins and Long John Silver. They will also record information about George Merry, a character first introduced in Chapter 8.

• Use the information in the following chart to engage students in a discussion about new information learned about Jim Hawkins and Long John Silver and about the new character, George Merry. Tell students to draw on specific details in their responses, such as descriptions of appearance, words, or actions in the text.

Word Work: Astonishment

1. In the chapter you read, “My face must have expressed complete astonishment.”
2. Say the word astonishment with me.
3. Astonishment means great surprise.
4. She had a look of astonishment on her face when the balloon suddenly popped.
5. What are some other examples of things that lead to a feeling of astonishment? Be sure to use the word astonishment in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “___ felt astonishment when . . .”]
6. What part of speech is the word astonishment?
   » noun

[Use a Synonyms activity for follow-up.] What does the word astonishment mean? What are some synonyms, or words that have a similar meaning, of astonishment? [Prompt students to provide words like awe, amazement, surprise, and shock.] With a partner, create a sentence for each of the synonyms of astonishment he or she provides.

WRITING

Draft an Adventure Story

Review Rising Action

10 minutes

- Tell students they are ready to write the body of their adventure story.
- Refer to the Shape of a Story Chart on display and have students turn to Activity Page 7.2.
- Explain that you will first review the parts included in the body of a story.
- Have students identify the main problem in Treasure Island. (finding the buried treasure)
- Remind students that they developed a Problem and at least three examples of Rising Action for their adventure story when they completed Activity Page 7.2.

Support Because students are writing adventure stories about survival, the problem or conflict could be how the character returns home.

- Have students explain Rising Action. (Rising Action occurs when the story becomes more exciting or the problem worsens.)

- Have students identify examples of Rising Action in Treasure Island. (Jim overhears the men planning a mutiny; the pirates take over the Hispaniola; Long John Silver’s men attack; Jim’s fight with Israel Hands)

Draft the Body of an Adventure Story
35 minutes

- Explain that students should use Activity Page 7.2 to help them create the shape of their story in their draft of the body of their story.

- Remind students to use strong verbs and dialogue whenever possible.

- Refer to the Adventure Story Rubric on display and have students turn to Activity Page 8.4. Tell students they will use it to write the body of their story. Have a student read the “Exemplary” column in the “Body” section aloud.

- Have students refer to the rubric to draft the body, focusing on three things:
  - What is the problem or conflict in my story?
  - Are there at least three examples of Rising Action?
  - How can I create suspense in the story?

- Circulate and check in with students, ensuring that they are drafting effectively.

Feedback
Provide reinforcing or corrective feedback for writing about the problem in the story, such as:

- I like how the problem unfolds gradually in the story.

- It looks like you have created a suspenseful climax for your story. How could you rewrite this moment, adding sensory details to help the reader imagine what the characters were seeing or hearing?

- I noticed that you explain the interaction between two characters in several paragraphs. How could you rewrite the interaction as dialogue?

Wrap Up

- As time allows, have students share a section of their story that includes dialogue with the class.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to share opinions, supported by evidence, about the successfulness of the voyage to Treasure Island. Students will also be able to explain and discuss key points about the climax and resolution of the story.

Writing: By the end of the lesson, students will be able to draft the body and revise the introduction of an adventure story.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to discover if the treasure is found and how the story ends.

- Collect Activity Page 12.2 to review and grade at a later time.

Writing

- Ensure that students have a writing journal or paper to write on for the body of their adventure story.

- Display the Adventure Story Rubric from Lesson 8.

Small Group: Chapter 9 “The Adventure Comes to an End” 40 minutes

Review 5 minutes
• Have students explain what happens at the end of Chapter 8, “My Life Hangs in the Balance.”
  – Answers may vary, but should include that, with Long John Silver as their leader and Jim Hawkins as their hostage, the pirates search for the treasure and get close to the spot where the treasure is buried.

Introduce the Chapter 5 minutes
• Tell students they will read Chapter 9, “The Adventure Comes to an End.”
• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
• Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
• Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is superstitious.
• Have them find the word on page 81 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
• Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate superstitious, and then have a student read the definition.
• Explain the following:
  – The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun–n.; verb–v.; adjective–adj.; adverb–adv.
  – Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.
• Have students reference Activity Page 13.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

Establish Small Groups

Before reading the chapter, divide students into two groups using the following guidelines:

Small Group 1: This group should include students who need extra scaffolding and support to read and comprehend the text. Use the guided reading supports to guide students through reading the text. This is an excellent time to make notes in your anecdotal records. Students may complete Activity Page 13.2 with your support while they read.

Small Group 2: This group should include students who are capable of reading and comprehending text without guided support. We encourage you to differentiate, assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 13.2 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read. Make arrangements to check that students in Small Group 2 have answered the questions on Activity Page 13.2 correctly. You may choose to do one of the following to address this:

- collect the pages and correct them individually
- provide an answer key to students to check their own or a partner’s work after they have completed the activity page
- confer with students individually or as a group at a later time

Read “The Adventure Comes to an End”     25 minutes

The following guided reading supports are intended for use with Small Group 1. Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
Silver and the rest of us pressed on until, all of a sudden out of the trees in front of us, we heard a thin, high, trembling voice.

“Darby M’Graw!” it wailed, “Darby M’Graw! Fetch aft the weapons, Darby!” again and again and again.

The men were petrified. Their faces turned white with fear.

“Blimey!” George Merry cried. “It’s Flint’s voice!”

“And those were his last words!” said another.

“Come!” said Silver. “It’s not Flint. Flint’s in his grave.”

“Then it’s his ghost, come back to haunt us!” said Merry.

“Mates!” Silver cried. “I’m here to get that stuff and I’ll not be beat by man nor spirit. I never was feared of Flint and I’ll face him dead if need be. There’s half a million pounds of treasure just up the hill.
“Have you ever heard of gentlemen of fortune turning their backs on that much money?”

“Stop it, John!” said Merry. “Don’t cross the spirit!”

“Are you sure it’s really a spirit?” Silver shot back. “Me, I have my doubts. Did you notice that there was an echo? No man ever seen a spirit with a shadow. Well, what’s this one doing with an echo to him, I should like to know. Surely that ain’t in nature!”

This argument seemed weak to me, but you can never tell what will convince a superstitious person. To my wonder, George Merry was relieved.

“John’s right!” he said. “It had an echo!”

“And come to think on it,” Silver added, “it was not quite like Flint’s voice. It was more like old Ben Gunn’s voice.”

“It don’t make much difference, do it?” asked one of the men. “Ben Gunn’s not here, any more’n Flint.”

The older hands were not convinced.

“Why, nobody minds Ben Gunn!” cried George Merry. “Dead or alive, nobody minds him!”
It was extraordinary how they regained their sense of well-being. They shouldered their tools, and we set forth again. We passed two tall trees and the third loomed up before us. It rose nearly two hundred feet into the air, but it was not its size that impressed the men. It was the knowledge that there was gold buried below its spreading shadow. The thought of the money swallowed up their previous terrors. Their feet grew lighter and speedier. Each man imagined the life of wealth and extravagance that awaited him.

Silver hobbled forward on his crutch. He tugged furiously on the line that held me to him and shot me a deadly look. He took no pains to hide his thoughts. In the nearness of the gold, all had been forgotten. His promise to me was a thing of the past. I did not doubt that he hoped to seize the treasure, kill every honest man, and sail away laden with crimes and riches.

We were now close to the spot, and the men broke into a run. Ten yards further, we came to a halt. Before us was a great excavation, not very recent, for the sides had fallen in and grass had sprouted on them. In the ditch we saw a broken shovel. The treasure had been found and rifled. The half a million pounds were gone.

The men were thunderstruck, but for Silver, the shock passed almost instantly. His every thought had been set on the money. It had staggered him to discover that it was gone, but he kept his head and made a new plan in an instant.

"Jim," he whispered, "stand by for trouble."

He passed me a pistol and smiled at me, as if we were old friends. I was so shocked by his constant change of heart that I couldn't help whispering, "So now you're on my side again?"
There was no time for him to answer. Merry had found a single coin in the pit. He held it up.

“A guinea!” he shouted furiously, shaking the coin at Silver. “That’s all that’s left! That’s your half a million pounds of treasure, is it?”

Silver kept calm. He took a few steps back, keeping one eye on Merry and the others.

“Mates!” Merry shouted, whipping out his cutlass. “Those two are to blame! Silver and the boy! Let’s get ‘em!”

Then—crack! crack! crack! Three muskets flashed out of the thicket. George Merry tumbled headfirst into the excavation. Another man spun like a top and fell to the ground. The other three turned tail and ran for it with all their might.

A few seconds later, Dr. Livesey, Gray, and Ben Gunn stepped out of the thicket with smoking muskets.

Silver did not try to escape. Instead, he shot George Merry. Then he dropped his weapons and threw an arm around me. He called out to Dr. Livesey, “Thank ye kindly, doctor! I’m on your side now—Jim here will bear me out—and you arrived just in the nick of time for the two of us!”

“So it is you, Ben Gunn,” added Silver.

“I’m Ben Gunn, I am,” replied old Ben.

After this exchange, Dr. Livesey explained what had taken place. It was a story that profoundly interested Silver, and Ben Gunn was the hero.
Then—crack! crack! crack! Three muskets flashed out of the thicket. George Merry tumbled headfirst into the excavation.
During his lonely wanderings about the island, old Ben had found the pointing skeleton, and later he had found the treasure. He had dug up the loot and carried it away. It took many trips, but eventually he stashed it all safely in a cave.

After the pirates attacked the stockade, the doctor had gone to see Ben Gunn and had wormed the secret out of him. The next morning, the doctor went to Silver and made a deal with him. He agreed to give Silver the map, which was of no use anymore, along with some supplies. The doctor and the others were eager to get away from the stockade. They wanted to keep an eye on the cave where Ben Gunn had stored the treasure.

That morning the doctor left the squire and the captain in the cave. With Ben Gunn and Gray, he set out to ambush the mutineers. He knew they would follow the map straight to the spot where the treasure had been.

In order to arrive before the pirates, Dr. Livesey directed Ben Gunn to call out in Flint’s voice. He guessed this might upset the superstitious pirates, as in fact it did, and would give them time to arrive at the spot first. Then the three of them hid in the thicket. They opened fire on the mutineers when they turned against Silver and me.

“Ah,” said Silver, “it was fortunate for me that I was with Hawkins here! If he hadn’t been here, you would have let old John be cut to bits and never given it another thought.”

“Not a thought,” replied Dr. Livesey.

We marched back to the shore, got into one of the landing boats, and set off for the _Hispaniola_. When we got back to the ship, we sailed her to a cove near Ben Gunn’s cave. Ben Gunn’s cave was large and airy. There was a fire at the mouth of it, and Captain Smollett lay by the fire.

A Evaluative Who do you think is a more trustworthy pirate in this situation—Ben Gunn or Long John Silver?

» Answers may vary, but students should support their opinions with evidence from the text. Some students may say Ben Gunn is more trustworthy because he helps Jim, the doctor, and the others defend themselves against the pirates and, to the reader’s knowledge, has been honest with these men. Alternatively, students may say Silver is more trustworthy, as he does not kill or harm Jim when given the opportunity. He makes a deal with Jim to protect him and, to the reader’s knowledge, has upheld that deal. He shoots George Merry, which suggests that he is indeed on the doctor’s side as he says.

The captain was astonished to see Silver return with us.

““What brings you here?” he asked.

““Come back to do my duty, sir,” said Silver.

In the flickering light of the cave, I beheld heaps of coins and stacks of golden bars. That was Flint’s treasure that we had come so far to seek, and that had already cost the lives of a number of men. How many lives had it cost to gather all this gold? How many seamen had been shot, or marooned, or sent to the bottom of the ocean? There’s no way to tell.

The next day, we hauled the treasure to the ship. I spent the morning in the cave, packing money into bags. It was a strange collection of coins. There were guineas, doubloons, moidores, and sequins adorned with pictures of all the kings of Europe for the last hundred years. There were strange Oriental pieces stamped with what looked like bits of spiders’ webs. There were round pieces and square pieces, and pieces with holes in the middle, so you could wear them around your neck. We had nearly every variety of money in the world, I do believe.

Most pirates likely sailed ashore to spend their treasures on pleasure and luxury. If, however, like Flint, a pirate saved and buried his loot, he would eventually boast a collection from many different countries. A farthing was worth a quarter of an English penny, and a guinea was worth one pound plus one shilling. The English guinea, as well as the Spanish doubloon, Portuguese moidore, and the Italian and Turkish sequins were all gold coins in common use during the golden age of piracy. A coin could be spent not only in its nation of origin, but also in its colonies in the Americas and the Caribbean.
I spent the morning in the cave, packing money into bags. It was a strange collection of coins.
Silver worked alongside the rest of us, as if nothing at all had occurred, and we heard nothing of the other three mutineers until that night, when we heard them singing and shouting.

"Merriment!" said Silver.

A meeting was held, and we decided that it would be safest to leave the three mutineers on the island, but with some food and supplies.

At last, we weighed anchor and began our voyage home. As we pulled away, we saw the mutineers. They were kneeling on the sand, with their arms raised. We felt sorry for them, but we could not risk another mutiny. The doctor shouted to them and told them where to find the supplies we had left.

When they saw we would not come back for them, they got out their muskets and fired at us. The shots went whistling over our heads.
We sailed to a port on the coast of South America, where we were surrounded by boats full of native people selling fruits and vegetables. I went ashore for the day with the squire and Dr. Livesey. The sight of so many smiling faces, the taste of tropical fruits, and, above all, the lights of the town made a charming contrast to our dark and dangerous stay on the island.

When we returned to the ship, Ben Gunn made a confession. Silver was gone. Ben had helped him escape, though he assured us he had done so to save our lives. That was not all though—the old sea cook had taken with him a sack of coins worth four hundred guineas.

"I am pleased to be rid of him so cheaply," said the doctor.

Well, to make a long story short, we got a few new hands on board, made an enjoyable cruise home, and reached Bristol just as Mr. Blandly was beginning to think of sending the rescue boat. All five of us got a share of the treasure and used it wisely or foolishly, according to our personalities. Captain Smollett retired. Ben Gunn got a thousand pounds, which he spent or lost in nineteen days, for he was back begging on the twentieth day. He is a great favorite, though, and is a notable singer in church on Sundays.

Of Silver we have heard no more. That formidable man with one leg has at last gone clean out of my life. I dare say he met his wife and perhaps still lives in comfort with her and Captain Flint. I hope so, for I fear that his chances of comfort in the next world are very small.

There is still more treasure hidden on that island: some silver bars and some weapons that Flint buried. But nothing could tempt me back there. The worst dreams I ever have are when I hear the waves booming or when I bolt straight upright in bed, the voice of Captain Flint ringing in my ears: "Pieces of eight! Pieces of eight!"

B Evaluative Is the voyage to Treasure Island ultimately a success? Why or why not?

» Answers may vary, but students should support their opinions with evidence from the text. Some students may say the voyage is ultimately a success because the honest men find the treasure and most of them return home safely with a share of it. Alternatively, some students may say the voyage is ultimately unsuccessful because many of the men do not return from the island safely, and many men do not receive a portion of the treasure.

[Have students record the answer(s) to question 4 on Activity Page 13.2.]
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

• Bring the class back together as a group and use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Inferential A turning point or climax is a point in a story when the problem is addressed. Generally, this is an important event that earlier events in a story lead up to; this is the most exciting point in the story. What event in this chapter would you consider the climax of Treasure Island?
   » The climax of the story is when the pirates finally reach the spot where the treasure is supposed to be buried and find an empty hole, and Dr. Livesey and Ben Gunn drive most of the remaining pirates away and explain that they have the treasure secured in a safe place. This is the climax because the entire story has led up to uncovering the buried treasure. The story has also included a power struggle between the mutineers and the other men, which comes to a turning point in this scene.

2. Inferential A resolution or end is the last part of a story. It is a point in a story when the problem is resolved and the action calms. It is the point in which the reader learns of a story’s outcome. What would you consider the resolution of Treasure Island?
   » The resolution of the story is when the adventure concludes and the men return home. Students may consider the scene in which the men meet back at Ben Gunn’s cave to be the resolution; others may consider the scene in which the men return home to be the resolution.

Word Work: Superstitious

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “This argument seemed weak to me, but you can never tell what will convince a superstitious person.”

2. Say the word superstitious with me.

3. Superstitious means having irrational fears about mysterious things or the unknown.

4. My superstitious grandmother thinks Friday the 13th is an unlucky day and is worried something bad will happen on that day.

5. What are some other examples of someone being superstitious? Be sure to use the word superstitious in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ is an example of someone being superstitious.” or “It is superstitious to _____.”]

6. What part of speech is the word superstitious?
   » adjective
[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I am going to read several sentences. If the sentence I read is an example of someone being superstitious, say, “This is superstitious.” If the sentence I read is not an example of someone being superstitious, say, “This is not superstitious.”

1. Chris is afraid of the dark.
   » This is superstitious.
2. Grace is afraid of a ghost she thinks is living in her basement.
   » This is superstitious.
3. Jenny is careful not to approach snakes because they might be poisonous.
   » This is not superstitious.
4. Ryan carries an umbrella when it rains to avoid getting wet.
   » This is not superstitious.
5. After Sally broke a mirror, she was afraid she would have several years of bad luck.
   » This is superstitious.

WRITING

45 minutes

Draft and Revise an Adventure Story

Complete Draft of Body of an Adventure Story

25 minutes

- Tell students that they will continue drafting the body of their adventure story today.
- Have students refer to Activity Page 7.2 as they finish drafting the body of their adventure story.
- Remind students that they should have at least three examples of Rising Action.
- Remind students to incorporate dialogue whenever possible.
- Circulate and check in with students, ensuring that they are drafting effectively.
- As needed, have students share the Rising Action from their stories and offer feedback.

Challenge As students finish writing the body of their adventure story, have them begin revising the introduction.

Materials

- draft of body
- Activity Pages 3.2, 7.2, 8.4
- Adventure Story Rubric
- draft of introduction
Revise Introduction of an Adventure Story

20 minutes

• Refer to the displayed Adventure Story Rubric and have students turn to Activity Page 8.4. Tell students they will use the Adventure Story Rubric to revise the introduction they drafted during Lesson 8.

• Remind students that revision is an important part of the writing process. Explain that, because their adventure story will be several pages, they will revise and edit smaller sections over the next several lessons.

• Remind students of the difference between revising and editing. (Revising is making changes to large issues, like organization or adding details. Editing is making smaller changes, like correcting grammar and spelling.)

• Tell students to refer to the rubric to revise their introduction, focusing on three things:
  – Are the characters portrayed clearly? If not, what details can I add?
  – Is the setting described effectively? If not, what details can I add or delete?
  – Does the introduction have a hook? If not, can I use a surprising detail or dialogue to capture the reader’s attention?

  Challenge Students can include figurative language like metaphor, alliteration, and simile.

  Support Have students use Activity Page 3.2 to remind them of details to include or questions they can ask themselves.

• Circulate and check in with students, ensuring that students are revising and writing effectively.

  Feedback Provide reinforcing or corrective feedback, such as:
  » I like the way you use sensory details to describe the setting.
  » I noticed that your introduction is only two sentences. Can you expand your description of the setting and add a hook to capture the reader’s attention?

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain how literary devices and vocabulary are used to help wrap up the story.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will have had additional practice correctly using coordinating conjunctions in sentences with appropriate punctuation.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will have had additional practice distinguishing between root words and words with the suffix –ful or –less and using those words correctly in sentences.

Spelling: By the end of this lesson, students will have had additional practice spelling targeted words.
ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

• Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read to closely examine the use of language and literary devices to understand how the story reaches its climax and resolution.

Grammar

• Determine student pairs for completing Activity Page 14.2 if you wish for this to be a partner activity rather than an individual one.

READING

45 minutes

Close Reading: Chapter 9 “The Adventure Comes to an End” 40 minutes

Review the Chapter 5 minutes

• Tell students they will reread Chapter 9, “The Adventure Comes to an End.”

• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to closely examine the use of language and literary devices to understand how the story reaches its climax and resolution.

Close Reading

There are many ways for students to respond to the questions. Vary how you elicit students' responses to promote student engagement. For example:

• Have students work in pairs. Following each question, direct students to consult with their partner about the correct response before one student responds.

• Have students work in small groups of three or four students. Following each question, direct students to consult with others in their group about the correct response before one student responds.

• Following a question, have all students provide a written response before one student responds orally.

Materials

• Treasure Island

• Activity Pages 1.3, 14.1

Note

Close reading lessons present excellent opportunities to ensure that English learners and other students who need additional support fully comprehend a reading selection.
Read “The Adventure Comes to an End” 15 minutes

Read the title of the chapter as a class, “The Adventure Comes to an End.” As you read portions of the chapter, pause to explain or clarify the text at each point indicated.
A  [Have students read pages 80 and 81 silently.]

B  VOC Inferential  When the narrator says “Silver and the rest of us pressed on . . .”, what does pressed on mean?
   »  It means the men continue their journey to find the spot where the treasure was buried.

C  VOC Literal  What evidence in the text helps you determine the meaning of petrified?
   »  “Their faces turned white with fear.”
   Support  Petrified means afraid or scared.

Chapter 9

The Adventure Comes to an End

Silver and the rest of us pressed on until, all of a sudden out of the trees in front of us, we heard a thin, high, trembling voice.

The men were petrified. Their faces turned white with fear.

“Blimey!” George Merry cried. “It’s Flint’s voice!”

“And those were his last words!” said another.

“Come!” said Silver. “It’s not Flint. Flint’s in his grave.”

“Then it’s his ghost, come back to haunt us!” said Merry.

“Mates!” Silver cried. “I’m here to get that stuff and I’ll not be beat by man nor spirit. I never was feared of Flint and I’ll face him dead if need be. There’s half a million pounds of treasure just up the hill.”
D  “Have you ever heard of gentlemen of fortune turning their backs on that much money?”

“Stop it, John!” said Merry. “Don’t cross the spirit!”

“Are you sure it’s really a spirit?” Silver shot back. “Me, I have my doubts. Did you notice that there was an echo? No man ever seen a spirit with a shadow. Well, what’s this one doing with an echo to him, I should like to know. Surely that ain’t in nature!”

E  This argument seemed weak to me, but you can never tell what will convince a superstitious person. To my wonder, George Merry was relieved.

“John’s right!” he said. “It had an echo!”

F  “And come to think on it,” Silver added, “it was not quite like Flint’s voice. It was more like old Ben Gunn’s voice.”

“It don’t make much difference, do it?” asked one of the men. “Ben Gunn’s not here, any more’n Flint.”

The older hands were not convinced.

“Why, nobody minds Ben Gunn!” cried George Merry. “Dead or alive, nobody minds him!”

D  SYN Silver asks, “Have you ever heard of gentlemen of fortune turning their backs on that much money?” Let’s unpack this sentence so we can understand what Silver is saying.

Inferential The phrase gentlemen of fortune is used a few times earlier in the story. To whom is Silver referring when he says “gentlemen of fortune”?

» Silver is referring to pirates when he says, “gentlemen of fortune.”

The expression turning their backs is an expression similar to walking away from and it means abandoning something, or leaving something behind.

Inferential What do you think Silver means when he asks, “Have you ever heard of gentlemen of fortune turning their backs on that much money?”

» By asking this question, Silver means pirates would not and should not leave behind the possibility of finding so much money. He is saying they should continue on despite being scared.

E  VOC Inferential What does Jim mean when he says, “This argument seemed weak to me”?

» Jim means it is not a strong argument—it is not very reasonable or convincing.

Support What does weak mean?

» not strong

F  VOC Silver says, “And come to think on it,” which is an idiom that means after giving the matter more thought.
A [Have students read the first three paragraphs on page 82 silently.]

B LIT Inferential The sentence The thought of the money swallowed up their previous terrors is an example of personification. Personification is a literary device that assigns human traits or characteristics to nonhuman things. What does the sentence mean?

> It means the thought of the money they are about to dig up makes them forget their fears about ghosts and dead pirates.

Support What is being personified?

> The thought of the money is being personified.

C VOC Jim tells the reader that Silver “took no pains to hide his thoughts.” Jim means that Silver makes no attempts to be honest or stay on Jim’s side at this point. It is obvious to Jim that Silver has changed his mind about the agreement between them.

D VOC Inferential Jim says, “I did not doubt that [Silver] hoped to seize the treasure, kill every honest man, and sail away laden with crimes and riches.” The word laden means heavy or carrying a large amount of something. What does laden with crimes and riches mean?

> This phrase means loaded with crimes and riches. Jim means that Silver plans to leave, loaded up with the treasure. In addition, Jim is saying that Silver will be “loaded up” with crimes, meaning that he will have committed many crimes in the act of getting the treasure for himself.

E VOC Inferential Judging by how it is used in the text, what do you think rifled means?

> It means searched through and stolen. The treasure had been found and taken by someone else.

A It was extraordinary how they regained their sense of well-being. They shouldered their tools, and we set forth again. We passed two tall trees and the third loomed up before us. It rose nearly two hundred feet into the air, but it was not its size that impressed the men. It was the knowledge that there was gold buried below its spreading shadow. The thought of the money swallowed up their previous terrors. Their feet grew lighter and speedier. Each man imagined the life of wealth and extravagance that awaited him.

In the nearness of the gold, all had been forgotten. His promise to me was a thing of the past. I did not doubt that he hoped to seize the treasure, kill every honest man, and sail away laden with crimes and riches.

We were now close to the spot, and the men broke into a run. Ten yards further, we came to a halt. Before us was a great excavation, not very recent, for the sides had fallen in and grass had sprouted on them. In the ditch we saw a broken shovel. The treasure had been found and rifled. The half a million pounds were gone.

The men were thunderstruck, but for Silver, the shock passed almost instantly. His every thought had been set on the money. It had staggered him to discover that it was gone, but he kept his head and made a new plan in an instant.

> “Jim,” he whispered, “stand by for trouble.”

He passed me a pistol and smiled at me, as if we were old friends. I was so shocked by his constant change of heart that I couldn't help whispering, “So now you’re on my side again?”
There was no time for him to answer. Merry had found a single coin in the pit. He held it up.

“A guinea!” he shouted furiously, shaking the coin at Silver. “That’s all that’s left! That’s your half a million pounds of treasure, is it?”

Silver kept calm. He took a few steps back, keeping one eye on Merry and the others.

“Mates!” Merry shouted, whipping out his cutlass. “Those two are to blame! Silver and the boy! Let’s get ’em!”

Then—crack! crack! crack! Three muskets flashed out of the thicket. George Merry tumbled headfirst into the excavation. Another man spun like a top and fell to the ground. The other three turned tail and ran for it with all their might.

A few seconds later, Dr. Livesey, Gray, and Ben Gunn stepped out of the thicket with smoking muskets.

Silver did not try to escape. Instead, he shot George Merry. Then he dropped his weapons and threw an arm around me. He called out to Dr. Livesey, “Thank ye kindly, doctor! I’m on your side now—Jim here will bear me out—and you arrived just in the nick of time for the two of us!”

“So it is you, Ben Gunn,” added Silver.

“I’m Ben Gunn, I am,” replied old Ben.

After this exchange, Dr. Livesey explained what had taken place. It was a story that profoundly interested Silver, and Ben Gunn was the hero.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

20 minutes

- Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 and refer to the displayed Character Chart.

- Explain that students will take additional notes about Jim Hawkins, Long John Silver, Ben Gunn, and George Merry.

- Use the information in the following chart to engage students in a discussion about the characters they learned more about in this chapter. Tell students to draw on specific details in their responses, such as descriptions of appearance, words, or actions in the text.

- Record the information on the Character Chart. At the same time, have students record the information in the chart on Activity Page 1.3.

- Now that students have finished reading Treasure Island and have completed Activity Page 1.3, engage them in a discussion about what they have observed and learned about the characters in Treasure Island. Encourage discussion by asking students if the characters changed and, if so, how they changed over the course of the story.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 14.1. Tell them to complete the activity page to reflect on the story of Treasure Island.
• Collect Activity Page 14.1 to review and grade at a later time. Consider following up on Activity Page 14.1 during the Pausing Point.

Word Work: Well-Being

1. In the chapter you read, “It was extraordinary how [the men] regained their sense of well-being.”
2. Say the word well-being with me.
3. Well-being means the state of being happy, healthy, and comfortable.
4. My friends and I always look out for each other’s well-being.
5. What are some things that are important to your well-being? Be sure to use the word well-being in your response. [Have two or three students use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ is important to my well-being because . . .”]
6. What part of speech is the word well-being?
   » noun

[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I will read several sentences. If the sentence is an example of something that improves someone’s well-being, say, “That improves well-being.” If the sentence is not an example of something that improves someone’s well-being, say, “That does not improve well-being.”

1. Joshua’s father makes him dinner every night.
   » That improves well-being.
2. When it is cold outside, I wear my boots.
   » That improves well-being.
3. It was raining, and we did not have an umbrella.
   » That does not improve well-being.
4. Isabella’s brother sleeps with his favorite blanket because it makes him happy.
   » That improves well-being.
5. The pirates sing songs to pass the time on the ship.
   » That improves well-being.
GRAMMAR

Practice Coordinating Conjunctions

- Refer to the Coordinating Conjunctions Poster and read it with students.
- Have students turn to Activity Page 14.2. Read the directions for each section aloud.
- Complete the first item of each section together as a whole group.
- Have students complete the remainder of Activity Page 14.2 independently.

  Support Have students complete Activity Page 14.2 in pairs.

- As time allows, select a few students to share their answers aloud.
- Collect completed Activity Page 14.2 to review and grade at a later time.

MORPHOLOGY

Practice Suffixes –ful and –less

- Refer to the Suffixes Poster on display in the classroom and review the definition of suffix.
- Remind students that the suffix –ful means “full of” and the suffix –less means “without” or “lacking.” Remind students that when you add the suffix –ful or –less to the end of a noun, it becomes an adjective.
- Also note that adding the suffixes –ful and –less to the same root word creates words with opposite meanings. Powerful and powerless are antonyms, or words with opposite meanings.
- Tell students you will give them two word choices. Then, you will read a sentence with a missing word and they must decide which word choice is most appropriate in the blank.
- Practice with the following example:
  - Faith or faithful? It is important to have _____ and trustworthy friends.
  - Ask students if faith or faithful would be most appropriate in the blank. (Faithful, because it is an adjective that describes a noun, which in this sentence is friends.)
  - Continue in this manner with the remaining examples below:
    - Power or powerless? The President of the United States has the _____ to make decisions for the country. (power)
    - Success or successful? The party was a _____ because everyone had a good time. (success)
– Sense or senseless? It seemed _____ to swim in the pool during a thunderstorm. (senseless)

– Help or helpful? We thought it would be _____ to mow my grandparents’ lawn for them. (helpful)

– Help or helpless? It would be a huge _____ if you could take care of my pets while I am away on vacation. (help)

• In the time remaining, have students think of sentences that correctly use one of the root words or affixed words. (Answers may vary.)

• Have students turn to Activity Page 14.3. Briefly review the directions and complete the first item as a class. Have students complete the rest of the activity page for homework.

SPELLING

15 minutes

Practice Spelling Words

• Tell students they will practice writing the spelling words. Remind them to use the Individual Code Chart on Activity Page SR.3 as they practice.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 14.4, explaining that the spelling words are listed in the box on the activity page and on the board/chart paper from the first lesson.

• Have students complete Activity Page 14.4 independently.

• Remind students to check their spelling using the word bank on the activity page and make corrections if needed.

• As time allows, review the correct answers as a whole group. Have students say, spell, and say the words again with you but without looking at the activity page. Students may close their eyes, look up at the ceiling, or trace on the back of their paper with their finger to help them visualize the spelling as they spell with you.

• Collect completed Activity Page 14.4 to review and grade at a later time.

• Remind students to study the spelling words for the spelling assessment in the next lesson.

TAKE-HOME MATERIAL

Morphology

• Have students complete Activity Page 14.3 for homework.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Spelling

- Erase or cover the list of spelling words prior to the assessment.

Unit Assessment

- Determine how many students will be assessed for fluency, and make that number of copies of the Recording Copy of “Robert Louis Stevenson” and the Fluency Scoring Sheet.

Fluency (optional)

- If students were assigned a selection from the Fluency Supplement, determine which students will read the selection aloud and when. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.

Morphology

- Collect Activity Page 14.3 to review and grade as there is no morphology lesson today.
SPELLING

Assessment
- Have students turn to Activity Page 15.1 for the spelling assessment.
- Using the following list, read the words one at a time in the following manner: Say the word, use it in a sentence, and then repeat the word.
- Tell students that at the end you will review the list once more.
- Remind students to pronounce and spell each word syllable by syllable.

- After reading all of the words, review the list slowly, reading each word once more.
- Have students write the following sentence as dictated.

I am glad the faithful Jim Hawkins is successful in returning home.

- Repeat the sentence slowly several times, reminding students to check their work for appropriate capitalization and punctuation.
- Collect all spelling assessments to grade later. Use of the template provided at the end of this lesson is highly recommended to identify and analyze students’ errors.

Materials
- Activity Page 15.1

Note
This is a good opportunity to use the Tens scoring system to gather formative assessment data. Information about the Tens scoring system appears in the Yearlong Teacher Resources on the Grade Four Ancillary Materials page on the website: https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-ancillary-materials-fourth-grade/yearlong-teacher-resources/.
UNIT ASSESSMENT

- Make sure each student has a copy of Activity Page 15.2. You may have collected this activity page from students at the beginning of the unit.
- Tell students they will read two selections, answer questions about each, and respond to a writing prompt. In the next sections, they will answer grammar and morphology questions evaluating the skills they have practiced in this unit.
- Encourage students to do their best.
- Once students have finished the assessment, encourage them to review their papers quietly, rereading and checking their answers carefully.
- Circulate around the room as students complete the assessment to ensure everyone is working individually. Assist students as needed, but do not provide them with answers.

Reading Comprehension

The reading comprehension section of the Unit Assessment contains two selections and accompanying questions. The first selection is a literary text that tells the story of the escape from the Hispaniola, as narrated by Dr. Livesey, one of the characters in Treasure Island. The second selection is an informational text that describes how Treasure Island has inspired our way of thinking about such things as pirates and buried treasure.

These texts were created using guidance from the Common Core State Standards (CCSS) and recommendations from Student Achievement Partners (AchievetheCore.org). These texts are considered worthy of students’ time to read and meet the expectations for text complexity at Grade 4. The texts feature core content and domain vocabulary from the Treasure Island unit that students can draw on in service of comprehending the text.

The questions pertaining to these texts are aligned to the CCSS and are worthy of students’ time to answer. Questions have been designed so they do not focus on minor points in the text, but rather, they require deep analysis. Thus, each item might address multiple standards. In general, the selected-response items address Reading standards and the constructed-response item addresses Writing standards. To prepare students for CCSS-aligned assessments, such as those developed by the Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers (PARCC) and Smarter Balanced, some items replicate how technology may be incorporated in those assessments, using a paper and pencil format.

Optional Fluency Assessment

You may wish to assess students’ fluency in reading, using the selection “Robert Louis Stevenson.” Assessing fluency requires that you work one-on-one with individual students to administer the assessment. Because this assessment requires you to work with one student at a time, you may wish to administer it either while... other students complete the unit assessment or at a different time while students read enrichment selections and complete accompanying activity pages. Alternatively, you may have other time during the school day when you can administer this assessment as well.

Administration Instructions

- Turn to the student copy of “Robert Louis Stevenson” that follows the Unit Assessment Analysis section. This is the text students will read aloud. Turn to this copy each time you administer this assessment.

- Using one Recording Copy of “Robert Louis Stevenson” for each student, create a running record as you listen to each student read orally.

- Call the student you will assess to come sit near you.

- Explain that you are going to ask him or her to read a selection aloud and you are going to take some notes as he or she reads. Also, explain that he or she should not rush but rather read at his or her regular pace.

- Read the title of the selection aloud for the student, as the title is not part of the assessment.

- Begin timing when the student reads the first word of the selection. As the student reads aloud, make a running record on the Recording Copy using the following guidelines:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Words read correctly</th>
<th>No mark is required.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Omissions</td>
<td>Draw a long dash above the word omitted.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Insertions</td>
<td>Write a caret (^) at the point where the insertion was made. If you have time, write down the word that was inserted.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Words read incorrectly</td>
<td>Write an “X” above the word.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Substitutions</td>
<td>Write the substitution above the word.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Self-corrected errors</td>
<td>Replace original error mark with an “SC.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teacher-supplied words</td>
<td>Write a “T” above the word (counts as an error).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

- When one minute has elapsed, draw a vertical line on the Recording Copy to mark where the student was in the text at that point. Allow the student to finish reading the selection aloud.

- Assess the student’s comprehension of the selection by asking him or her to respond orally to the following questions:
1. Literal How did Stevenson pass the time when he was sick in bed?
   » He made up stories with the help of his nurse.

2. Literal Why did Stevenson wander over half the world?
   » He was searching for a place that favored, or would be good for, his health.

3. Literal Where did Stevenson and his wife ultimately settle down?
   » on an island in the South Pacific

4. Inferential What did people think of Stevenson?
   » He was liked wherever he went because of his graceful, charming ways and his sincerity.

- Repeat this process for additional students as needed. Scoring can be done later, provided you have kept running records and marked the last word students read after one minute elapsed.

Students might make the following errors:

- predictable: using ‘k’ instead of ‘c’ for /k/; using ‘u’ instead of ‘a’ for /ә/; using ‘bul’ instead of ‘ble’ for /bәl/
- comfortable: using ‘k’ instead of ‘c’ for /k/; using ‘u’ instead of ‘a’ for /ә/; using ‘bul’ instead of ‘ble’ for /bәl/

- powerful: using ‘ou’ instead of ‘ow’ for /ou/; using ‘ll’ instead of ‘l’ for /l/’
- helpless: using ‘les’ instead of ‘less’ for /les/
- senseless: using ‘sens’ instead of ‘sense’ for /sens/; using ‘les’ instead of ‘less’ for /les/
- endless: using ‘les’ instead of ‘less’ for /les/
• Although any of the above student-error scenarios may occur, misspellings may be due to many other factors. You may find it helpful to use the analysis chart to record any student errors. For example:
  – Is the student consistently making errors on specific vowels? Which ones?
  – Is the student consistently making errors at the ends of the words?
  – Is the student consistently making errors in multisyllable words, but not single-syllable words?

• Also, examine the dictated sentence for errors in capitalization and punctuation.

UNIT ASSESSMENT ANALYSIS

Quantitative and Qualitative Analysis of the Text

The texts used in the reading comprehension assessment, “The Escape from the Hispaniola” (literary text) and “Pirates, Parrots, and Pieces of Eight” (informational text), have been profiled for text complexity using the quantitative measures described in the Common Core State Standards for English Language Arts, Supplement to Appendix A, “New Research on Text Complexity,” (CoreStandards.org/resources). Both selections fall within the Common Core 4th–5th Grade Band.

Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text. If students respond that it was safer to relocate to the stockade, they should include details about how Dr. Livesey said it would make a good fortress, they brought some supplies from the Hispaniola so they could be somewhat prepared to handle different issues, they would be protected from the pirates, and they would be on dry land. If students respond that it was not safer to relocate to the stockade, they should include details about how staying on the ship would allow them to see enemies coming, there are already supplies on the ship, they wouldn’t have to try to escape to land while pirates were attacking them, and they could fight off the pirates on the ship. | RL.4.1, RL.4.3, W.4.1, W.4.1b, W.4.4 |

Spanish conquistadors after Columbus conquered much of South America, where they set up large silver mines. The silver ore was dug out and melted down to make coins. Each coin, or piece of silver, was worth eight reales, which was a different Spanish coin; thus the name of the coin was a piece of eight. As the Spanish were in control of the silver mines, they were the only ones making and issuing the coins. However, other countries used the coins because the silver in the coins was valuable so people in other countries were willing to accept the coins as payment. | RI.4.1, RI.4.3, RI.4.5 |

The following is the text for the Optional Fluency Assessment, titled “Robert Louis Stevenson.” Turn to this copy of the selection each time you administer this assessment.

You will also find a Recording Copy of the text for doing a running record of oral reading for each student you assess. There is also a Fluency Scoring Sheet. Make as many copies of the Recording Copy and the Fluency Scoring Sheet as you need, having one for each student you assess.
Robert Louis Stevenson

Robert Louis Stevenson was born in Scotland in 1850. He was the son of an engineer who built lighthouses. He was an only child and passed many days sick in bed, where he made up stories with the help of his nurse. All his life he was skinny and prone to illness, usually in his lungs. As an adult, he wandered over half the world in search of a place that favored his health.

He studied first to be an engineer, and then a lawyer. He turned instead to writing essays, plays, and stories. For a while, he wore long hair, floppy hats, and velvet jackets. His parents believed he had become a wanderer.

While hanging out at an artist's colony near Paris, he met Fanny Osbourne, who would later become his wife.

In 1888, they sailed to the warm South Pacific, hoping the tropics would be good for Stevenson's health. For a year and a half they roamed the scattered islands. Finally they settled on one of the islands where they built a plantation house.

Wherever he went, Stevenson was liked for his graceful, charming ways and his sincerity.

Though his health was better, the cares of his household were heavy. Fanny had a nervous breakdown in 1893. The next year, in 1894, a frail Stevenson died.

In his own time, his wandering life itself seemed a romantic adventure. He wrote Treasure Island in 1883 and it made him very popular. His other famous stories include The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde and Kidnapped.

Guidelines for Fluency Assessment Scoring

To calculate a student’s W.C.P.M. (Words Correct Per Minute) score, use the information you wrote on the Recording Copy and follow these steps. You may wish to have a calculator available.

1. Count Words Read in One Minute. This is the total number of words the student read or attempted to read in one minute. It includes words the student read correctly as well as words the student read incorrectly. Write the total in the box labeled Words Read in One Minute.

2. Count the Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute. You noted these on the Recording Copy. They include words read incorrectly, omissions, substitutions, and words you had to supply. Write the total in the box labeled Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute on the Fluency Scoring Sheet. (A mistake that the student self-corrects is not counted as a mistake.)

3. Subtract Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute from Words Read in One Minute to get Words Correct. Write the number in the box labeled W.C.P.M. Although the analysis does not include any words the student read correctly (or incorrectly) after one minute, you may use this information from your Recording Copy for anecdotal purposes.

As you evaluate W.C.P.M. scores, here are some factors to consider.

It is normal for students to show a wide range in fluency and in W.C.P.M. scores. However, a major goal of Grade 4 is to read with sufficient fluency to ensure comprehension and independent reading of school assignments in this and subsequent grade levels. A student’s W.C.P.M. score can be compared with the score of other students in the class (or grade level) and also with the national fluency norms obtained by Hasbrouck and Tindal (2006). Hasbrouck and Tindal suggest that a score falling within 10 words above or below the 50th percentile should be interpreted as within the normal, expected, and appropriate range for a student at that grade level at that time of year. For example, if you administered the assessment during the fall of Grade 4, and a student scored 84 W.C.P.M., you should interpret this as within the normal, expected, and appropriate range for that student.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Writing: By the end of the lesson, students will be able to revise the body of a story, identify the features of an effective conclusion, and draft a conclusion for an adventure story.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Writing

- Ensure that students have a writing journal or paper to write on for their conclusion.
- Display the Adventure Story Rubric from Lesson 8.

WRITING

90 minutes

Revise a Story and Draft a Conclusion

Revise a Story

- Support Allow students to continue writing the body of their story if they are not ready to revise.
- Direct students’ attention to the displayed Adventure Story Rubric, and have them turn to Activity Page 8.4. Have one student read the “Exemplary” column for the “Body” section of the story aloud.
- Have students review the body of their adventure story and find at least two places in which they can add more detail.
- Tell students to make sure they have incorporated dialogue at least twice in the story.
- Have students ensure the dialogue follows the punctuation rules discussed in the previous lessons.

Materials

- Adventure Story Rubric
- draft of body
- Treasure Island
- Activity Pages 7.2, 8.4, 16.1
- writing journals
Support  As needed, remind students about the punctuation rules for dialogue. (Surround the dialogue with quotation marks; place punctuation for dialogue inside the quotation marks; and begin a new paragraph each time there is a new speaker, starting on a new line and indenting.)

- Circulate and check in with students, ensuring they are revising effectively.

Feedback  Provide reinforcing or corrective feedback, such as:

» I’m pleased to see that you use dialogue often in your story. I notice you have used punctuation differently for moments of dialogue. Does the period go inside or outside the quotation marks?

» I noticed that you only have two moments of Rising Action. What is another example of Rising Action you can include?

Challenge  Have students add more dialogue and figurative language to their story.

Model Drafting a Conclusion  15 minutes

- Tell students they will draft the conclusion to their story today.

- Have students describe the purpose of a conclusion. (to solve the problem or conflict and end the story)

- Explain that effective conclusions include a resolution. They also often circle back to the beginning by referring to the introduction. Treasure Island does this effectively.

- Have students turn to page 89 of Treasure Island. Select a student to read the last three paragraphs of the story aloud.

- Have students turn to page 2 of Treasure Island. Select another student to read the first paragraph aloud.

- Have students explain how the story circles back and references the beginning. (Jim starts the tale by telling the reader he will share a story. He ends the tale by referring to himself as the storyteller again. Jim says “Well, to make a long story short . . .”, which reminds us of the beginning. He ends with the same frame—telling the reader that he will end the story. Using this narrative frame gives the tale a feeling of closure and completion.)

- Tell students that conclusions wrap up the story but may leave some loose ends, meaning the problem or action in the story is not always completely resolved. This keeps the reader wondering and thinking about the story even after they have finished reading.

- Ask students what is left open-ended in Treasure Island. Have students point to specific examples in the last three paragraphs. (Long John Silver disappears; there is still more treasure remaining on the island.)
• Effective conclusions often end with memorable language or imagery. Ask students what memorable language and/or imagery is present at the end of Treasure Island. (Jim having a nightmare and hearing the parrot calling out, “Pieces of eight! Pieces of eight!”)

• Tell students that sometimes writers must revise the introduction—and even the body of the story—after they write the conclusion. Students will have the opportunity to revise and edit their adventure story after drafting the conclusion.

Plan a Conclusion
15 minutes

• Have students turn to Activity Page 7.2. Remind them that they wrote ideas for how they would resolve their story. Students may want to use Activity Page 7.2 to help them plan their conclusion.

• Pair students to brainstorm ideas for a conclusion using Activity Page 16.1.

• If time permits, ask students to share ideas for their conclusion with the class.

Draft a Conclusion
25 minutes

• Explain that a conclusion should summarize and wrap up the story, but it should also leave the reader with memorable language or imagery. Students might create an interesting image, insert meaningful dialogue, or circle back in some way to the beginning of the story.

• If students would like to circle back in some way to the beginning of the story, as in Treasure Island, they may need to revise the introduction as well.

  Support Have students discuss ideas for their conclusion with a partner or in a small group.

• Circulate and check in with students, ensuring that they are drafting effectively.

  Feedback Provide reinforcing or corrective feedback, such as:

  » I like the way you end with a metaphor.

  » I noticed that your conclusion is only two sentences. Can you add more detail? How does the main character get home? What has he/she learned from his/her adventure?

Wrap Up
5 minutes

• As time permits, have students share their conclusions with the whole group.

Create a Title; Revise and Edit an Adventure Story

Model Creating a Title

30 minutes

- Explain that a title is important because it is the author’s first chance to make an impression on the reader.

- Tell students that Robert Louis Stevenson originally titled his adventure story The Sea Cook. Would you rather read a book entitled The Sea Cook or Treasure Island? Why? (Most people would rather read Treasure Island because it implies excitement and possible adventure. We immediately ask questions like “What kind of treasure?” “Who will find it?” The Sea Cook is not as interesting a title. We might ask ourselves, “Who is the sea cook?” and “Why is there a story about a sea cook?” However, there is little interest and excitement beyond that.)

- Ask students what an effective title should accomplish. (grab the reader’s attention; tell what the story will be about)

- Explain that effective titles are also typically short and do not end with a period.

- Tell students they will use Treasure Island to explore titles in more depth.

- Divide students into small groups and have them complete Activity Page 17.1.

- Circulate and check in with students, ensuring they are completing the activity effectively.

- Once students have completed Activity Page 17.1, have them remain in their small groups, but discuss the answers as a whole group.

Create a Title

15 minutes

- Have students remain in their small groups, but work independently to create their own titles, keeping in mind the features of titles discussed. Students may write their titles on their adventure story draft.

- Ask students to share their titles with their small group.

- Circulate and check in with students, encouraging them to offer suggestions to one another about how to make their titles stronger. Have students discuss those suggestions and revise the titles as needed.

Feedback Provide reinforcing or corrective feedback, such as:

- How can you shorten your title?

- Read your title to your group. Then ask what they think your story will be about. Are they right? If not, what can you change?

Materials

- Activity Pages 8.4, 17.1, 17.2
- Adventure Story Rubric
- Adventure Story Editing Checklist
- adventure story drafts
Revise and Edit an Adventure Story

- Tell students they will revise and edit their adventure story.

- Remind students they have revised the introduction and body of their story once during the drafting process.

- Refer to the displayed Adventure Story Rubric and Adventure Story Editing Checklist. Have students turn to Activity Pages 8.4 and 17.2.

- Have students explain the difference between revising and editing. (Revising is making changes to large issues, like organization or adding details. Editing is making smaller changes, like correcting grammar and spelling.)

- Review the rubric and editing checklist as needed.

- Encourage students to begin by revising based on the rubric, tackling the larger issues first before moving on to smaller details.

- Tell students to rearrange paragraphs or sentences to improve the organization.

- Remind students they should incorporate dialogue at least twice. They should also use figurative language and strong verbs when possible.

- Tell students to add details whenever necessary.

- Explain that they should look at their story to make sure that each item mentioned in the Editing Checklist is evident in their story. If any items are not evident, students should use this opportunity to edit accordingly.

- Encourage students to read their story aloud quietly to catch mistakes.

- Circulate and check in with students, ensuring they are revising and editing effectively.

Feedback

- Provide reinforcing or corrective feedback, such as:

  - Is the conflict resolved clearly and creatively?

  - I noticed that your conclusion is only two sentences. Can you add more detail? How does the main character get home? What has the character learned from his or her adventure?

  - Does the conclusion include memorable language or imagery?

Support

- Have students exchange papers with a partner to help revise and edit their stories.

Wrap Up

- Ask students to share their favorite sentence(s) with the class.

Support

- Allow students to continue revising and editing.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to publish an adventure story.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Writing

- Plan to divide students into small groups to practice reading their stories aloud.
- Consider inviting other adults, such as parents or school administrators, to help with the optional class publication activity listed at the end of this lesson. Alternatively, the class publication activity could be produced during a Pausing Point day.
- If needed, ensure students have access to computers.

WRITING

Publish an Adventure Story

Create a Final Draft of an Adventure Story

60 minutes

- Tell students that today they will create a final draft and publish their completed adventure story.
- Explain that students should gather all their drafts, comments, and revisions to compile a final draft.
- If students have access to computers, have them type a final copy of their story. Otherwise, have students write a clean copy using their own paper.
- Tell students to number the pages.

Materials

- draft of adventure story
• Circulate and check in with students, ensuring they are creating a final draft effectively.

  Challenge If students finish, have them begin working on the title page and illustrations.

Create the Title Page

30 minutes

• Explain that once students have a final draft of their adventure story, they will create a title page.

• If students have access to computers, have them type a title page. Otherwise, have students create one using their own paper.

• Remind students that a title page includes the author’s name as well as the story title. They may also include a publication date, if they choose.

• Encourage students to illustrate the cover page with appropriate and related images.

  Support Help students identify an appropriate illustration for their cover.

  Challenge Have students practice reading their story aloud to prepare to share it in the next lesson.

Optional Publishing Activity

• With guidance and support from adults, have students explore a variety of digital tools to produce and publish a class book of adventure stories. You may look at some electronic publishing programs or create a slide presentation.

• You may bind the pages to make a book for the classroom library so students can reread the adventure stories.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Writing: By the end of the lesson, students will be able to share an adventure story as well as listen and comment effectively on their classmates’ stories.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Writing

- Plan to divide students into small groups to share their stories.
- Consider inviting other adults, such as parents or school administrators, to help during the sharing activity in this lesson.

WRITING

90 minutes

Share Adventure Stories

Discuss Listening Skills 10 minutes

- Divide students into small groups for sharing their stories.
- Remind students they should remain quiet when a classmate shares writing.
- Have students turn to Activity Page 19.1. Tell them that after each presentation, they will take several minutes to write two pieces of positive feedback on the activity page. Their feedback should be as specific as possible.
- Read the following examples of positive feedback aloud and ask students which ones are effective.
  - I like your story. (This is too general and therefore not effective. It doesn’t tell the author what he or she did well.)
  - The introduction makes me want to keep reading because you create a mysterious character. (This comment is effective because it tells the writer why the reader wants to keep reading.)

Materials

- published adventure story
- Activity Page 19.1
– The metaphor in the middle of the story right after the storm helped me picture the action in the story. (This comment is effective because it points to a particular place in the text and because it explains the effect it had on the reader.)

– The conclusion made me keep thinking about the story because I wondered what happened to the main character’s sister. (This comment is effective because it tells the author what he or she did well and why the reader continues to think about the story.)

• Remind students to listen carefully and write two pieces of positive feedback on Activity Page 19.1 at the end of each presentation.

Share Stories

75 minutes

• Have students read their stories in small groups.

• Circulate as students share their stories and ensure that students are listening politely and writing positive feedback on Activity Page 19.1.

Wrap Up

5 minutes

• Collect Activity Page 19.1 at the end of class and assess the feedback.

• Collect adventure stories and prepare feedback to return during a Pausing Point day.
Pausing Point for Differentiation of Instruction

Please use the final four days of this unit to address results of the Unit Assessment (for reading comprehension; fluency, if applicable; grammar; and morphology), and spelling assessments. Use each student’s scores on the Unit Assessment to determine which remediation and/or enrichment opportunities will benefit particular students. In assigning these remediation and/or enrichment activities, you may choose to have students work individually, in small groups, or as a whole class.

You may also choose to use the final four days of this unit to complete the End-of-Year Assessment. Based on students’ scores, you may also address results of this assessment by tracking back through reading comprehension, fluency, grammar, or morphology lessons taught in earlier units throughout the year.

Remediation

Reading Comprehension

It is important to understand that poor performance on the Reading Comprehension section of the end-of-unit assessment may be attributable to any number of factors. To ascertain which remediation efforts will be most worthwhile, it is highly recommended that you ask any student who performed poorly on this section to read at least one of the assessment passages aloud to you orally, one on one. As the student reads, make note of any words the student struggles with or reads incorrectly. If the student occasionally misreads words in the text, analyze the types of errors in code knowledge and consult the CKLA Decoding and Encoding Remediation Supplement. This online publication provides further guidance in assessing, analyzing, and remediating specific decoding skills so targeted remediation can be provided. If the student frequently misreads words in the text, this is indication of a more global decoding problem that may require further assessment and remediation by a reading specialist. The Decoding and Encoding Remediation Supplement can be accessed online at https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-ancillary-materials-fourth-grade/.

If the student does not misread words, but reads haltingly, a lack of fluency may impede comprehension. Administer the optional fluency assessment to verify whether the student’s reading rate is below the norm. If so, remediation efforts should be targeted at building fluency.
Once the student finishes reading the passage(s) aloud, ask the comprehension questions orally. Analyze whether the student makes errors on the same questions answered incorrectly on the written assessment, as well as the type of questions answered incorrectly. Does the student have difficulty answering particular types of questions? If so, guided rereading of specific chapters in a small group setting with other students who are struggling may be helpful. Choose chapters that were not already used for small group instruction and provide specific guidance as to how to use the text to arrive at the correct answer.

Also analyze whether there was a marked difference between the student’s comprehension of the informational and literary passages. Good performance on the informational passage requires students to use the domain specific vocabulary and knowledge presented throughout the unit. Students who performed poorly on the informational passage may benefit from rereading chapters from the unit, with more intensive focus on the domain vocabulary.

Good performance on the literary passage of this assessment requires some knowledge of domain-specific vocabulary from this unit (though not to the same extent as the informational passage), as well as general knowledge of Tier 2 and academic vocabulary. Students who performed poorly on the literary passage, but did well on the informational passage, may benefit from specific practice with Tier 2 and academic vocabulary.

Fluency

Students who struggle with fluency will benefit from having multiple opportunities to reread a particular text. If students demonstrate a need for remediation related to fluency, you may have them either reread selections from the Reader or choose an excerpt from the Fluency Supplement.

Grammar and Morphology

If students demonstrate a need for remediation in the foundational grammar and morphology skills required for the lessons in Grade 4, consult the CKLA Grade 3 Skills Strand materials for additional grammar and morphology lessons and activities. Alternatively, for students who demonstrate a general proficiency in grammar and morphology, but who demonstrate a need for remediation in connection with specific skills covered in Treasure Island, you may provide more targeted remediation by reteaching only the lessons for those skills. For additional practice with the grammar and morphology skills taught in this unit, you may wish to have students complete the Pausing Point activity pages in the Activity Book.

Spelling

If students demonstrate a need for remediation in spelling, but they exhibit general proficiency in code knowledge, have them use the Individual Code Chart to assist in spelling unfamiliar words, syllable by syllable.
If students exhibit specific code knowledge problems, as revealed by the spelling assessment analyses, they may benefit from remediation to target specific letter-sound correspondences. You can access the Decoding and Encoding Remediation Supplement online at https://www.coreknowledge.org/free-resource/ckla-ancillary-materials-fourth-grade/.

Writing

Use time during the Pausing Point to share adventure stories if there was not sufficient time in Lesson 19. Allow students to finish publishing their stories, if needed. You may also choose to complete the optional publishing activity outlined in Lesson 18. Meet briefly with individual students to discuss areas in which improvement is needed.

You may wish to suggest that students who need more practice adding details to their writing use this time to revise their work. Provide additional structure and guidance for students, making copies of both the Adventure Story Rubric and the Adventure Story Editing Checklist available (see the Teacher Resources section), and circulate and check in with students as they write.

Enrichment

If students have mastered the skills in the Treasure Island unit, their experience with the unit concepts may be enriched by the following activities:

- Students may read the enrichment selections contained in the Reader. “The Voyage” selection is a chapter from the original Treasure Island text written by Robert Louis Stevenson. The “Blackbeard” selection tells of the life of Blackbeard, one of the most well-known pirates in history. The Activity Book contains activity pages students can complete as they read these selections.

- Students may revisit Activity Page 14.1, which was completed during Lesson 14. Students may share, either with a small group or with the class, their responses to the questions on the activity page. Students may compare and contrast with others. Students may also expand upon their answers and discussions with further writing on the subject.

- Students may respond to any of the following writing prompts, conducting independent research when necessary to support their response:
  - I would recommend Treasure Island to my friends because . . .
  - _____ is my favorite character because . . .
  - Write an alternate ending to Treasure Island.
- Rewrite one scene from Treasure Island from the perspective of Long John Silver.

- Write a book review of Treasure Island.

- Students may share, either with a small group or with the class, the writing they generated in this unit or in response to the writing prompts in this Enrichment section.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

End-of-Year (EOY) Assessment

- Prepare to distribute Activity Page A.1 that you collected from students at the beginning of the unit.
- Please plan to have reading material available for students to select from and read independently as they finish the EOY Assessment.

END-OF-YEAR ASSESSMENT

The primary purpose of the EOY Assessment is to determine students’ preparedness for Grade 5 CKLA instruction.

During the first day of the three-day assessment, all students will complete the Reading Comprehension Assessment (Activity Page A.1) independently. It includes three passages and corresponding comprehension questions. After students complete this portion of the assessment, use the EOY Assessment Summary (Activity Page A.2), which you will have collected from students, to analyze each student’s performance. Please score the Reading Comprehension Assessment prior to Day 2 of the EOY Assessment, as you will use the scores to determine which students should complete the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment.

Beginning on Day 2 of the EOY Assessment, all students will work independently on the Grammar Assessment (Activity Page A.3).

In addition, you will pull students aside, one at a time, and administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment (to students who scored 10 or fewer on the Reading Comprehension Assessment, or 11–13, as time allows). Administer the Fluency Assessment to all students.

The Word Reading in Isolation Assessment uses Activity Page A.4 (Word Reading in Isolation Assessment Scoring Sheet), which you will have collected from students, as well as the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment located in the Teacher Resources section of this Teacher Guide. A Word Reading in Isolation Analysis and a Word Reading in Isolation Remediation Guide have also been included in Assessment Day 2.

The Fluency Assessment uses Activity Pages A.2 and A.5 (which you will have collected from students), as well as the student copy of the Fluency Assessment text “Paul Bunyan,” located in the Teacher Resources section. You will use Activity Page A.5 (End-of-Year Fluency Assessment Recording Copy) to create a running record while students read the fluency passage. Activity Page A.2 (End-of-Year Assessment Summary) includes a Fluency Assessment Scoring Sheet.

On Day 3 of the EOY Assessment, all students will complete the Morphology Assessment (Activity Page A.6). You will continue to pull students individually to administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment and the Fluency Assessment.

Materials
- Activity Pages A.1, A.2

Reading Comprehension Assessment

- Ensure each student has a copy of Activity Page A.1. You may have collected this activity page from students at the beginning of the unit.
- Have students work independently to complete the Reading Comprehension Assessment on Activity Page A.1. After you have scored the assessment, record individual scores on each student’s EOY Assessment Summary (Activity Page A.2).

The texts used in the Reading Comprehension Assessment—“Mercury and the Woodman” (literary text), “Benjamin Banneker” (informational text), and “The Circulatory System” (informational text)—have been profiled for text complexity using the quantitative measures described in the Common Core State Standards for English Language Arts Supplement to Appendix A, “New Research on Text Complexity” (www.corestandards.org/resources). All selections fall within the Common Core 4th–5th Grade Band.

The reading comprehension questions pertaining to these texts are aligned to the CCSS and are worthy of students’ time to answer. Questions have been designed so they do not focus on minor points in the text, but rather, they require deep analysis. Thus, each item might thus address multiple standards. In general, the selected-response items address Reading standards and the constructed-response items address Writing standards. To prepare students for CCSS-aligned assessments, such as those developed by the Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers (PARCC) and the Smarter Balanced, some items replicate how technology may be incorporated in those assessments, using a paper and pencil format.
Item Annotations and Correct Answers

Note: To receive a point for a two-part question, students must correctly answer both parts of the question.

Reading Comprehension Assessment Analysis

Students who answered 10 or fewer questions correctly out of 15 total questions appear to have minimal preparation for Grade 5. Administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment and the Fluency Assessment to these students to gain further insight as to possible weaknesses. These students may have fairly significant skill deficits and may not be ready for Grade 5. Carefully analyze their performance on the Reading Comprehension Assessment, the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment, and the Fluency Assessment to determine whether students may need to be regrouped to an earlier point of instruction in the CKLA grade level materials when they reach Grade 5.

Students who answered 11–13 questions correctly out of 15 total questions appear to have adequate preparation for Grade 5. Administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment to these students, as time permits, and administer the Fluency Assessment. Use results from the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment to identify gaps in the mastery of specific letter-sound spellings that may require targeted remediation in Grade 5.

Students who answered 14–15 questions correctly out of 15 total questions appear to have outstanding preparation for Grade 5. You do not need to administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment to these students. However, please administer the Fluency Assessment to determine whether practice and progress monitoring in the area of fluency are warranted in Grade 5.

The following chart provides an overview of how to interpret students’ scores.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

End-of-Year (EOY) Assessment

- Please plan to have reading material available for students to select from and read independently as they finish the EOY Assessment.

END-OF-YEAR ASSESSMENT

During the second day of the three-day assessment, all students will complete the Grammar Assessment independently. It includes 25 items assessing knowledge of parts of speech, sentence elements (subject/predicate), conjunctions, sentence fragments and run-ons, sentence types, and punctuation. After students complete this portion of the assessment, enter their scores on the Grammar Assessment Scoring Sheet in this Teacher Guide, making additional copies if needed. Benchmark results for individual students are not included for the Grammar Assessment.

Begin to administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment, based on students’ performance on the Reading Comprehension Assessment, and administer the Fluency Assessment to all students.

Grammar Assessment

- Make sure each student has a copy of Activity Page A.3. You may have collected this activity page from students at the beginning of the unit.

- Have students work independently to complete the Grammar Assessment on Activity Page A.3. Enter all student scores into the Grammar Assessment Scoring Sheet. To receive a point for a multiple-part question (i.e., 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 16, 18, and 19), students must correctly answer all parts of the question.

</table>
Begin to administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment individually to all students who scored 10 or fewer on the Reading Comprehension Assessment and to students who scored 11–13, as time permits, to gain further insight as to possible weaknesses.

This section of the EOY Assessment assesses single-word reading to identify the specific letter-sound correspondences a student may have not yet mastered.

Administration Instructions

- Locate the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment in the Teacher Resources section of this Teacher Guide. Students will read from this copy.
- Cover all of the words before calling a student to complete the assessment.
- Tell the student he or she will read words aloud to you and that it is important to do his or her best reading.
- Uncover the first row of words by moving the paper down.
- As the student reads a word, mark any incorrect letter-sound correspondences above the word on the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment Scoring Sheet (Activity Page A.4 that you collected from students). Also, note whether the student incorrectly chunks letters into syllables, leading to mispronunciation. If the student reads the word correctly, place a check mark above the word.
- If, after 10 seconds, the student is unable to read the word at all, simply tell the student the word and move on. Mark an ‘X’ above the word on the scoring sheet.
- Administer the Fluency Assessment after completing this section and continue administering these two individual assessments as time permits, throughout Day 2 and Day 3, to the remaining students.

Word Reading in Isolation Analysis

The more words a student is able to read and the farther the student is able to progress in the assessment, the stronger his or her preparation is for Grade 5. A Word Reading in Isolation Analysis sheet and Remediation Guide are located in this lesson.

The number of words read correctly indicates the following:

- Students who score 30 or fewer words out of 45 correctly appear to have minimal preparation for Grade 5.
- Students who score 31–35 out of 45 words correctly appear to have adequate preparation for Grade 5.
- Students who score 36–45 out of 45 words correctly appear to have outstanding preparation for Grade 5.
After scoring the assessment, you might find it helpful to determine which letter-sound correspondences students missed that caused them to score below the benchmark for word recognition. Note that one-syllable words are not included in the Syllabication Analysis.

Word Reading in Isolation Remediation Guide

Write the names of students who missed questions under each header in the following chart. This will help you determine what kind of remediation may be needed in Grade 5.

Refer to the Table of Contents in the Decoding and Encoding Remediation Supplement to locate information about specific phonemes and syllabication for remediation purposes.

Fluency Assessment

Begin to administer the Fluency Assessment individually to all students.

This section of the EOY Assessment assesses students’ fluency in reading, using the selection “Paul Bunyan” (literary text) located in the Teacher Resources section of this Teacher Guide.

Administration Instructions

- Turn to the student copy of “Paul Bunyan” in the Teacher Resources section of this Teacher Guide. Students will read from this copy.

- Using the Recording Copy of “Paul Bunyan” (Activity Page A.5) for each student, you will create a running record as you listen to each student read orally.

- Explain that the student will read a selection aloud while you take some notes. Encourage the student not to rush and to read at his or her regular pace.

- Read the title of the selection aloud for the student, as the title is not part of the assessment.

- Begin timing when the student reads the first word of the selection. As the student reads aloud, make a running record on the Recording Copy of the text using the following guidelines:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Words read correctly</th>
<th>No mark is required.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Omissions</td>
<td>Draw a long dash above the word omitted.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Insertions</td>
<td>Write a caret (^) at the point where the insertion was made. If you have time, write down the word that was inserted.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Words read incorrectly</td>
<td>Write an ‘X’ above the word.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Substitutions</td>
<td>Write the substitution above the word.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Self-corrected errors</td>
<td>Replace original error mark with an ‘SC’.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teacher-supplied words</td>
<td>Write a ‘T’ above the word (counts as an error).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

- When one minute has elapsed, draw a vertical line on the Recording Copy to mark the student’s place in the text at that point. Allow the student to finish reading the selection aloud.

Materials

- Activity Pages A.2, A.4, A.5
- stopwatch
• Assess the student’s comprehension of the selection by asking him or her to respond orally to the following questions:

1. Literal What did Paul Bunyan’s parents have to do to keep his baby bottle filled?
   » milk four dozen cows every morning and evening

2. Inferential Why did Paul’s father think it would be better if Paul didn’t sleep in town?
   » When Paul snored, neighbors thought an earthquake was happening, so it would be better if Paul didn’t sleep near neighbors and cause that kind of problem.

3. Literal What happened when Paul slept on a large raft?
   » When he turned over in his sleep, he created gigantic waves that knocked down houses along the coast.

4. Inferential Why was moving out West the best plan for the Bunyan family?
   » Americans were moving west and building things as they moved so they would have schools, churches, and furniture. All these new things were built because they didn’t exist yet, which meant there was a lot of space out West. Paul needed a lot of space.

• Continue administering the Fluency Assessment as time permits, throughout Day 2 and Day 3.

• You may score the assessment later, provided you have kept running records and marked the last word students read after one minute elapsed.

Guidelines for Fluency Assessment Scoring

Use one Fluency Assessment Scoring Sheet for each student taking the assessment. The Fluency Assessment Scoring Sheet appears in each student’s EOY Assessment Summary (Activity Page A.2).

To calculate a student’s W.C.P.M. (Words Correct Per Minute) score, use the information you recorded on the Recording Copy and follow these steps. You may wish to have a calculator available.

Materials
- Activity Page A.2
1. Count Words Read in One Minute. This is the total number of words that the student read or attempted to read in one minute. It includes words that the student read correctly as well as words that the student read incorrectly. Write the total in the box labeled Words Read in One Minute.

2. Count the Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute. You noted these in the running record. They include words read incorrectly, omissions, substitutions, and words that you had to supply. Write the total in the box labeled Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute on the scoring sheet. (A mistake that the student self-corrects is not counted as a mistake.)

3. Subtract Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute from Words Read in One Minute to get Words Correct. Write the number in the box labeled W.C.P.M. Although the analysis does not include any words the student read correctly (or incorrectly) after one minute, you may use this information from the Recording Copy for anecdotal purposes.

As you evaluate W.C.P.M. scores, here are some factors to consider:

It is normal for students to show a wide range in fluency and in W.C.P.M. scores. However, a major goal of Grades 4 and 5 is to read with sufficient fluency to ensure comprehension and independent reading of school assignments in this and subsequent grade levels. A student’s W.C.P.M. score can be compared with the score of other students in the class (or grade level) and also with the national fluency norms obtained by Hasbrouck and Tindal (2006). Hasbrouck and Tindal suggest that a score falling within 10 words above or below the 50th percentile should be interpreted as within the normal, expected, and appropriate range for a student at that grade level at that time of year. For example, if you administered the assessment during the spring of Grade 4, and a student scored 113 W.C.P.M., you should interpret this as within the normal, expected, and appropriate range for that student.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

End-of-Year (EOY) Assessment

- Please plan to have reading material available for students to select from and read independently as they finish the EOY Assessment.

END-OF-YEAR ASSESSMENT

During the third day of the three-day assessment, all students will complete the Morphology Assessment independently. It includes 20 items assessing knowledge of the prefixes un-–, non-–, en-–, im-–, and in-–; suffixes –y, –ly, –able, –ible, –ful, and –less; and roots arch, graph, rupt, port, and bio, all of which were taught in CKLA prior to the end of Grade 4. Have students work independently to complete the Morphology Assessment on Activity Page A.6. Enter all student scores into the Morphology Assessment Scoring Sheet.

Continue to administer the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment and the Fluency Assessments, as described on Assessment Day 2.

Morphology Assessment

- Make sure each student has a copy of Activity Page A.6. You may have collected this activity page from students at the beginning of the unit.

- Have students work independently to complete the Morphology Assessment on Activity Page A.6. Record all student scores into the Morphology Assessment Scoring Sheet.

Interpreting End-of-Year Assessment Scores

You should use the results of three assessments to determine students’ preparedness for Grade 5 CKLA instruction: the Reading Comprehension Assessment, the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment (if administered), and the Fluency Assessment. Please refer to the Grade 4 End-of-Year Assessment Summary (Activity Page A.2) and consider students’ performance on these three assessments, in combination.

It is most challenging to analyze results for students with ambiguous or borderline scores. In particular, you may have some students who are right on the border between being strong enough readers to benefit from Grade 5 instruction and not having adequate preparation. This might include students who answered most questions correctly on one story of the Reading Comprehension Assessment but not other stories, or this might include students whose performance was uneven on the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment or Fluency Assessment.

In analyzing results from the Reading Comprehension Assessment, be aware that some students may not be strong test-takers. They may struggle to answer the questions even if they read the selection and understood it. You may wish to have students with borderline scores read the selection(s) aloud to you and then discuss it with you so you can better determine if their struggles are a result of comprehension difficulties or other factors.

In analyzing results from the Word Reading in Isolation Assessment, remember that not all poor scores are the same.

Students who have difficulty reading one-syllable words may have a major problem reading the words or spellings in question and need intensive remediation beyond what can likely be provided in a Grade 5 classroom.

Benchmark results for individual students are not included for the Grammar Assessment or the Morphology Assessment. You should use the results of the Grammar Assessment and the Morphology Assessment to determine the extent to which students may benefit from the additional practice of certain grammar and morphology skills taught in CKLA prior to beginning the Grade 5 grammar and/or morphology instruction.

Guidance for Teacher Use of Rubrics

Rubrics are provided for evaluation of the content and structure of student writing composed within each unit. The criteria within the descriptions correspond to what is taught in the writing lessons. “Exemplary” to “Beginning” performance columns provide graduated descriptions for each criterion. The columns for “Strong,” “Developing,” and “Beginning” performance are shaded to help students initially attend to the description for “Exemplary” performance. The rubrics allow teachers and students to identify graduated steps for improvement when aspects of the writing do not meet all the taught criteria. To do this, teachers (and students) may highlight the language from each row that best describes the student writing.

Guidance for Teacher Use of Editing Checklists

Editing checklists allow students and teachers to evaluate students’ command of language conventions and writing mechanics within unit writing projects. They serve a different purpose than rubrics; rubrics measure the extent to which students apply specific instructional criteria they have been building toward across the unit.
whereas editing checklists measure the extent to which students apply English language conventions and general writing mechanics. With regard to expectations for accountability, we recommend using the editing checklist to measure students’ command of language conventions and writing mechanics only when students have received the appropriate instructional support and specific opportunity to review their writing for that purpose.

Evaluating Student Writing

Make enough copies of the rubric and editing checklist found in this section to evaluate each student’s writing piece.

Resources for the Enrichment Selections in Treasure Island

The enrichment selections in Treasure Island are intended to be used at your discretion. They are intended to be read by more advanced readers, as they are more difficult to read and include more challenging vocabulary than Chapters 1–9. You may want to assign these chapters to students who need more challenging reading material. An introduction to the selections is provided here. Core vocabulary is also listed for each selection; these words are bolded in the Reader and appear in the glossary. Following the vocabulary chart, pronunciations are provided for words that may be challenging to decode.

Core Vocabulary for “The Voyage”

“The Voyage” is a selection from the original Treasure Island text by Robert Louis Stevenson. It picks up after Jim brings the papers he finds in the captain’s sea chest to Dr. Livesey and Squire Trelawney. Students can read to find out how the selection is similar and how it is different to the adapted text in the Reader. Activity Page E1.1 corresponds to this enrichment selection.

The following core vocabulary words are bolded in the selection and appear in the glossary. Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if needed.
1. stave, n. a verse or stanza of a song (91)
2. bulkhead, n. a wall in a ship dividing it into watertight sections (92)
3. yarn, n. a tale or an adventure story (94)
4. pitch, n. a thick, black, sticky substance made from tar used to cover roofs and pave roads (94)
5. muck, v. to make dirty (mucked) (94)
6. forelock, n. a lock of hair at the top of one’s forehead (95)
7. broach, v. to open (broached) (95)
8. abeam, adv. from one side to the other across a ship (96)
9. alow, adv. below the deck of a ship (96)
10. aloft, adv. above the deck of a ship (96)
11. helm, n. a wheel or lever used to steer a ship (97)
12. luff, n. the front edge of a sail (97)

Pronunciation Guide for “The Voyage”

- Madagascar: /madəgasˈkar/
- Malabar: /maləˈbar/
- Surinam: /sərəˈnom/
Core Vocabulary for “Blackbeard”

The “Blackbeard” selection tells of the life of Blackbeard. This offers students an opportunity to learn more about one of the most infamous pirates in history, who is briefly mentioned in Chapter 2 of the Treasure Island Reader, “In fact, Blackbeard was a child compared to Flint!” This selection describes Blackbeard’s rise and fall as an immensely powerful pirate in the 1700s. Activity Page E2.1 corresponds to this enrichment selection.

The following core vocabulary words are bolded in the selections and appear in the glossary. Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if needed.

1. iconic, adj. commonly known and widely recognized (101)
2. hourglass, n. a tool that uses sand to measure a fixed amount of time, usually an hour (101)
3. pardon, n. a release from being punished for a crime (102)

Paul Bunyan

Even as a baby, Paul Bunyan was mighty big. How big? Well, he was so big that his parents had to use a covered wagon for his cradle.

As you might imagine, young Paul Bunyan had a big appetite. He gobbled up five barrels of porridge a day, and his parents had to milk four dozen cows every morning and evening just to keep his baby bottle filled.

Paul was so big it caused some problems in the little town in Maine where he grew up. When he sneezed, he blew the birds from Maine to California. When he snored, the neighbors ran out of their houses hollering, “Earthquake! Earthquake!”

After that, Paul’s father thought it might be better if Paul didn’t sleep in town. He built a cot on a large raft for Paul and floated it off the coast. Paul slept on the raft for a few nights, but the floating cot didn’t work out. When Paul turned over in his sleep, he created gigantic waves that knocked down houses along the coast.

Eventually, Paul’s father decided that the East Coast was just too small for Paul Bunyan. The only sensible thing to do was to move out West. So the Bunyan family moved to Minnesota. In those days Minnesota was full of logging camps, sawmills, and lumberjacks. Americans were moving west and “building the country.” They had to cut down a lot of trees to make their homes, not to mention their schools, churches, boats, and furniture.

1. Why might the captain direct Jim to go to the doctor and tell him to “send all hands” to the inn? What does he want them to do?

The captain wants Jim to get help if Black Dog returns or if the captain is given the black spot. When he says “send all hands,” he means send all the help possible, including the doctor and the magistrate. He hopes these men will protect him and prevent Black Dog and his men from finding the sea chest.

2. At different points in the excerpt, the captain is described as growling, hissing, and croaking. These are verbs usually used to describe the actions of animals. Why might these words accurately describe the actions of the captain? These sounds are made by animals when they are about to attack. Using these words to describe the captain suggests that he is dangerous, ruthless, and frightening.

3. Why might the captain direct Jim to go to the doctor and tell him to “send all hands” to the inn? What does he want them to do?

The captain wants Jim to get help if Black Dog returns or if the captain is given the black spot. The Sea Chest and the Blind Man

As you and your partner read Chapter 2, “The Sea Chest and the Blind Man,” answer the following questions. Use complete sentences and include page numbers where appropriate.

1. Why did Jim and his mother wait in a ditch?
   A. They wanted to avoid a mob of angry townspeople.
   B. They were looking for their dog.
   C. They were hiding from pirates ransacking the inn.
   D. They were lost.

   (Page(s) 12)

2. A simile is a comparison of two different things, usually using like or as. Paraphrase the following simile from page 15 in your own words.

   They scattered like rabbits in every direction.

   Answers may vary, but should be similar to: The men ran away quickly in all different directions.

3. Chapter 2 contains two different settings. Name the two places where the action happens in this chapter.

   Admiral Benbow Inn (or just outside) and Dr. Livesey’s house

4. Dialogue is used on page 13 to show rather than tell. Just like Jim and his mother, the reader overhears the dialogue. What do we learn from the conversations?

   A. Pew and his men have found Flint’s map.
   B. The items Pew and his men are looking for are gone.
   C. Pew is more interested in Flint’s map than the money.
   D. Pew knows Jim has taken the key and Flint’s map.

5. In the following sentence on page 14, what does the idiom hold their ground mean?

   Pew, however, attempted to convince the others to hold their ground and not flee like scalded rats.

   A. collect dirt from the side of the road
   B. stay in place and not give up
   C. run away quickly
   D. have a meeting

   (Page(s) A. C

6. In the following sentence on page 20, how does the use of the phrase do not breathe a word of contribute to the meaning of the passage?

   Remember, do not breathe a word of what we’ve found.

   A. The phrase suggests the men must keep their findings secret.
   B. The phrase suggests the information and journey are dangerous.
   C. The phrase suggests that the square should tell people what they have found so that he can assemble the best crew possible.
   D. The phrase suggests that the square is feeling ill.

7. This question has two parts. Answer Part A and then answer Part B.

   Part A: What is the Jolly Roger?

   The skull and cross bones was an intimidating symbol meant to identify a pirate ship and to scare merchant sailors.

   (Page(s) 16)

   Part B: What was the purpose of the Jolly Roger?

   The skull and cross bones was an intimidating symbol meant to identify a pirate ship and to scare merchant sailors.

8. What do Jim, Dr. Livesey, and Squire Trelawney decide to do after opening the treasure map?

   A. They turn the map over to the authorities.
   B. Squire Trelawney decides to go to Bristol to hire a ship and crew.
   C. The doctor and squire agree to pay Jim a handsome sum for the map.
   D. Dr. Livesey decides to go to Bristol to hire a ship and crew.

9. Whom does Squire Trelawney hire to be the cook on the Hispaniola?

   Squire Trelawney hires Long John Silver to be the cook.

   (Page(s) 21)
The Real Adventure Begins

Answer each question, citing the page number(s) where you found evidence in the text for your answers.

1. What does Jim see at the quay in Bristol and how does he react?
   He sees ships from all over the world and sailors working on the ships, including some men high up in the rigging. He also sees sailors with pigtailists in their hair and rings in their ears. Jim is excited. The reader can infer Jim's reaction because he says "I was captivated."

The following question has two parts. Answer Part A and then answer Part B.

2. Part A: What is Jim's first impression of Long John Silver?
   Jim seems relieved. He says Silver seems very smart. He also says that Long John Silver doesn't look like a buccaneer, but rather a likeable, clean landlord. He seems to have a positive first impression of Long John Silver.

3. What does Jim think of Long John Silver after seeing Black Dog in Silver's tavern?
   Answers may vary, but should include that Jim seems to have mixed feelings. He likes that Silver explained ship terms to him, but senses that something isn't quite right because Black Dog was in Silver's tavern. Silver is honest about not catching Black Dog. He also later pays Jim a compliment. But something isn't right.

4. Why is Captain Smollett upset?
   Answers may vary, but may include that Captain Smollett is upset because he thinks treasure voyages are dangerous, he doesn’t trust the crew, and he is worried about the location of the guns and powder.

5. What do you think Jim means when he says that he wonders about Silver's choice of name for his parrot, Captain Flint?
   Answers may vary, but may include that Jim might think it is odd that Long John Silver's parrot is named after the pirate Captain Flint. Billy Bones was Captain Flint's first mate, and the journey to Treasure Island is to find Captain Flint's buried treasure. Earlier in the story, Squire Trelawney describes Flint as "the bloodthirstiest pirate that ever flew the Jolly Roger." Naming a parrot after a known pirate is not necessarily something that an average person would do.

6. What does Jim mean when he says that Silver "smiled in a way that made me think he was either the best of men—or the worst of men"?
   Answers may vary, but should include: Jim still doesn't know whether or not to trust Silver. On the one hand, Silver could be an honest man that would be good to be around. On the other hand, Silver could be acting honest to hide the fact that he isn't. Jim just isn't sure about Silver.

Relative Pronouns

- who: refers to or replaces subject
- whom: refers to or replaces object
- whose: indicates possession

Read each pair of sentences. Then, combine each pair of sentences into one sentence, using the appropriate relative pronoun. Be sure to use correct capitalization and punctuation.

Example: Tom is in my class. I borrowed Tom's book.
   Tom whose book I borrowed is in my class.

1. I asked Elizabeth for a pen. I sit next to Elizabeth in class.
   I asked Elizabeth, whom I sit next to in class, for a pen.

2. My neighbor's flowers are pretty. My neighbor loves to garden.
   My neighbor, whose flowers are pretty, loves to garden.

3. My brother likes to tell jokes. My brother is funny.
   My brother, who likes to tell jokes, is funny.

NAME: ___________________ DATE: ___________________
4. I gave the tourist directions. The tourist was lost.
   I gave the tourist, who was lost, directions.

5. My sister is smart. My sister works at the library.
   My sister, who works at the library, is smart.

Root bio

Write the correct word to complete each sentence.

1. He wrote a(n) autobiography about his life as a dancer, singer, and actor.

2. When an animal in the wild develops a relationship with an animal of another species that benefits both animals, it is considered a(n) symbiotic relationship.

3. Our teacher wrote an interesting biography about the life of Blackbeard, a famous pirate.

Challenge: Write a complete sentence using two words with the root bio. Be sure to use correct capitalization and punctuation. Answers may vary, but should correctly use two words with the root bio.

---

What I Heard in the Apple Barrel

Answer each question thoughtfully, citing evidence from the text and page number(s) where you found evidence for each question. Answer in complete sentences and restate the question in your answer whenever possible.

1. What new information is revealed by Long John Silver's statement, "Flint was cap'n and I was part of the crew. I lost my leg on that voyage, and old Pew lost his eyes. But I got my hands on some money, and it's all safe in the bank"?
   Long John Silver knows all of the pirates who tried to steal the treasure map from the Admiral Benbow Inn, as described in earlier chapters. He was actually one of the crew members on the original voyage when the treasure was hidden and buried.

2. Why do you think Jim says he wants to pounce on Silver when he hears Silver say "you're as smart as paint" to another crew member?
   Jim wants to pounce on Silver because he realizes Silver is not the honest man Jim believed him to be. Silver used the same compliment for a crew member that he had used for Jim, making it obvious that Silver says things like that just to get people on his side. Jim feels tricked and deceived.

6.3 Relative Pronouns

Relative Pronoun Use
- that introduces a section of the sentence that is needed to understand the meaning of the sentence
- which introduces a section of the sentence that is not needed to understand the meaning of the sentence
- whose indicates possession

Read each pair of sentences. Then, combine each pair of sentences into one sentence, using the appropriate relative pronoun.

Example: She got a card for her birthday. The card was signed by all of her friends.
She got a card for her birthday that was signed by all of her friends.

1. The guitar’s strings were broken. The guitar was in its case.
The guitar, whose strings were broken, was in its case.

2. The balloon floated away. The balloon was red.
The balloon, which was red, floated away.

3. The mop was left outside in the rain. The mop was soaking wet.
The mop that was soaking wet was left out in the rain.

8.2 The Man on the Island

Answer each question thoughtfully, citing evidence from the text and the page number(s) where you found evidence for each question. Answer in complete sentences and retell the question in your answer whenever possible.

1. How does the reader know the exchange between John Silver and the seaman Tom takes place? Why is the interaction important?

   The narrator, Jim, witnesses the exchange from a distance. He hides in a nearby area, watching and listening to them. The narrator’s main point in describing the interaction is to confirm Long John Silver is planning to lead a mutiny. This interaction is important because it shows Long John Silver is willing to hurt people who are not willing to join his mutiny and those who might go against him.

2. What do you think Ben Gunn means when he says, “If I ever get back to England, I’m changing my ways and the company I keep”?

   Ben Gunn was a pirate until another group of pirates marooned him on the island. When he says he’s going to change his ways, he means that he is going to stop being a buccaneer. When he says he will change the company he keeps, he means that he will not associate with pirates anymore.

3. Do you think Ben Gunn is a trustworthy character? Support your opinion with evidence from the text.

   Answers may vary, but students should support their opinions with evidence from the text. Students may say Ben Gunn is not a trustworthy character because he is a pirate and so far in the text, it has become apparent that pirates are often disloyal and not trustworthy. Alternatively, students may say Ben Gunn is a trustworthy character because, after being marooned on an island, he has vowed to change his ways, stop being a pirate, and live a more honest life.

4. Based on what you have read, would you characterize buccaneers or pirates as trustworthy or untrustworthy? Why?

   Answers may vary, but students should support their position with evidence from the text. For example, buccaneers are not trustworthy people, as they lie, steal, and treat one another poorly. Marooning Ben Gunn on an island is an example of how buccaneers can be disloyal and not trustworthy. Ben Gunn wanting to take Captain Flint’s treasure is also an example of being disloyal, as that treasure does not belong to Ben.

All of a sudden, he was interrupted. Faraway out in the marsh arose an angry roar, then another. Tom jumped at the sound, like a horse pricked by a rider's spurs, but Silver winked not an eye. He stood resting lightly on his crutch, watching his companion, like a snake about to strike.

This question has two parts. Answer Part A and then answer Part B.

2. Part A: There are two similes in the passage. Underline each one.

   Part B: Choose one of the similes and explain the comparison it makes.

   Like a horse pricked by a rider's spurs: A rider on a horse sometimes wears spurs on his or her boots, which are sharp, metal objects that can be poked into the horse's sides to make the horse move faster. This simile means that Tom jumped up quickly, as if something sharp suddenly poked at him.

   Like a snake about to strike: A snake gets very still and watches what it will prey on before attacking. This simile means Silver stood watching his companion very carefully, without moving, as if he was about to attack.

4. The narrator describes Ben Gunn's voice as sounding "like a rusty lock." How does this simile help support the description of Ben Gunn?

   A rusty lock has likely not been used for a while, squeaks when someone tries to open it, and is often hard to operate. Ben Gunn hadn't used his voice for a very long time, having been marooned on the island alone for so long, which made his voice sound odd and out of use when he did speak.

   "Well, now, Jim," he said. "If I ever get back to England, I'm changing my ways and the company I keep. I'm a changed man.

   "And, Jim . . . " he continued, looking around and lowering his voice to little more than a whisper. "I'm rich! You'll thank your lucky stars, you will, that you was the first that found me!"

5. Foreshadowing is a technique authors use to give a warning or suggestion of events to come before those events happen. How might Ben Gunn's statement that he is rich be an example of foreshadowing? What might this mean?

   Answers may vary, but may include: Ben Gunn tells Jim he is rich and indicates that later Jim will be glad he was the first to help Ben.
Excerpt from “The Plan”

Read the excerpt from Chapter 6 and then answer the questions that follow it.

The next morning, I was awakened by the sound of loud voices. “Flag of truce!” I heard someone yell. Then, “It’s Silver!” I got up and rubbed my eyes. Sure enough, two men stood just outside the stockade—one of them was waving a white cloth, and the other was Silver himself.

“Stay inside,” said the captain. “Ten to one says this is a trick.” Then he shouted to the buccaneers, “Who goes there? Stand or we’ll fire!”

“Flag of truce!” cried Silver.

“What do you want with your flag of truce?” Captain Smollett shouted back.

“Cap’n Silver wishes to make terms,” the other man called out.

“Captain Silver?” said the captain. “Don’t know him. Who’s he?”

John Silver answered: “Me, sir. These poor lads have chosen me…“

1. Why do you think Captain Smollett says he doesn’t know who Captain Silver is?

   Captain Smollett is the captain of the Hispaniola. Long John Silver was aboard the ship but he was not the captain. When Silver calls himself Captain, he claims it is because Captain Smollett deserted the ship, rather than the fact that Silver and the others decided to mutiny.

2. Why do you think Captain Smollett and his men refuse to give Silver a hand up?

   Answers may vary, but should include the fact that at this point, because of the mutiny planned and executed by Silver and his dishonest ways, nobody is willing to help Silver with anything, even something as simple as helping him get up off the ground.

3. Summarize this scene in your own words.

   Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text and an accurate summary of the scene in the excerpt.
4. I love my grandma. I visit my grandma every Sunday.

   I love my grandma, whom I visit every Sunday.

5. David’s cookies are delicious. He is good at baking.

   David, whose cookies are delicious, is good at baking.

6. The ball is bright red. The ball is bouncy.

   The ball, which is bright red, is bouncy.

7. The building had all of its lights on. The building was made of brick.

   The building, which had all of its lights on, was made of brick.

8. They collected the jars. The jars were recyclable.

   They collected the jars that were recyclable.

   Jerry, who loves apples, doesn’t like bananas.

10. I want to mail a letter to my friend. I miss my friend.

    I want to mail a letter to my friend, whom I miss.

9.4 Prefixes im- and in- and Roots port and bio

Write the correct word to complete each sentence.

1. My sister said that it was _________ to be afraid of the dark, but my dad told me that even adults are afraid of things.

   (important, independent, immature, inaudible)

   (immature)

2. I wanted to be _________ and make some money on my own over the summer, so I mowed lawns and took care of gardens for my neighbors.

   (important, independent, immature, inaudible)

   (independent)

3. I slept through my alarm because the volume was turned down so low that it was _________.

   (important, independent, immature, inaudible)

   (inaudible)

4. My teacher says that it is _________ to be on time for class so that you do not miss anything.

   (important, independent, immature, inaudible)

   (important)

Challenge: Write a sentence that includes one word with the prefix im- or in- and one word with the root port or bio.

Answers may vary, but should correctly use the targeted word.
“Shiver Me Timbers”

Answer each question thoughtfully, citing evidence from the text and the page number(s) where you found evidence for each question. Answer in complete sentences and restate the question in your answer whenever possible.

1. Jim seems much more mature in the scene on page 62 than in earlier chapters. How does he show maturity and leadership on the Hispaniola?
   - Jim acts fairly but authoritatively with Israel Hands. He gives him a drink and addresses him politely as a gentleman or captain would. However, Jim also speaks confidently, telling Hands he will now take over the ship and be his captain. Jim takes charge of the situation, which makes him seem more mature.

2. Why does Jim take down the Jolly Roger and shout “God save the king!”?
   - A. Jim takes down the Jolly Roger to show the pirates no longer control the ship.
   - B. “God save the king” is a victory cheer meant to intimidate Hands.
   - C. Both actions in A and B assert Jim’s authority and give Jim courage to proceed with his plans to secure the ship.
   - D. none of the above

3. How does Jim know that Hands will turn against him?
   - A. Hands has a look of treachery on his face.
   - B. “God save the king” is a victory cheer meant to intimidate Hands.
   - C. Jim sees Hands grab a dagger and hide it in his shirt.
   - D. Jim reads a note Hands has written.
   - E. A and C

   Page(s) 64

4. Why does Hands say “I reckon I’ll have to give up”?
   - A. Hands can’t decide what to do.
   - B. Hands tries to trick Jim into thinking he will surrender, so he can surprise Jim by throwing the dagger when he is least expecting it.
   - C. Hands is too injured to fight.
   - D. Hands expects another pirate to rescue him.

   Page(s) 67

5. How does Long John Silver try to convince Jim to join the pirates?
   - Silver flatters Jim by telling him he’s always liked him, praising his spirited nature, and telling him he should get a share of the treasure. Silver argues that Jim has no choice but to join the pirates because the captain and the doctor have turned against him.

6. In the following excerpt, why does Jim give Silver a choice rather than simply beg for his life?

   “Kill me and do yourself no good, or spare me and keep a witness to save yourself from the fate of a judge and jury.”

   Jim offers arguments that show his cleverness and bravery. Jim hopes if he can convince Silver that he is not only brave and smart, but also more valuable as an ally and witness, Silver will not have the pirates kill him. Even though Jim is probably scared, he doesn’t show it.

My Life Hangs in the Balance

Answer each question thoughtfully, citing evidence from the text and the page number(s) where you found evidence for each question. Answer in complete sentences and restate the question in your answer whenever possible.

This question has two parts. Answer Part A and then answer Part B.

1. Part A: How is the explanation that Silver gives the pirates for why he is protecting Jim different from the one he gives Jim himself?

   Answers may vary, but may include that Silver tells Jim he is on his side, yet he tells the pirates he is on their side. Silver tells Jim that he is on the squires side and protecting him because they are on the same side. Silver tells the pirates that he is on their side and protecting Jim as a way to bargain with the other side later and to keep the pirates under control.

   Part B: Of the two reasons Silver gives for protecting Jim, which do you think is more likely to be true? Support your answer with evidence from the text.

   Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text. Some students may say the reason he gives Jim is true because he wants to side with the squires and his men, thinking that is the best option for getting off the island. Other students may say the reason he gives the pirates is true because, despite what he tells Jim, his allegiance is to his pirate crew and he knows he will need to bargain with the other men.

2. Why do the pirates decide not to go forward with their mutiny?

   The pirates decide not to mutiny when Silver produces the treasure map. They decide they still have an opportunity to retrieve the treasure if they continue on with Silver as their leader, so they decide not to mutiny.

   Page(s) 76

3. The following sentences include slang. Rewrite the sentences in standard English.

   “Aye,” said Silver. “You wouldn’t find a Bishop here, I reckon, but what sort of a way is that for bones to lie? It ain’t in nature.”

   Answers may vary, but should resemble something like, “Yes,” said Silver. “You probably wouldn’t find a Bishop here to make sure a proper burial takes place for the bones, but look at those bones. You will not find bones naturally positioned that way.”

   Page(s) 76

4. Put the following significant events in the order that they happen in the story, with 1 happening first and 4 happening last.

   1. Long John Silver and Jim Hawkins make a deal to look out for one another.
   2. The crew gives Long John Silver the black spot, indicating they are going to mutiny.
   3. Long John Silver shows the men that he has Flint’s treasure map.
   4. Long John Silver and his men set out in search of the treasure.

14. I wanted to go to the party, yet I had to miss it.
15. I was really tired, so I went to bed early.
16. They have two dogs and two cats.

11.4 Suffixes –ful and –less

Write the correct word to complete each sentence.

helpful senseless endless faith sense faithful flaw helpless end

1. Would you read my sentence and make sure that it makes sense?
2. When her brother was nervous about trying out for the school play, she told him she had faith in his abilities.
3. They didn't understand why the woman would hurt someone on purpose; it seemed senseless and illogical to them.
4. The list of chores on the fridge seemed endless.
5. When buying clothes, my mother always inspects the material to make sure there are no flaws.
6. When I was struggling with math, my tutor was very helpful and explained things in a way that I could understand.
7. Write a sentence using one of the words left in the box.

   Answers may vary, but should include a complete sentence correctly using end, faithful, or helpless.

My Life Hangs in the Balance

As you and your partner read Chapter 8, “My Life Hangs in the Balance,” answer the following questions thoughtfully, citing the page number(s) where you found evidence for each question. Answer in complete sentences and restate the question in your answer whenever possible.

1. In the second paragraph on page 72, how does the phrase “to feed the fishes” contribute to the meaning of the passage in which it is used?
   - A. The phrase suggests the pirates want to go fishing.
   - B. The phrase suggests the sea cook plans to make fish for dinner.
   - C. The phrase suggests that if the men don’t obey Silver, he will throw them in the ocean.
   - D. B and C

2. The idiom “tit for tat” means given in exchange for something equal or comparable. How does this apply to the story?
   - A. The doctor has given Flint’s treasure map to Silver.
   - B. Jim tells Silver that he overheard his plans to mutiny.
   - C. Silver tells Jim why he only trusts his parrot.
   - D. George Merry is the meanest pirate of all.

3. In the conversation between Silver and Jim Hawkins, dialogue is used to show rather than tell what happens. What do you learn from that conversation?
   - A. The doctor has given Flint’s treasure map to Silver.
   - B. Silver tells Jim that he overheard Silver’s plans to mutiny.
   - C. Silver tells Jim why he only trusts his parrot.
   - D. George Merry is the meanest pirate of all.

The Adventure Comes to an End

Part A: Who do the pirates think they hear calling out? Who is actually calling out?

The pirates think they hear Captain Flint's ghost calling out. Ben Gunn is calling out. The reader can see from the image that Ben Gunn is hiding in a tree, calling out as the pirates below can hear him.

Part B: Why might the voice frighten the pirates?

Because the pirates are superstitions, they are frightened by the thought of Captain Flint's ghost coming back to haunt them. They are searching for Captain Flint's buried treasure, which he intended to claim for himself before he died. It is possible they are concerned the ghost will hurt them or claim them from finding the treasure.

Reflect on Treasure Island

1. The story follows Jim on his journey to discover buried treasure. Based on the following passage, how would you describe Jim's reaction when he finally finds the treasure? Use evidence from the text to support your answer.

   In the flickering light of the cave, I beheld heaps of coins and stacks of golden bars. That was Flint's treasure that we had come so far to find, and that had already cost the lives of a number of men. How many lives had it cost to gather all this gold? How much seamen had been shot, or marooned, or sent to the bottom of the ocean? There's no way to tell.

   Answers may vary, but may include that Jim realized how much had been lost in trying to find this treasure and he reflected on whether all that loss had really been worth it now that the treasure was found.

2. Now that you have read the entire story, how do you think Jim changed over the course of Treasure Island? What is Jim like at the beginning of the story? How is he different at the end? Use evidence from the text to support your answer.

   Answers may vary, but may include that at the beginning of the story, Jim is cautious and wary of people, trying to figure out their intentions. He experiences many new things over the course of the story and encounters dangerous situations. By the end of the story, Jim stands up for himself, takes charge in certain situations, and knows the right thing to say in the presence of certain people in order to protect himself and serve his own purposes.

3. Who do you think is a more trustworthy pirate in this chapter—Ben Gunn or Long John Silver? Support your answer with evidence from the text.

   Answers may vary, but students should support their opinion with evidence from the text.

   Some students may say Ben Gunn is more trustworthy because he helps Jim, the doctor, and the others defend themselves against the pirates and, to the reader's knowledge, has been honest with these men. Alternatively, students may say Silver is more trustworthy, as he does not kill or harm Jim when given the opportunity. He makes a deal with Jim to protect him, and to the reader's knowledge, has upheld the deal. He shouts "Gump! Gump!" which suggests that he is indeed on the doctor's side as he says.

4. Is the voyage to Treasure Island ultimately a success? Why or why not? Support your answer with evidence from the text.

   Answers may vary, but students should support their opinion with evidence from the text.

   Some students may say the voyage is ultimately a success because the honest men find the treasure and most of them return home safely with a share of it. Alternatively, some students may say the voyage is unsuccessful because many of the men do not return from the island safely, and many men do not receive a portion of the treasure.

5. How does Jim's perception of Long John Silver change over the course of Treasure Island? What does Jim think of him at the beginning of the story? What does he think of him at the end? Use evidence from the text to support your answer.

   Answers may vary, but may include that at the beginning of the story, Jim alternates between liking Silver and trusting him to being cautious regarding Silver and considering whether Silver was honest and trustworthy. By the end, Jim knows Silver cannot be trusted but Jim acts in certain ways and says certain things to make Silver believe Jim when Jim has real and good reasons for speaking and acting the way he does towards Silver.

6. The theme is the main idea or meaning of a story. Two themes in Treasure Island are greed and duplicity. Remember, greed means selfish desire for things one doesn't need and duplicity means dishonest behavior meant to trick someone. Select one theme and provide examples from the text to support your choice.

   Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text to support the chosen theme.

Challenge: Based on the following sentences from Treasure Island and your knowledge of the suffix -ful, what do you think useful means?

The captain and the others would be safe—and they would not need my help. I thought it might be more useful for me to go ashore.

Answers may vary, but should include something related to the meaning of useful as being full of use or capable of being put to use.
Questions

The following question has two parts. Answer Part A and then answer Part B.

1. Part A: In paragraph 3, what does the word stockade mean?
   A. brush along the seashore
   B. sailing ship
   C. barrier used for protection or defense
   D. weapon

   Part B: From the following answers, choose two phrases from paragraph 3 that best help the reader understand the meaning of stockade.
   A. go ashore
   B. splendid fortress
   C. abundant spring
   D. squire's men
   E. to defend
   F. small row boat

5. Put the following events in the correct order they occurred in the selection. Use the number 1 for the first event.
   1. The men rushed ashore, carrying whatever supplies they could save from the boat.
   2. Dr. Livesey ran to the stockade and discovered Jim Hawkins, safe and sound.
   3. The small boat was overloaded with men and supplies when it shoved off from the Hispaniola.
   4. As Redruth stood guard, the men gathered supplies to take to the stockade.
   5. The men suddenly ducked to avoid a cannonball, causing the boat to tip to one side.

6. Was it safer for the men to relocate to the stockade than stay on the ship with the pirates? Why or why not? Use evidence from the text to support your answer.

   Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text. If students respond that it was safer to relocate to the stockade, they should include details about how Dr. Livesey said it would make a good fortress, they brought some supplies from the Hispaniola so they could be somewhat prepared to handle different issues, they would be protected from the pirates, and they would be on dry land.

   If students respond that it was not safer to relocate to the stockade, they should include details about how staying on the ship would allow them to see enemies coming, there are already supplies on the ship, they wouldn't have to try to escape to land while pirates were attacking them, and they could fight off the pirates on the ship.

The Voyage

As you read the enrichment selection, "The Voyage," answer the following questions using complete sentences.

1. At what point in the storyline of Treasure Island does the action in "The Voyage" take place?
   - The action takes place as the real adventure begins and the ship sets sail, but before Jim overhears Silver's plans from the apple barrel.

2. Describe the scene on the ship as preparation for the voyage begins.
   - Jim describes it as being busy but exciting. Jim is tired from working hard, but the scene is stimulating and inspiring: "the shrill note of the whistle...the glimmer of the ship's lanterns." Silver leads the men in song, which increases their excitement.

3. What do the descriptions of Silver's movement around the ship tell us about his character?
   - He doesn't make excuses for his disability and has unique ways of moving around the ship. Most of the crew respect his resourcefulness, but some of the men pity him. However, the coxswain says Silver needs no pity because he is braver than a lion.

4. How does Jim characterize the voyage?
   - A. It was extremely difficult because the men suffered from hunger and disease.
   - B. The men were depressed and unhappy.
   - C. They were treated very well.
   - D. It was a typical voyage with both hardship and relaxation.

5. Why does Jim climb in the apple barrel?
   - He is looking for an apple, but there are very few left, so he has to climb inside to search for one.

6. How does the language in Stevenson's original version differ from that in the Reader?
   - Answers may vary, but may include that Stevenson's language is more detailed and uses more nautical terms. The sentences tend to be longer in the original.
Blackbeard

As you read the enrichment selection, "Blackbeard," answer the following questions using complete sentences.

1. How did Blackbeard use his appearance and flag to intimidate his enemies?
   He would light pieces of cord and put them in his hat brim and carried three pistols and a cutlass when he expected trouble. He flew his own version of the Jolly Roger that depicted an hourglass, which symbolized time running out for those who didn’t agree to his demands, and a spear pointed at a heart, which suggested he would kill his enemies.
   Page(s) 99, 101

2. What strategy did Blackbeard use to defeat what is now Charleston, South Carolina?
   He blockaded the city.

3. How did the British react to Blackbeard being successful?
   Many law-abiding people noticed Blackbeard’s success and decided to do something about it. The British government passed a law that pardoned pirates who agreed to retire. The British also hunted down pirates.
   Page(s) 102

4. How did Maynard trick Blackbeard?
   Maynard ordered his men to hide under the deck so that it looked like the ship did not have many men aboard. When Blackbeard saw there were only a few men on the ship, he thought he could take it over easily and went aboard. When Blackbeard arrived, Maynard’s other men swarmed on deck, defeating Blackbeard.

5. Discuss some similarities between the story of "Blackbeard" and Treasure Island. Answers may vary, but may include discussion of pirates in general, and/or a discussion of pirates’ dishonest, violent behavior.

Part B: What could the Woodman have done that would not have shown honesty?

The Woodman could have said the golden axe wasn’t his and/or said the silver axe wasn’t his. Doing either of these would not have shown honesty because neither of these axes was his.

4. What good fortune did the other Woodmen in the village hope to easily win?
   A. getting a golden axe and a silver axe in addition to their own
   B. losing their own axes in the forest
   C. returning the next day to find their hidden axes
   D. showing honesty to Mercury when he asked what the trouble was

5. The moral of the story is "Honesty is the best policy." Explain what this moral means, using evidence from the text. Answers may vary, but should include that when you are honest, you are rewarded for telling the truth. By not being honest, you may end up worse off than you were when you started.
Questions 6–9 pertain to Passage 2: "Benjamin Banneker."

6. Knowing what Banneker accomplished in his life, what does the word outstanding mean in the following sentence from paragraph 5?

Benjamin Banneker’s abilities were outstanding.

A. unpaid
B. excellent
C. poor
D. average

The following question has two parts. Answer Part A and then answer Part B.

7. Part A: Benjamin Banneker was curious about the world around him. Using evidence from the text, fill in the column labeled "Part A: What Benjamin Banneker built or made!"

<table>

<th>Part B: Why he built or made this</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>See Teacher Guide, Assessment Day 1 for answers.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Part B: Now that you have identified things Banneker built or made, use evidence in the text to help you determine why he built or made these things. Record your answers for why Banneker built each item in the column labeled "Part B: Why he built or made this."

Questions 10–15 pertain to Passage 3: "The Circulatory System."

10. In paragraph 5, what does the following sentence mean?

You have so many blood vessels in your body, they could circle the earth more than two times if they were strung together!

A. If you took all the blood vessels from your body and put them together in one long string, you could wrap that string around the earth more than two times.
B. If you took all the blood from your body and put it in one place, it would wrap around the earth more than two times.
C. If you took all the blood vessels from your body, each one is long enough to circle the earth on its own more than two times.
D. If you took all the blood vessels from your body and put them together in one long string, you could wrap that string around the earth less than two times.

The following question has two parts. Answer Part A and then answer Part B.

11. Part A: List the important jobs blood has in the body in the following chart.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Important Jobs Blood Has in the Body</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>carries life giving oxygen to body cells</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>removes carbon dioxide from body cells</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>moves nutrients from food to body tissues</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>carries away waste products from body tissues</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>protects the body against disease</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>helps distribute heat throughout the body</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Part B: Using information from the chart, write complete sentences to give at least two reasons why blood is important to the body.

Answers may vary, but should include information from the chart, which is text evidence, and the information should directly support the reasons provided.

12. Which blood vessels carry blood away from the heart and which blood vessels carry blood back to the heart?

A. Arteries carry blood away from the heart; veins carry blood back to the heart.
B. Veins carry blood away from the heart; arteries carry blood back to the heart.
C. Arteries carry blood away from the heart; capillaries carry blood back to the heart.
D. Lungs carry blood away from the heart; veins carry blood back to the heart.

13. Which of the following shows the correct sequence of where blood goes when it circulates through the body?

A. heart → lungs → heart → veins → capillaries → arteries → heart
B. heart → lungs → heart → arteries → capillaries → veins → heart
C. lungs → veins → heart → capillaries → veins → heart → lungs
D. lungs → arteries → heart → capillaries → veins → heart → lungs
15. In paragraph 8, the text states that it might seem like it would take hours or days for blood to circulate through your body. Using evidence from the passage, explain why it might seem that blood would take so long to circulate through your body.

End-of-Year Reading Comprehension total _____ / 15 points

To receive a point for a two-part question (i.e., 3, 7, 11, and 14), students must correctly answer both parts of the question.

Answers may vary, but should include that given all the work that is required to move blood through the body, all of the blood vessels, and the length of all the blood vessels put together in your body, one would think it would take a very long time for blood to circulate through the body. However, the heart and blood vessels work well together to circulate blood very quickly.

4. Which of the following sentences contains an adverb that describes the verb?

A. Rabbits hop quietly in the meadow.
B. We hung our towels outside so the warm breeze would dry them.
C. The strong winds shook the tent at the campsite.
D. Water rushes over the edge of the tall waterfall.

---

5. The following question has two parts. Answer Part A and then answer Part B.

Part A: Fill in the following chart comparing the physicians Galen and Harvey and their beliefs.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Where Blood Starts before Going through the Body</th>
<th>How Blood is Used in the Body</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Liver</td>
<td>blood is made and used up in the body</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Heart</td>
<td>blood is used over and over again, not used up</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Part B: Using information from the chart and information from the text, explain how Harvey's work changed the way doctors thought about the heart and blood vessels.

Answers may vary, but should include that Harvey observed blood flow in humans and animals and confirmed that the heart is the organ that pumps blood through the body. Galen thought blood came from the liver before going through the rest of the body. Harvey also determined that blood circulated throughout the body over and over again, and that it was not used up and more was made by the liver, using food we eat. In addition, Harvey discovered valves to stop blood from flowing backward in the blood vessels. Harvey explained the pulse we feel in our bodies. Harvey’s work showed that the heart was the important part of the circulatory system, not the liver as Galen had described. Harvey’s discoveries about the heart and blood vessels changed how doctors thought about these parts of the body.
